I. SUMMARY:

The corporate limits of the City of Lauderdale-by-the-Sea are extended by annexing approximately 24 acres of unincorporated land. According to the City, the land proposed for annexation is contiguous to the City.

According to the attached Economic Impact Statement, the City of Lauderdale-by-the-Sea would experience an overall increase in revenue of up to $800,580 in fiscal year 1997-98. Broward County would lose an estimated $556,671 in revenue in fiscal year 1997-98.

II. SUBSTANTIVE RESEARCH:

A. PRESENT SITUATION:

Florida Annexation Law

Under Article VIII, Section 2(c), of the Florida Constitution, the Legislature is authorized to annex by special act, and to establish by general law a procedure for local annexations in all Florida counties.

The Legislature established local annexation procedures in 1974, with the creation of chapter 171, Florida Statutes, the "Municipal Annexation or Contraction Act." This Act establishes alternative procedures for adjusting municipal boundaries locally through annexation or contraction, and sets forth criteria for determining when local annexations or deannexations may take place. This law only addresses annexation of unincorporated property into a municipality and deannexation of municipal property into an unincorporated area.

Requirements for Annexation

Before local annexation procedures may begin, the governing body of the annexing municipality must prepare a report containing the city's plans for providing urban services to the proposed area to be annexed. A copy of the report must be filed with the board of county commissioners. This report must include appropriate maps, timetables, and financing methodologies. It must certify that the area proposed to be annexed is appropriate for annexation because it meets the following standards and requirements:

- The area to be annexed must be an unincorporated area that is contiguous to the boundary of the annexing municipality. This means that a substantial part of the boundary of the area to be annexed has a common boundary with the municipality. The specified exceptions are where the area is separated from the city's boundary by a publicly owned county park, right-of-way, or body of water.
- The area to be annexed must be reasonably compact.
- No part of the area to be annexed may fall within the boundary of another municipality.
- The majority of the land to be annexed must be developed for urban purposes. Urban purposes are defined as:
 - having a population of at least two persons per acre; or
 - if 60 percent of the subdivided lots are one acre or less, having a density of one person per acre; or
 - having at least 60 percent of the subdivided lots used for urban purposes; or
 - that at least 60 percent of the total urban residential acreage is divided into lots of 5 acres or less.

Alternatively, if the proposed area is not developed for urban purposes, it can either border at least 60 percent of a developed area, or provide a necessary bridge between two urban areas.

Annexed areas are declared to be subject to taxation (and existing indebtedness) for the current year on the effective date of the annexation, unless the annexation takes place following the tax levy for that year. In the case of municipal contractions, the city and county must agree on the transfer of indebtedness or property--the amount to be assumed, its fair value, and the manner of transfer and financing.

Immediately upon being annexed, an area is subject to all laws, ordinances, and regulations applicable to other city residents. An exception is that applicable county land use and zoning regulations continue in effect until the area is rezoned by the annexing municipality. Also, the county land use plan, and zoning or subdivision regulations of the unincorporated area will remain in effect (after the annexation has been approved) until the annexing municipality adopts a local comprehensive plan amendment to include the new area. In contractions, excluded territory is immediately subject to laws, ordinances, and regulations in effect in the county.

Voluntary Annexation

If the property owners of a particular unincorporated area desire annexation into a contiguous municipality, they can initiate voluntary annexation proceedings. The following procedures govern voluntary annexations in every county, except those counties with charters providing an exclusive method for municipal annexation:

- Submission to the municipal governing body of a petition seeking the annexation, signed by all property owners in the area proposed to be annexed.
- Adoption of an ordinance by the governing body of the annexing municipality to annex the property after publication of notice at least once a week for 2 consecutive weeks, setting forth the proposed ordinance in full.
- A restriction against the creation of enclaves.

Involuntary Annexation

A municipality may annex property where the property owners have not petitioned for annexation. This process is called involuntary annexation. In general, the requirements for an involuntary annexation are:

- Adoption of an annexing ordinance by the governing body of the annexation of one "reasonably compact" area.
- Submittal of the ordinance to a vote of the registered electors of the area proposed to be annexed once the ordinance has been adopted by the governing body.
- Submittal of the ordinance to a separate vote of the registered electors of the annexing municipality and of the area proposed to be annexed. This dual referendum is required if the proposed ordinance would cause the total area annexed by a municipality during any one calendar year period to cumulatively exceed more than 5 percent of the total land area of the municipality, or cumulatively to exceed more than 5 percent of the municipal population.

If there is a majority vote in favor of annexation in the area proposed to be annexed, and a majority in favor in cases where a referendum must be held in the annexing city, the area becomes a part of the city. If, however, there is a majority vote against annexation in either the annexing municipality or the area proposed to be annexed, the annexation does not happen. That area cannot be made the subject of another annexation proposal for 2 years from the date of the referendum.

Judicial Review of Annexations or Contractions

Affected persons who believe they will suffer material injury because of the failure of the city to comply with annexation or contraction laws as they apply to their property can appeal the ordinance. They may file a petition with the circuit court seeking the court's review. If the appeal is won, the person is entitled to reasonable costs and attorney's fees.

The Broward County Ad Hoc Committee on Annexation Policy

After the 1995 Regular Legislative Session, the Broward County Legislative Delegation created the Ad Hoc Committee on Annexation Policy (Committee) composed of legislators, local officials, and residents to study the orderly annexation of the remaining unincorporated areas of Broward County. The Committee met during the interim and produced a report that made numerous recommendations. Of these, the Committee recommended discouraging dual referenda for annexations within Broward County. The Committee also recommended requiring approval of the Broward Legislative Delegation before an annexation conducted in Broward County pursuant to chapter 171, Florida Statutes, becomes effective.

Annexations in Broward County

Chapter 96-542, Laws of Florida, states that the provision requiring a referendum of the electors of an annexing municipality contained in the second sentence of section 171.0413(2), Florida Statutes, shall not be effective with respect to any proposed annexation pursuant to chapter 171, Florida Statutes, in Broward County. The sentence states:

“If the proposed ordinance would cause the total area annexed by a municipality pursuant to this section during any one calendar year period cumulatively to exceed more than 5 percent of the total land area of the municipality or cumulatively to exceed more than 5 percent of the municipal population, the ordinance shall be submitted to a separate vote of the registered electors of the annexing municipality and of the area proposed to be annexed.”

Chapter 96-542, Laws of Florida, provides that any annexation of unincorporated property within Broward County proposed to be accomplished pursuant to chapter 171, Florida Statutes, must first be considered at a public hearing conducted by the Broward Legislative Delegation pursuant to its adopted rules, and shall not be effective until the first day of October following adjournment sine die of the next regular Legislative Session following the accomplishment of all procedures necessary for annexation pursuant to chapter 171, Florida Statutes. However, any voluntary annexation ordinance adopted by a municipality in Broward County prior to January 1, 1996, the subject matter of which has had a public hearing before the Broward County Legislative Delegation, shall be given effect according to its terms.

Proposed Annexation of Sea Ranch Condominiums into Town of Lauderdale-by-the-Sea

According to information provided by the City of Lauderdale-by-the-Sea, the annexation accomplished by this bill was prepared as a voluntary annexation proposal for consideration by the Broward Legislative Delegation. The land proposed for annexation includes the four Sea Ranch condominiums. According to staff for the Broward Legislative Delegation, not all owners of property within the area proposed for annexation are in favor of the annexation. As a result, the annexation may not be accomplished locally as a voluntary annexation, but could be accomplished locally as an involuntary annexation.

IV. COMMENTS:

HOUSE RULE 92(a)

House Rule 92(a), provides that "if a committee determines that a local bill may be enacted into law under the authority of a local governing body, that committee shall not report the bill to the Clerk."

The Co-Chairs of the House Committee on Rules, Resolutions, & Ethics have interpreted this rule to imply that if a local governing authority may enact an ordinance achieving the same purpose as the substance of a proposed local bill, the committee should not report the bill to the Clerk. In the event that a referendum would be required in order to achieve the purpose of a local bill, the committee may report the bill.

This bill can be accomplished locally through the procedures established in chapter 171, Florida Statutes. However, under the involuntary annexation procedures established in chapter 171, Florida Statutes, as modified for Broward County by chapter 96-542, Laws of Florida, a referendum of the registered electors of the area proposed for annexation is required to accomplish the annexation locally.

HOUSE RULE 92(b)

House Rule 92(b), provides that "if a committee determines that a local bill provides only an exemption from general law, it shall be reintroduced as a general bill."

By accomplishing the annexation through a special act, the bill is not consistent with chapter 171, Florida Statutes, and is an exception to chapter 171, Florida Statutes, requirements. Several procedures required by chapter 171, Florida Statutes, are circumvented. First, the process for citizen input at a public hearing and provision for citizen challenge of an ordinance would be circumvented. Second, procedures in chapter 171, Florida Statutes, that require a report explaining how the area meets the requirements of chapter 171, Florida Statutes, and that provides plans to provide urban services to the area to be annexed also would be circumvented.
