I. FINAL ACTION STATUS:

On June 11, 1999, HB 2163 was approved by the Governor, and became Chapter 99-355, Laws of Florida.

II. SUMMARY:

This bill provides for the local option for selection of circuit and county court judges by election or merit selection and retention. This bill is drafted pursuant to the amendment to Article V, Subsections 10, 11(a)-(b), Florida Constitution, which was approved by the electorate at the 1998 General Election, commonly referred to as "Constitutional Revision No. 7".

Specifically, this bill provides that the voters of each judicial circuit or county must be provided the opportunity to determine if judges within the circuit or county will be elected by the voters or appointed through judicial selection and retention. The bill establishes the process by which the issue will be placed on the ballot. Pursuant to Constitutional Revision No. 7, the bill requires that the 2000 general election ballot present to the voters the opportunity to change from election of judges to merit selection and retention. After the 2000 general election, the method of selection of circuit or county court judges may be placed on the ballot through the petition process.

The fiscal impact of this bill has not yet been determined.

This bill has an effective date of January 1, 2000.

III. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS:

A. PRESENT SITUATION:

Effective January 5, 1999, Constitutional Revision No. 7, as proposed by the Constitution Revision Commission, revises the provisions of Article V of the Florida Constitution relating to the election of county and circuit court judges and to the funding of the state court system. This bill does not address the issue of funding.

Constitutional Revision No. 7 allows citizens to determine at the general election in the year 2000 whether circuit and county court judges will be elected or appointed. At the general election the electorate will determine by circuit or county, whether their circuit and county court judges will continue to be elected or whether they will be selected through the merit selection process, with the electorate provided the opportunity to vote for retention at the end of the judge's term.

After each circuit or county determines the method of selection of judges in the year 2000, the selected method, whether election or merit retention, can be presented to the voters after two years and the filing of a petition with the Secretary of State. The petition must be signed by the number of electors equal to at least 10 percent of the votes cast in the circuit or county in the last presidential election. This will allow the citizens of a county or a circuit to change the method of selection of judges, but only every two years.

Constitutional Revision No. 7 also extends the terms for county court judges from four years to six years.

Chapter 105, F.S., establishes the process for election of judicial officers. The chapter provides for the election of circuit and county court judges and the retention votes for justices of the Supreme Court and judges of the District Courts of Appeal.

Section 34.021, F.S., establishes the qualifications of county court judges who are elected.

Section 101.151, F.S., provides for the placement on the ballot of the names of justices of the Supreme Court or judges of the District Courts of Appeal seeking retention.

Section 105.031, F.S., sets the filing fee and oaths for judges qualifying for election as a circuit or county court judge.

Section 105.041, F.S., describes the form of the ballot for judges qualifying for election and judges and justices placed on the ballot for retention votes.

Section 105.051, F.S., establishes the process for determining the outcome of a judicial election and a retention vote.

Section 105.061, F.S., describes those voters eligible to vote in a judicial election for circuit and county court judges or a retention election for a justice of the Supreme Court or a judge of a District Court of Appeal.

Section 105.08, F.S., provides for reporting of campaign contributions, including campaign contributions for justices of the Supreme Court or judges of a District Court of Appeal campaigning in a retention election.

Section 106.011, F.S., provides definitions for chapter 106, F.S., regarding campaign financing, including the definition of "unopposed candidate." The definition provides that justices of the Supreme Court or judges of a District Court of Appeal seeking retention are not unopposed candidates for purposes of campaign financing.

Section 106.08, F.S., describes the limitations on campaign financing, including how much may be contributed to justices of the Supreme Court or judges of the District Court of Appeal seeking retention.

Section 25.021, F.S., sets out the terms of office for justices of the Supreme Court when they are elected.

Section 35.06, F.S., specifies the organization of the District Courts of Appeal and provides for election of the judges and terms of office for the elected judges.

EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

HB 2163 amends only those sections in chapters 34, 101, 105 and 106, F.S., which specifically address the election of circuit or county court judges or to the retention of justices of the Supreme Court and judges of the District Court of Appeal to conform with the changes implemented in Constitutional Revision No. 7. Specifically, this bill amends current law to allow for the local option of how circuit and county court judges are to be selected: by election or by merit selection and retention.

The bill directs the Secretary of State to place on the ballot for the year 2000 general election the questions regarding circuit and county court judges being selected through merit selection and retention, rather than election. Under the provisions of this bill, the method of selection of circuit and county court judges may be placed on the ballot in any general election subsequent to the year 2000 general election through the petition process. The bill establishes the process by which political committees may be formed for the collection of petitions to place the question of the selection of circuit and county court judges on the ballot. This process provides for registration as a political committee, the petition form to be developed by the Secretary of State, and the process by which the Secretary of State and supervisors of elections will verify signatures and certify the ballot position of the question.

Further, the bill specifies the ballot language for the selection of circuit and county court judges. The Secretary of State is directed to notify the Supreme Court after each general election of those counties and circuits where the method of judicial selection has been changed.

Circuit and county court judges holding office at the time of a change in the selection process will not be affected by the change until the end of their term. At the election prior to the end of a judge's term of office, the judge will be required to stand for election or a retention vote depending on what process is to be used for selection of judges at that election.

The provisions in current law related to the term of office for elected Supreme Court justices and District Court of Appeals judges are repealed.
