For any principle that received a "no" above, please explain:

The bill requires districts, schools, and teachers to add to their curriculum the history of the United States Constitution along with the contents and significance of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, the Emancipation Proclamation, George Washington's Farewell Address, and the content and history of the Constitution of the State Of Florida. The bill requires that this new instruction, and several items on the existing list of required instruction be provided in at least 2 grade levels during elementary school and 2 grade levels during high school. The State Board of Education is required to adopt rules to implement this provision.

B. PRESENT SITUATION:

Required Instruction

Section 233.061(1), F.S., requires each school district to provide courses in the following subject areas: reading and other language arts, mathematics, science, social studies, foreign languages, health and physical education, and the arts. Furthermore, 233.061(2), F.S., requires teaching the following:

- Declaration of Independence
- Arguments in support of a republican form of government
- United States Constitution and its relation to government structure
- Flag education, including proper display and salute
- Elements of civil governments
- History of the Holocaust
- History of African Americans
- Elementary principles of agriculture
- The effects of alcohol and narcotics upon the human body
- Kindness to animals
- The history of the state
- Conservation of natural resources
- Comprehensive health education
- The study of Hispanic contributions to the United States
- The study of women's contributions to the United States
- Additional materials, subjects, courses, or fields as prescribed by law or rule

The Florida Legislature has amended the above list several times. Past changes include:

- 1999 Requirement of Hispanic and women's contributions to the United States
- 1997 Requirement that civil government instruction include the primary functions and inter-relationships between various levels of government; inclusion of comprehensive health education; and removal of the specific requirement for teaching effects of alcohol and narcotics
- 1994 Requirement for instruction in history of African-Americans and of the Holocaust

Although the bill does not require new textbooks to incorporate these studies into the curriculum, publishers of textbooks do take into consideration required curriculums when they determine what to include in textbooks.

C. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

The bill adds to the list of the required instructional areas the history of the United States Constitution along with the contents and significance of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, the Emancipation Proclamation, George Washington's Farewell Address, and the content and history of the Constitution of the State Of Florida. This instruction is required to be provided in at least two grade levels in both elementary school and high school. The bill requires the State Board of Education to adopt rules according to the statutory guidelines giving rulemaking authority. The rules are to implement the provision of offering the following required instruction items in at least 2 grade levels in both elementary school and high school.

- Declaration of Independence
- Arguments in support of a republican form of government
- History and essentials of the United State Constitution and how it provides government structure
