I. SUMMARY:

The Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) regulates privately owned water and wastewater utilities in counties which have ceded regulatory authority to the PSC, and these counties are known as "jurisdictional" counties. Pursuant to s. 367.171 (1), F.S., after a period of 10 continuous years under the jurisdiction of the commission, a county may rescind its assignment of PSC regulatory authority.

The jurisdictional county of Flagler has rescinded its PSC authority, and this bill will amend s.367.171(3) of the Florida Statutes (F.S.) to include Flagler County in the counties which are non-jurisdictional to PSC regulatory authority.

HB 555 takes effect upon becoming a law.

II. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS:

A. PRESENT SITUATION:

Through a resolution adopted by the board of county commissioners, or a declaration by the appropriate board of a charter county, and pursuant to Chapter 367 of the Florida Statutes, a county may opt to cede regulatory authority to the PSC over its privately owned water and wastewater utilities.

Counties which have opted for PSC authority are known as "jurisdictional" counties, and counties which have retained authority to regulate privately owned water and wastewater utilities are known as "non-jurisdictional" counties. Pursuant to s. 367.171 (1), F.S., after a period of 10 continuous years under the jurisdiction of the commission, a county may rescind its assignment of PSC regulatory authority.

Pursuant to a May 1980 resolution adopted by the Flagler County Board of County Commissioners, the PSC was assigned jurisdiction over privately owned water and wastewater utilities operating there. On August 5, 1996, Resolution No. 96-62 was adopted by the Flagler County Board of County Commissioners rescinding the regulatory jurisdiction of the PSC. The PSC recognized this Resolution, and as a result, Flagler County regained its regulatory authority on August 5, 1996.

However, the PSC has pending before it a rate case involving Palm Coast Utility Corp., and pursuant to s. 367.171(5), F.S.:

When a utility becomes subject to regulation by a county, all cases in which the utility is a party then pending before the commission, . . . shall remain within the jurisdiction of the commission or court until disposed of. . . .

Despite this pending issue, Flagler County is currently regulating all utility aspects, with the exception of the rates charged, so the progression of this legislation will have no bearing on that proceeding.

Because counties can, by local ordinance not legislative action, opt in or out of PSC jurisdiction for these types of utilities, s. 367.171 (3), F.S. has not been amended to reflect the current count of non-jurisdictional counties. Presently there are 29 non-jurisdictional counties and 38 jurisdictional counties as opposed to the statute's 1991 count of 33 jurisdictional counties and 34 non-jurisdictional counties.

B. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:
