B. PRESENT SITUATION:

The Hillsborough County Public Transportation Commission was created by the Florida Legislature in 1983, through special act. (Ch. 83-423, L.O.F.) To date, this act has been amended eight times, through Chapters 87-496, 88-493, 94-408, 95-490, 96-515, 98-451, 98-477, and 99-476, L.O.F.

The local legislative delegation staff summary indicates the following:

Approximately 18 months ago, the Public Transportation Commission began making headlines when it refused one applicant permits to operate basic life support ambulances in Hillsborough County and, thereafter, granted them to another applicant. These decisions were apparently the result of a lack of judicially reviewable standards within the text of the PTC's enabling legislation and its rules. Further, a substantial number of them have been cited for "explication" (i.e., they appear to be an invalid exercise of delegated legislative authority) in a review completed by the Joint Administrative Procedures Committee (JAPC). There is a pervasive appearance of lack of due process (common to areas in addition to hearings for public convenience and necessity), whether valid or not, to safeguard the protection of individual rights with an orderly proceeding that provides an opportunity to be heard to enforce and protect these rights.

As a result of the adverse publicity, Senator Jim Hargrett, then chair of the Delegation, requested that studies be completed by the Center for Urban Transportation Research at USF (CUTR), the Office of Program Policy Analysis and Government Accountability (OPPAGA), and JAPC. Thereafter, the Delegation chair (Representative Sandra Murman) appointed a PTC ad hoc study committee to review the reports, take public testimony, and make recommendations to the Delegation.

Senator Hargrett, as chair of the ad hoc committee, proposed two routes to resolution: (1) clarifying that the PTC is an independent special district and providing the tools necessary to achieve that end (i.e., primarily through the use of "pro forma" language, generally standard to independent special districts) or (2) repealing the legislation in favor of a county ordinance. Because there was a clear indication that the municipalities would very much like to "opt out" of any such ordinance and possibly create the same situation which first precipitated the enactment of the special act in 1983 (separate ordinances resulting in jurisdictional problems), the first option was selected. The proposed local bill is a product of that ad hoc committee.

C. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

This bill amends the Hillsborough County Public Transportation Commission Special Act and designates the Commission as an independent special district.

This bill expressly provides that the Commission cannot discriminate based on race, color, sex, religion, or national origin, and encourages the Commission to consider diversity in employment, contracts and appointments to the taxicab advisory council.

This bill requires the Commission to prepare a financial statement of revenues and expenditures, an itemized budget, a fee schedule, and accounting systems and procedures in conformity with general practice.

This bill requires the Commission to appoint a taxicab advisory council.

This bill provides that an injured party may appeal per the Florida Administrative Procedure Act.

This bill requires the Commission and the Board of County Commissioners to engage in a joint effort to agree on an appropriation to be paid by the Board to the Commission for a three year period, starting October 1, 2000.

This bill requires a public vehicle driver's license applicant to pay for the cost of a criminal background check.

This bill repeals a requirement that the Commission impose license fees on operating companies for public vehicles and for public vehicle driver's licenses.

C. OTHER COMMENTS:

House Bill 1627 is also referred to the House Committee on Community Affairs. This bill provides for the repeal of all performance auditing requirements currently imposed on the Hillsborough County Public Transportation Commission (PTC).

According to the Economic Impact Statement, this bill does contain a fiscal impact. Through Fiscal Year 1999-2000, the county has been paying about 15.7 percent of the Public Transportation Commission's expenses, although it is disputed as to whether it was funding the PTC in accordance with ch. 83-423, L.O.F., as amended.
