I. SUMMARY:

The bill provides an additional requirement for school district receipt of lottery funds by prohibiting the release of Educational Enhancement Trust Fund moneys to school districts which do not comply with school advisory council membership composition requirements. The bill requires the Department of Education to provide public notice of department intervention, send a technical assistance team to each school to develop a strategy for corrective action, and release funds upon establishment of a plan of corrective action.

The bill specifies that each school advisory council shall include in its name the words "school advisory council."

The bill requires the Florida Commission on Education Reform and Accountability to serve as a review body to determine if schools have maximized their efforts to include on their advisory councils minority persons and persons of lower socioeconomic status.

The bill requires each school advisory council, with technical assistance provided by the Department of Education, to assist in the preparation of the school's annual budget and plan. A portion of funds provided in the General Appropriations Act for use by SACs must be used for implementing school improvement plans.

The bill requires that school improvement plans, beginning in 1999-2000, must address issues relative to budget, training, instructional materials, technology, staffing, student support services, and other matters of resource allocation as determined by school board policy.

The bill requires school boards to adopt policies which encourage and enhance decisionmaking at the school site level. Policies must include guidelines concerning instructional materials and technology, staff training, student support services, budgeting, and the allocation of staff resources. School boards must adopt a waiver process to allow schools to exercise maximum flexibility and must notify school advisory councils of waiver processes which may be exercised to waive district and state policies. School boards must also develop policies to monitor membership composition of school advisory councils to ensure compliance with statute.

I. SUBSTANTIVE RESEARCH:

A. PRESENT SITUATION:

School Advisory Council Establishment and Membership

School advisory councils (SACs) are a key component of Florida's school improvement and accountability system. Section 229.58, F.S., requires the school board to establish a SAC for each school in each district and to develop procedures for the election and appointment of advisory council members but gives smaller school districts (those with fewer than 10,000 students) the option of establishing a district advisory council.

Each SAC must be composed of the school's principal and an appropriately balanced number of teachers, education support employees, students, parents, and other business and community members who are representative of the ethnic, racial, and economic community served by the school. Council members must be elected by their respective peer groups at the school in a fair and equitable manner. The school board must establish procedures for use by schools in selecting business and community members and must review the membership composition of each advisory council. Should a school board determine that the membership of the SAC is not representative of the ethnic, racial, and economic community served by the school, the board must appoint additional members to achieve proper representation.

Performance reviews conducted by the Office of the Auditor General in 1993-94 and by the Office of Program Policy Analysis and Governmental Accountability (OPPAGA) in 1995-96 found persistent problems in SAC memberships. The 1995-96 performance review looked at school improvement efforts in 14 school districts. In one-third of the SACs reviewed, 50 percent of the SAC members were new to the councils. Almost half of the SACs reviewed did not include all statutorily required membership groups, such as business/community members and education support employees. About one-third did not reflect the school community's racial and ethnic diversity. Sixty-three percent were dominated by school employees and 78 percent were dominated by school district employees.

Legislation passed during the 1997 legislative session required each SAC to draw a majority of its membership from individuals who are not school board employees. (Ch. 97-279, L.O.F.)

School Advisory Council Duties

Each school advisory council must perform such duties as are prescribed by regulations of the school board, although no advisory council will have any powers or perform duties reserved by law to the school board. (s. 229.58(2), F.S.) Each school advisory council shall assist in the preparation and evaluation of the school improvement plan required pursuant to s. 230.23(16), F.S.

School Improvement Plans

School improvement plans are locally developed "blueprints" for achieving the state education goals and student performance standards pursuant to ss. 229.591(3) and 229.592, F.S. Section 230.23(16), F.S., requires district school boards to annually approve and require implementation of a new, amended or continuation school improvement plan for each school in the district. Each SAC assists in preparing and evaluating the school's improvement plan and provides any assistance requested by the principal in preparing the school's annual budget.

The Educational Enhancement Trust Fund

The Educational Enhancement Trust Fund, administered by the Department of Education (DOE), receives funds from the sale of lottery tickets and must be used to the benefit of public education. Section 24.12, F.S., requires that at least 50% of the moneys paid for lottery tickets be returned to the public in the form of prizes, and that at least 38% of the moneys be deposited into the Educational Enhancement Trust Fund each fiscal year. The remaining 12% is used to pay lottery administrative expenses. Any unencumbered balance remaining in the Administrative Trust Fund at the end of the fiscal year is transferred to the Educational Enhancement Trust Fund.

School districts in which one or more schools do not have an approved school improvement plan pursuant to s. 230.23(16), F.S., will not receive funds from the Educational Enhancement Trust Fund. DOE must provide notice to the public that it will intervene and identify each school without a plan and must send a technical assistance team to each school without an approved plan to develop such a plan. Upon approval of the plan, DOE shall release the funds.

Florida Commission on Education Reform and Accountability

The Florida Commission on Education Reform and Accountability was created in 1991 as an advisory body which oversees the development, establishment, implementation and maintenance of a program of school improvement and accountability from preschool through grade 12. The Commission is assigned to the Office of the Commissioner of Education for administrative and fiscal accountability purposes but otherwise functions independently. The Commission consists of the Commissioner of Education, the Lieutenant Governor and 21 appointees determined by the Governor, the Senate President, the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Commissioner of Education.

This year, the Commissioner of Education has asked the Commission on Education Reform and Accountability to serve as the statewide School Advisory Council advocacy group.

B. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

School Advisory Council Establishment and Membership

The bill specifies that each school advisory council must include in its name the words "school advisory council." The bill provides that The Florida Commission on Education Reform and Accountability serve as a review body to determine if schools have maximized their efforts to include minority persons and persons of lower socioeconomic status on their advisory councils

School Advisory Council Duties

The bill requires that, by the 1999-2000 academic year, each SAC, with technical assistance from DOE, must assist in the preparation of the school's annual budget and plan as required by statute. A portion of funds provided in the General Appropriations Act for use by SACs must be used for implementing school improvement plans.

School Improvement Plans

The bill provides that the SAC shall be the sole body responsible for final decisionmaking at the school relating to implementation of the provisions concerning the state system of school improvement and education accountability pursuant to ss. 229.591, 229.592, and 230.23(16), F.S.

Beginning in 1999-2000, the bill requires each school improvement plan to address the following issues:

- budget;

- training;
- instructional materials;
- technology;
- staffing;
- student support services and;
- other matters of resource allocation.

The Educational Enhancement Trust Fund

The bill amends s. 24.121, F.S., relating to the allocation of revenues and expenditures of funds for public education, deleting an obsolete date. The provision of law initially took effect July 1, 1993, and in conjunction with the requirement of s. 230.23(16), F.S., for the annual approval of school improvement plans, has been interpreted by districts and the DOE to mean that school improvement plans must annually be approved by July 1.

The bill provides that school districts which do not comply with SAC membership composition requirements pursuant to s. 229.58(1), F.S., will not receive funds from the Educational Enhancement Trust Fund administered by DOE. Public notice must be given of such schools and DOE must send a technical assistance team to each school without appropriate school advisory council membership composition to help develop a strategy for corrective action. Funds will be released upon establishment of a plan of corrective action.

Local-level Decisionmaking

The bill requires that school boards adopt policies which encourage and enhance maximum decisionmaking appropriate to the school site. Policies must include guidelines concerning the adoption and purchase of district and school site instructional materials and technology, staff training, student support services, budgeting, and the allocation of staff resources.

The bill requires that school boards adopt a waiver process by which schools can exercise maximum flexibility. School boards must notify school advisory councils of their option to make use of the waiver process to waive school district and state policies.

The bill requires school boards to develop policies providing for monitoring of the membership composition of school advisory councils to ensure compliance with requirements established in s. 229.58, F.S.
