SUMMARY ANALYSIS

The Credit Repair Organizations Act (CROA) was signed into law with the intent to prevent credit repair organizations from engaging in unfair business practices that result in financial hardships for consumers. Specifically, CROA prohibits untrue or misleading representations and requires certain affirmative disclosures in the offering or sale of "credit repair" services. CROA bars "credit repair" companies from demanding advance payment, requires that "credit repair" contracts be in writing, and gives consumers certain contract cancellation rights.

While CROA is meant to prevent unfair and deceptive trade practices by credit repair organizations that undermine the accuracy and completeness of credit reports, the law could be construed to prevent national credit bureaus (Experian, Equifax, and TransUnion) from providing credit education services to consumers.

The memorial urges the U.S. Congress to enact reforms to the Credit Repair Organization Act to ensure that nationwide credit reporting agencies create, promote, and maintain resources for consumers to access specific recommendations for improving their credit reports and credit scores.

Legislative memorials are not subject to the Governor's veto power and are not presented to the Governor for review. Memorials have no force of law, as they are mechanisms for formally petitioning the U.S. Congress to act on a particular subject.

The memorial does not have a fiscal impact on state or local governments.

FULL ANALYSIS

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Present Situation

Background

Credit scores are used widely for assessing eligibility for mortgages, credit cards, student loans, personal loans, and other consumer credit. They are also used for other situations that a person may not think about, such as:

- Determining security deposits for renting a home;
- Setting up payment plans for various purchases; and
- Obtaining auto or home insurance.

Due to the increasing reliance on credit scores, financial literacy is essential in preparing individuals to make informed financial decisions.<sup>1</sup>

The 2014 Consumer Financial Literacy Survey showed the following statistics when it comes to budgeting, debt, and savings:<sup>2</sup>

- 61 percent of U.S. adults admit to not having a budget;
- 34 percent of U.S. adults indicated their household carries credit card debt from month-tomonth;
- 32 percent of U.S. adults do not save any portion of their annual income for retirement; and
- 21 percent of U.S. adults are not at all sure about what types of information are included on a standard credit report.

Consumer Credit Protection Act

The Consumer Credit Protection Act (CCPA),<sup>3</sup> enforced by the U.S. Department of Labor, protects employees from discharge by their employers because their wages have been garnished for any one debt, and limits the amount of an employee's earnings that may be garnished in any one week.<sup>4</sup>

Generally, the CCPA safeguards consumers in connection with the utilization of credit by requiring full disclosure of the terms and conditions of finance charges in credit transactions or in offers to extend credit; restricts the garnishment of wages; and creates the National Commission on Consumer Finance to study and make recommendations on the need for further regulation of the consumer finance industry.<sup>5</sup>

Credit Repair Organizations Act

The Credit Repair Organizations Act (CROA),<sup>6</sup> enforced by the Federal Trade Commission, amends title IV of the CCPA. The intent of CROA is to prevent credit repair organizations from engaging in unfair business practices that result in financial hardships for consumers. Specifically, CROA prohibits untrue or misleading representations and requires certain affirmative disclosures in the offering or sale of "credit repair" services. In furtherance of its duties, CROA:

- Bars "credit repair" companies from demanding advance payment;
- Requires that "credit repair" contracts be in writing; and
- Gives consumers certain contract cancellation rights.<sup>8</sup>

CROA defines a credit repair organization broadly as any person who uses any instrumentality of interstate commerce or the mails to sell, provide, or perform (or represent that they will sell, provide, or perform) any service, in return for the payment of money or other valuable consideration, for the express or implied purpose of:

- Improving any consumer's credit record, credit history, or credit ratings; or
- Providing advice or assistance to any consumer with regard to any activity or service above.

CROA excludes from the definition of a credit repair organization any nonprofit organization which is exempt from taxation under IRC 501(c)(3). CROA also excludes from the definition any depository institution, Federal or State credit union, or any affiliate or subsidiary of a depository or credit union.

Congressional Legislation

While CROA is meant to prevent unfair and deceptive trade practices by credit repair organizations that undermine the accuracy and completeness of credit reports, the law could be construed to prevent national credit bureaus (Experian, Equifax, and TransUnion) from providing credit education services to consumers.<sup>13</sup>

The Facilitating Access to Credit Act of 2015<sup>14</sup> was introduced in January, 2015. The Act amends CROA to exempt from its coverage any consumer reporting agency (or affiliate subsidiary) described under the Fair Credit Reporting Act as:<sup>15</sup>

- One that compiles and maintains files on consumers on a nationwide basis; or
- Any person, which, for monetary fees, dues, or on a cooperative nonprofit basis, regularly engages in whole or in part in the practice of assembling or evaluating consumer credit information or other information on consumers in order to furnish consumer reports to third parties, if the person is subject to supervision and examination by the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.

Furthermore, the bill preempts state law and regulations concerning a credit repair organization to the extent they would apply to consumer reporting agencies subject to this Act and directs the Federal Trade Commission to study whether, in addition to these persons, any other person should be exempt from CROA.<sup>16</sup>

Council for Economic Education's National Standards for Financial Literacy

The National Standards for Financial Literacy provide a framework for teaching personal finance in kindergarten through 12th grade.<sup>17</sup> The standards contain the following areas of knowledge and understanding that are fundamental to personal finance:<sup>18</sup>

- Earning Income
- Buying Goods and Services
- Using Credit
- Saving
- Financial Investing
- Protecting and Insuring

In 2013, the Florida Legislature passed legislation<sup>19</sup> requiring public high schools to teach financial literacy principles in their economic courses.

Effect of Proposed Changes

The memorial urges the U.S. Congress to enact reforms to the Credit Repair Organization Act to ensure that nationwide credit reporting agencies create, promote, and maintain resources for consumers to access specific recommendations for improving their credit reports and credit scores.

Furthermore, copies of the memorial will be sent to the President of the United States, the President of the U.S. Senate, the Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, and to each member of the Florida delegation to the U.S. Congress.

Legislative memorials are not subject to the Governor's veto power and are not presented to the Governor for review. Memorials have no force of law, as they are mechanisms for formally petitioning the U.S. Congress to act on a particular subject.
