[Note: See part VI. Amendment or Committee Substitute Changes for effects of amendments adopted by the Committee on Transportation & Economic Development Appropriations.]

II. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS:

A. PRESENT SITUATION:

Despite the recent period of high economic growth in Florida, rural communities have not shared in the state's prosperity. The median household income in 32 of 34 of the smallest counties is considerably less than the state's median income, according to a study by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities. Not a single small county enjoys a per capita personal income that exceeds the state average of $22,916.

Adding to these difficulties, recent public policy decisions have made it more difficult for these communities to maintain their residents' income levels or to generate revenues for education and critical government services.

For example, although the homestead exemption reduces local government funding statewide, P2000 and other conservation and protection programs have removed taxable land from the inventory of wealth-creating assets in rural communities. The constitutional amendment banning the use of certain types of nets for commercial fishing has cut incomes in coastal communities. Growth Management requirements have limited job creation opportunities. Although each of these programs involves a laudable public goal, their cumulative impact has meant less wealth and has limited the fiscal capacity of the affected communities.

Fiscal capacity may be defined as the financial resources available to local government, enabling it to both maintain existing infrastructure, to ensure an acceptable quality of life and to make investments in its future to ensure the continued existence of that quality. A community's allowable millage is capped by Florida's Constitution at 10 mills and is a mechanism used by the local government to generate revenue. But even if a community is at or near the maximum (15 rural counties have reached the 10 mill cap), if the value of the property being taxed is low or declining, the amount of revenue soon becomes inadequate.

The Legislative Committee on Intergovernmental Relations reports (May 1998) the statewide average per capita taxable value for 398 reporting municipalities was $43,785. Of the 104 municipalities in the 34 smallest counties, 84 reported a per capita taxable value of less than ½ of the statewide average. Only six reported a value in excess of the statewide average - and all six of these could be considered "beach destination" communities. The picture is bleaker if county averages are examined. The statewide average per capita ad valorem tax levied by counties was $874.93. The average for the 34 smallest counties was $517.25.

Presently, the state comprehensive plan includes a future land use plan designating proposed future general distribution, location, and extent of the uses of land for residential uses, commercial uses, industry, agriculture, recreation, conservation, education, public buildings and grounds, other public facilities, and other categories of the public and private uses of land.

The future land use plan includes standards to be followed in the control and distribution of population densities and building and structure intensities. The proposed distribution, location, and extent of the various categories of land is required to be shown on a land use map or map series and be supplemented by goals, policies, and measurable objectives. Each land use category is to be defined in terms of the types of uses included and specific standards for the density or intensity of use.

The future land use plan is based upon surveys, studies, and data regarding the area, including the amount of land required to accommodate anticipated growth; the projected population of the area; the character of undeveloped land; the availability of public services; and the need for redevelopment, including the renewal of blighted areas and the elimination of nonconforming uses which are inconsistent with the character of the community. The future land use plan of a county may also designate areas for possible future municipal incorporation. The land use maps or map series generally identify and depict historic district boundaries and designate historically significant properties meriting protection.

B. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

D. STATUTE(S) AFFECTED:

Sections 163.3177, 212.098, and 288.106, Florida Statutes.

E. SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS:

Section 1. Creates the "Rural Economic Development Enhancement Act."

Section 2. States legislative intent to provide means to offset certain disadvantages rural areas face in the area of competitive economic development.

Section 3. Provides requirements for the future land use element of a local government comprehensive plan with respect to rural areas. Amends s. 163.3177, F.S.

Section 4. Authorizes OTTED to recommend to the Legislature additions to or deletions from the list of standard industrial classifications used to determine an eligible business for purposes of the Rural Job Tax Credit Program. Amends s. 212.098, F.S.

Section 5. Provides a $2 million appropriation, from the general revenue fund, to the Rural Community Development Revolving Loan Fund.

Section 6. Revises provisions relating to the tax refund program for qualified target industry (QTI) businesses as follows: OTTED may approve as eligible for QTI incentives an expansion of an existing business in a rural community or an enterprise zone that results in a net increase in employment of less than 10 percent if the merits of the individual project or the specific circumstances in the community in relation to the project warrant the action. The recommendation must be transmitted in writing and the specific justification for the request must be explained.

Defines "rural community" as a county with a population of 75,000 or less; a county with a population of 100,000 or less that is contiguous to a county with a population of 75,000 or less, and a city within a county as described above. The bill specifies that the most recent official estimate is to be used in making a determination of county population. Amends s. 288.106, F.S.

Section 7. Creates the Rural Economic Development Initiative (REDI) within OTTED and provides its duties and responsibilities. REDI would be responsible for coordinating and focusing the efforts and resources of state and regional agencies on the problems which affect the fiscal, economic, and community viability of Florida's economically distressed rural communities, working with local governments, community-based organizations, and private organizations that have an interest in the growth and development of these communities to find ways to balance environmental and growth management issues with local needs.

REDI would review and evaluate the impact of statutes and rules on rural communities and would work to minimize any adverse impacts. REDI would facilitate better access to state resources by promoting direct access and referrals to appropriate state and regional agencies and statewide organizations. REDI would undertake outreach, capacity-building, and other advocacy efforts to improve conditions in rural communities. These activities may include sponsorship of conferences and achievement awards.

The following agencies and organizations would designate, no later than August 1, 1999, a high-level staff person and an alternate designee, to serve as the REDI representative for the agency or organization:

1. The Department of Community Affairs.

Enterprise Florida, Inc. and VISIT Florida, Inc. would establish criteria for reviewing grant applications. The criteria includes, but is not limited to, the degree of participation and commitment by the local community, and the application's consistency with local comprehensive plans or the application's proposal to ensure such consistency.

VI. AMENDMENTS OR COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE CHANGES:

On March 3, 1999, the Committee on Business Development and International Trade adopted two amendments to HB 571. The first added the Department of Education and Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS) to the organizations represented at the REDI Board. The second clarified that an organization in a rural area, or a regional organization representing at least one rural community for such economic development organization, may apply for a rural development grant.

On March 17, 1999, the Committee on Community Affairs adopted one amendment to HB 571. The amendment allowed heavy mining operations to utilize a development order under section 380.06 (15), Florida Statutes to increase the number of acres that can be mined without undergoing a development of regional impact review.

On April 16, 1999, the Committee on Transportation & Economic Development Appropriations adopted the following four amendments:

Amendment 1 - Adds clarifying language regarding land use plans and job creation in rural communities.

Amendment 2 - Directs the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission to assist in promoting nature-based recreation.

Amendment 3 - Removes an appropriation for the Rural Community Development Revolving Loan Fund. The preliminary conference report on the General Appropriation Act for fiscal year 1999-2000 contains a lump sum allocation of $1,600,000 for this program. The conference report also provides flexibility to the Executive Office of the Governor to modify the budget allocation to economic development programs through the budget amendment process provided in Chapter 216, Florida Statutes.

Amendment 4 - Adds "unincorporated, Federal enterprise community" to the list of rural communities eligible for the Rural Economic Development Initiative (REDI).
