B. PRESENT SITUATION:

Established by s. 288.8175, F.S., linkage institutes assist in the development of economic and social ties between this state and foreign nations. This is achieved through the promotion of expanded public and private partnerships, increased bilateral commerce, student and faculty exchange, cultural exchange, and the enhancement of language training. Linkage institutes have ties to both the Department of State and the Department of Education, which has statutory oversight of the program.

Each institute must be governed by an agreement, approved by the Department of Education, between the State University System and the Community College System with the counterpart organization of higher education in the foreign country. Linkage institutes must have a public/private sector advisory committee. The advisory committee must be representative of the international education and commercial interests of the state and may have members who are native to the foreign country partner. Six members must be appointed by the Department of Education. One of the members must be an international educator. The presidents, or their designees, of the participating university and community college must also serve on the committee. An institute must report to the department regarding its program activities, expenditures, and policies.

Currently, there are eleven linkage institutes. The institutes are:

- (1) Florida-Brazil Institute (University of Florida and Miami-Dade Community College).
- (2) Florida-Costa Rica Institute (Florida State University and Valencia Community College).
- (3) Florida Caribbean Institute (Florida International University and Daytona Beach Community College).
- (4) Florida-Canada Institute (University of Central Florida and Palm Beach Junior College).
- (5) Florida-China Institute (University of West Florida, University of South Florida, and Brevard Community College).
- (6) Florida-Japan Institute (University of South Florida, University of West Florida, and St. Petersburg Community College).

(7) Florida-France Institute (New College of the University of South Florida, Miami-Dade Community College, and Florida State University).

(8) Florida-Israel Institute (Florida Atlantic University and Broward Community College).

(9) Florida-West Africa Institute (Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University, University of North Florida, and Florida Community College at Jacksonville).

(10) Florida-Eastern Europe Institute (University of Central Florida and Lake Sumter Community College).

(11) Florida-Mexico Institute (Florida International University and Polk Community College).

Each linkage institute is allowed to award twenty-five out-of-state tuition waivers. These waivers allow full-time students from the respective host countries to study at any of the state universities or community colleges. Selection criteria is chosen by the individual institute directors and must be approved by the Department of Education. Linkage institutes provide Florida students with an opportunity to study abroad. Program fees are to be paid to the state university or community college.

The Secretary of State is required by statute to submit a report to the Governor, the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives in any year in which departmental funds are used to bolster linkage institutes.

C. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

The bill transfers responsibility for linkage institutes, established in s. 288.8175, F.S., from the Department of Education to the Department of State. It clarifies that governing agreements, approved by the Department of State, are between the State University System, the Florida Community College System, and the counterpart organization in the foreign nation. Further, it requires the Department of State to submit a report to the Governor, the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives in each year in which that entity has provided funds for a linkage institute.
