I. Summary:

SB 1450 makes numerous changes to the penalties for violating Florida’s environmental laws. The bill increases required or maximum environmental penalties in various sections of the Florida Statutes. Most of the changes increase a penalty by 50 percent. Additionally, the bill changes the duration that certain penalties may run, so that, until a violation is resolved by order or judgment, each day during any portion of which a violation occurs or is not remediated constitutes a separate offense.

II. Present Situation:

Environmental Violations

The Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is Florida’s lead agency for environmental management and stewardship, implementing many programs to protect the state’s air, water, and land.¹ In accordance with the state’s numerous environmental laws, DEP’s responsibilities include the compliance and enforcement process.² Violations of Florida’s environmental laws can result in damages and administrative, civil, and/or criminal penalties.

Damages

In environmental enforcement, damages should compensate the state for the value of the loss to natural resources caused by the violation.³ DEP may institute a civil action in court or an administrative proceeding in the Division of Administrative Hearings (DOAH) to recover damages for any injury to the air, waters, or property, including animal, plant, and aquatic life, of the state caused by any violation.⁴ Damages can cover the cost of remediating the damage done to the environment, and/or costs incurred by the state in responding to the damage, such as tracing the source, controlling and abating the source, and restoring the environmental resources to their former condition.⁵

Penalties

In addition to damages, a violator can be liable for penalties. Penalties differ from damages in that they are designed to punish the wrongdoer rather than to address the harm caused by the violation.⁶ In environmental enforcement, penalties should create incentives to bring immediate compliance and curb future violations.⁷

Administrative penalties can be levied directly by the agency or in a proceeding in DOAH.⁸ The formal administrative enforcement process is typically initiated by serving a notice of violation, and is finalized through entry of a consent order or final order.⁹ In most administrative proceedings, DEP has the final decision.¹⁰ An administrative law judge has the final decision for administrative proceedings involving the Environmental Litigation Reform Act, codified in s. 403.121, F.S., which is the primary statute addressing DEP's administrative penalties.¹¹ Compared to the judicial process, the administrative process is generally considered less expensive, faster and less time consuming, and more conducive to negotiated settlement.¹² However, if DEP is seeking immediate injunctive relief, which compels a party to act or stop acting, an order must be obtained from a court.¹³

DEP must proceed administratively in cases in which DEP seeks administrative penalties that do not exceed $10,000 per assessment.¹⁴ DEP is prohibited from imposing administrative penalties in excess of $10,000 in a notice of violation.¹⁵ DEP may not have more than one notice of violation pending against a party unless the violations occurred at a different site or the violations were discovered by DEP subsequent to the filing of a previous notice of violation.¹⁶

Civil penalties are noncriminal fines that are generally levied by a court, and which agencies may be authorized to impose.¹⁷ DEP may pursue two forms of action in state court: a petition to enforce an order previously entered through the administrative process, or a complaint for violations of statutes or rules.¹⁸ Under both forms, DEP may seek injunctive relief, civil penalties, damages, and costs and expenses.¹⁹ For judicially imposed civil penalties, DEP is authorized to recover up to $10,000 per offense, with each day during any portion of which a violation occurs constituting a separate offense.²⁰

¹⁷ The Environmental Litigation Reform Act allows DEP to seek civil penalties of up to $10,000 through the administrative process for most environmental violations. The Act may not be used if penalties exceed $10,000.

A court or an administrative law judge may receive evidence in mitigation, which may result in the decrease or elimination of penalties.²¹

Criminal penalties can include jail/prison time, a criminal fine, or both. Florida law imposes criminal penalties for certain violations of environmental law.²² Punishments for such violations may vary based on standards of intent, such as willful, reckless indifference, or gross careless disregard.²³

This present situation describes DEP's general authority to levy penalties, largely pursuant to Chapter 403, F.S. DEP derives enforcement authority from several different chapters of Florida law based on subject matter, so DEP has additional enforcement authority for programs not covered in ch. 403, F.S. Additionally, the Department of Legal Affairs, any political subdivision or municipality of the state, or a citizen of the state may maintain an action for injunctive relief against the government entity charged with enforcing environmental laws or the violator of the laws.²⁴

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

Sections 1-21 amend sections of the Florida Statutes containing various penalties for violations of environmental laws. In general, the bill increases the required or maximum penalties in the provisions listed below. In most cases, the penalties are increased by 50 percent.

Several places in existing law impose a penalty for each offense, with each day during which a violation occurs constituting a separate offense. The bill changes that standard to: each day during which a violation occurs or is not remediated,²⁵ until a violation is resolved by order or judgment. This standard is changed in several sections and created in others.

The table below summarizes existing penalties and the penalties as revised by the bill. All penalties are levied by the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) unless otherwise specified.

²⁵ The word "remediation" can refer to a large range of activities and timescales. In environmental law, remediation is generally described as restoring land, water, or air to its former state following some harm or pollution; see BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY 1407 (9th ed. 2009).

C. Trust Funds Restrictions:

D. State Tax or Fee Increases:

E. Other Constitutional Issues:

The vagueness doctrine was developed to ensure compliance with the Due Process Clause in the Fifth Amendment of the United States Constitution, and Florida's Constitution includes a similar due process guarantee.²⁹ The vagueness doctrine provides that a statute must give the person of ordinary intelligence a reasonable opportunity to know what is prohibited, and it must provide explicit standards for those who apply them to avoid arbitrary and discriminatory enforcement.³⁰ A statute is void for vagueness when, because of its imprecision, it fails to give an adequate notice of what conduct is prohibited.³¹ Thus, it invites arbitrary and discriminatory enforcement.³² A statute is not void for vagueness if the language conveys a sufficiently definite warning as to the proscribed conduct when measured by common understanding and practices.³³ However, the Supreme Court has indicated that a statute giving fair notice of the prohibited conduct may still be void if it lends itself to arbitrary enforcement.³⁴ The need for definiteness is even greater when a law imposes criminal penalties on individual behavior or implicates constitutionally protected rights.³⁵

In several places in the bill, a penalty standard is revised or added such that “until a violation is resolved by order or judgment, each day during any portion of which a violation occurs or is not remediated constitutes a separate offense.” In such instances, the meaning of the word “remediated” is crucial for determining the number of separate offenses. This term is undefined in the statutes amended by the bill. This condition is applied to criminal penalties in addition to administrative and civil penalties.

Article III, section 6 of the Florida Constitution requires every law to address a single subject, and the subject must be briefly expressed in the title. The bill contains changes to administrative and criminal penalties, and other changes to penalty language, that may not be fully described in the title of the bill. Accordingly, revisions to the title of the bill are recommended.

V. Fiscal Impact Statement:

A. Tax/Fee Issues:

B. Private Sector Impact:

constitute a separate offense. Overall, the bill increases the penalties that the private sector must pay for violations of environmental laws.

C. Government Sector Impact:

The bill increases the amounts of numerous penalties. If imposed, the funds from such penalties would increase revenue to the state. Therefore, the bill may have a positive, indeterminate impact on the government sector.

VI. Technical Deficiencies:

None.

VII. Related Issues:

On line 297, the word “which” should be deleted.

In sections of the bill containing “[u]ntil a violation is resolved by order or judgment, each day during any portion of which such violation occurs or is not remediated constitutes a separate offense,” or similar language, a definition for the word “remediated” is recommended.
