1	(2) Whenever a court, based on exonerating evidence,
2	enters an order releasing a person serving a sentence for a
3	felony conviction, the court must find whether the person is a
4	wrongfully incarcerated person. The court must describe in
5	detail the evidence on which the finding is based.
6	(3) A person who has been ordered released from 7	incarceration for a felony conviction by a court based on
8	exonerating evidence on or after October 1, 2001, may petition
9	the court for a determination of whether the person is a

18	(j) Documentation of criminal history;
19	(k) Other documentation that the applicant believes
20	should be considered for determining compensation; and
21	(1) Other documentation, evidence, or information
22	required by rules adopted by the Department of Legal Affairs
23	on behalf of the Attorney General.
24	(2) Upon receipt of an application for compensation,
25	the Attorney General shall examine the application and, within
26	30 days after such receipt, notify the applicant of any
27	apparent errors or omissions and request any additional
28	information the Office of the Attorney General may by law
29	require. The applicant shall have 30 days following the 30	receipt of a request for additional information to provide the 31	information to the Attorney General. Within 60 days after the

1	time for completion of an application has expired, the
2	Attorney General must negotiate in good faith with the
3	wrongfully incarcerated person for the amount of compensation.
4	The Attorney General must provide the wrongfully incarcerated
5	person with a written offer and, if requested, a copy of the б	information on which the offer is based. The applicant must be 7	given at least 30 days to respond to the offer.
8	(3) If the applicant rejects the offer to settle his
9	or her claim for compensation, the applicant may file suit
10	against the state for compensation in the circuit court in
11	which the applicant was convicted. The jury shall determine
12	solely the amount of compensation to be paid.
13	(a) Both the state and the applicant shall file an 14	offer of settlement within 30 days after the close of the 15	pleadings. If a judgment exceeds the offer of settlement by
16	the applicant by at least 25 percent, the state shall pay
17	reasonable attorney's fees, reasonable accounting fees, and
18	reasonable actuarial fees.
19	(b) At least 30 days prior to a hearing to assess
20	costs under this subsection, the applicant's attorney shall
21	submit to the Attorney General, for each expert witness,
22	complete time records and a detailed statement of services
23	rendered by date, the nature of services performed, the time
24	spent performing such services, and costs incurred.
25	(c) In assessing costs, the court shall consider all
26	factors relevant to the reasonableness of the costs,
27	including, but not limited to, the fees paid to similar
28	experts retained in the case by the Attorney General and the 29	reasonable costs of similar services by similarly qualified
