I. SUMMARY:

In December 1998, NBC's news magazine show, Dateline, aired a story recounting an 18-month investigation conducted by the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) proving dog and cat fur is being sold in America as trim on coats, hats, gloves, decorative accessories, and toy stuffed animals.

HB 55 provides a first degree misdemeanor charge for any person who knowingly sells any garment containing dog or cat fur. A first degree misdemeanor charge is also provided for any person who knowingly sells or gives away the pelt of a dog or cat.

The bill provides a third degree felony charge for any person who knowingly engages in the business of a dealer or buyer in the pelts or furs of any dog or cat or to purchase such pelts or furs within the state. The bill also forbids any common carrier to knowingly ship any dog or cat furs or pelts.

HB 55 provides a third degree felony charge for any person killing a dog or cat with the sole intent of selling or giving away the pelt of the animal. The bill provides a first degree misdemeanor charge for any person who possesses, imports, sells, buys, gives away, or accepts any pelt of a dog or cat with the sole intent of selling or giving away the pelt.

And lastly, the bill provides a third degree felony charge for any person possessing, importing, selling, buying, giving away, or accepting any dog or cat with the sole intent of killing said animal for the purpose of selling the pelt of the animal.

This legislation has an insignificant fiscal impact.

B. PRESENT SITUATION:

In December 1998, NBC's news magazine show, Dateline, aired a story recounting an 18-month investigation conducted by the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) proving dog and cat fur is being sold in America as trim on coats, hats, gloves, decorative accessories, and toy stuffed animals.

As the investigation continued, Burlington Coat Factory (BCF) was identified as one of the retail chains carrying merchandise containing dog fur. The Texas supplier led BCF to believe the fur lining in the jackets was from coyotes. DNA testing later revealed the trim was canine. BCF immediately removed the jackets from stock.

In Washington, D.C., legislation has been introduced which will make it a federal offense to import dog and cat fur products or sell them in interstate commerce. It will also require labeling of fur species on all products regardless of price. The bill also contains tough enforcement provisions to ensure that there isn't just a ban of dog and cat fur on the books without it being enforceable.

California, Alaska, and Illinois currently have legislation prohibiting the sale of merchandise containing dog and cat fur or the pelts of said animals.

At this time, Florida has no laws regarding the sale of garments made of or containing dog or cat fur, the possession of dog or cat pelts, or the killing of dogs or cats for the sole purpose of selling or giving away the pelt.

C. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Sale of Garments Containing Dog and Cat Fur

HB 55 creates section 828.1231, F.S., which prohibits any person from knowingly selling or offering for sale in this state any garment containing dog or cat fur. This section also prohibits any person from knowingly selling or offering for sale or giving away the pelt of any dog or cat. Violations of these provisions constitute a misdemeanor of the first degree, punishable by up to one year in jail.

A second or subsequent conviction for a violation of these provisions constitutes a third degree felony, punishable by imprisonment not exceeding five years. The bill also provides for any law enforcement agency or humane officer as defined in s. 828.03, F.S., to institute proceedings in the appropriate circuit court to enforce compliance with the provisions of this section.

Dealing in the Business of Buying Pelts or Furs

HB 55 also creates section 828.123, F.S., which prohibits the killing of any dog or cat with the sole intent of selling or giving away the pelt. A violation of this provision is a felony of the third degree, punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000 or by both imprisonment and a fine.

Section 828.123, F.S., also prohibits any person from possessing, importing into the state, selling, buying, giving away, or accepting any pelt of a dog or cat with the sole intent of selling or giving away the pelt of said animal. This section prohibits the possession, importation into the state, selling, buying, giving away, or accepting of any dog or cat with the sole intent of killing said animal, or having said animal killed, for the purpose of selling or giving away the pelt of the animal. A violation of this provision is a felony of the third degree, punishable by a term of imprisonment not exceeding five years or by a fine of not more than $10,000 or by both imprisonment and a fine.

This section further prohibits any person from engaging in the business of dealing or buying the pelts or furs of any dog or cat in the state or to purchase such pelts or furs within the state.
