insert:

The Legislature also recognizes the need for local governments to work cooperatively to provide for local and regional public water supplies. Regional water supply development and regional water resource development can be essential for serving regional public water supply needs. Accordingly, when local governments have voluntarily entered into a interlocal agreement pursuant to s. 373.1962, the provisions in ss. 373.223(2) and 373.229(3) shall not apply when the regional water supply authority is applying for a permit pursuant to part II of this chapter for transport and use of water within the jurisdictional boundaries of the member governments of the regional water supply authority.
