I. Summary:

The legislation modifies current laws affecting the amount of accumulated leave time that may be used for terminal pay purposes by full-time employees of public school districts and community colleges who are not classified as instructional staff or educational support employees.

This bill substantially amends sections 231.40, 231.481, and 240.343 of the Florida Statutes.

II. Present Situation:

The staff of the Senate Education Committee conducted a 1999 interim study of leave and terminal pay provisions for employees of school boards and community college boards of trustees (Interim Project Report 00-34). Findings from the study were consistent with those of a similar study conducted in 1993: policies on compensated absences were creating long term financial liabilities for local education agencies and the state. As of June 30, 1998, there was a combined total liability of more than $2 billion for compensated absences payable in future years to employees of the state, school districts, and community colleges. A related finding indicated that the districts and colleges were continuing to extend to all employees the fairly generous sick leave policies that were originally intended to reduce absences of teachers and other instructional personnel. State policy makers have questioned the wisdom of this practice for the last several years.

School District Sick Leave

Section 231.40, F.S., requires district school boards to provide sick leave for their employees and sets a schedule for awarding sick leave hours. An employee may not earn more than one day of sick leave for each calendar month employed during the year. There is no statutory limit on the on the accumulation of sick leave.

Each school board may provide terminal pay for accumulated sick leave. If a board chooses to provide terminal pay benefits, the payments must follow the statutory formula set fourth in s. 231.40(3)(a) 4, F.S. The formula progressively increases the percentage of accumulated leave for which instructional and educational support employees receive pay, as each employee's years of service increase. District employees serving in other than an instructional or educational support position, and who were hired on or after July 1, 1995, may receive pay for one-fourth of all unused sick leave accrued on or after July 1, 1995, up to a maximum of 60 days. Board policies in effect on July 1, 1995, govern terminal pay for sick leave accumulated before that date.

Community College Sick Leave

Section 240.343, F.S., governs the accrual and payment of sick leave for community college employees. Each full-time community college employee earns one day of sick leave per month for each calendar month of service in each fiscal year, and the leave may be accumulated from year to year.

Each college board of trustees decides whether to provide terminal pay for accumulated sick leave when full-time instructional or educational support employees retire. If the board approves a terminal pay policy, the payments must follow the statutory schedule that increases as the years of service increase.

The law caps terminal sick leave payments for full-time college employees who are not members of the instructional staff or support employees, and who were hired by a college on or after July 1, 1995. Upon termination, those employees may be paid for one-fourth of all unused sick leave accrued on or after July 1, 1995, up to a maximum of 60 days pay. Terminal pay for sick leave accumulated prior to July 1, 1995, will be made according to board policies in effect on July 1, 1995.

School District Annual Leave

District school boards may provide annual leave to 12-month employees, including educational support employees (s. 231.434, F.S.). There is a great deal of variance among the districts in terms of the accrual rate for annual leave. Generally speaking, the accrual rate increases with the length of an employee's service in the district. The law also places no limit on the amount of annual leave district employees may accumulate, and the districts vary in the caps they place on employee leave accumulation. School boards are authorized to provide a lump-sum payment for accumulated annual leave to an employee at retirement or termination. There is no statutory limit on terminal payments for annual leave accumulated by district employees hired prior to July 1, 1995; however, payment for accumulated leave for employees hired after that date is limited to no more than 60 days.

Generally, an employee is considered to have a property right to any annual or sick leave time he or she may have accrued, and is entitled to payment for the time if it is required to be relinquished. Because of this, changes in employee leave policies are usually prospective and are made effective on a date certain.

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The legislation under consideration makes changes in the laws authorizing school boards and community college boards of trustees to provide terminal pay for accumulated sick leave to full-time personnel other than instructional and educational support employees.

Sections 231.40 and 240.343, F.S., are amended to limit the amount of unused sick leave that could be accumulated for terminal pay purposes after July 1, 2001, to no more than 60 days for full-time personnel other than instructional and educational support employees. The 60-day limit would not affect employee contracts entered into prior to July 1, 2001; however, if such a contract were renewed after the July 1st date, it would be considered a new contract for accumulated leave purposes. Leave accumulated prior to July 1, 2001, would be governed by board policies in effect on June 30, 2001.

A second change provides that full-time non-instructional employees of school boards and community colleges employed prior to July 1, 2001, would not be able to accumulate sick leave for terminal pay purposes after that date, until the employee's pre-July 1, 2001, accumulated sick leave total dips below 60 days.

The legislation also modifies s. 231.481, F.S., which authorizes school boards to provide terminal pay to employees for accrued vacation (annual) leave. After July 1, 2001, terminal pay for accumulated annual leave would be limited to 60 days. Terminal pay for annual or vacation leave accumulated prior to that date would be governed by board policies in effect on June 30, 2001.

IV. Constitutional Issues:A. Municipality/County Mandates Restrictions:

None.

B. Public Records/Open Meetings Issues:

None.

C. Trust Funds Restrictions:

None.

V. Economic Impact and Fiscal Note:A. Tax/Fee Issues:

None.

B. Private Sector Impact:C. Government Sector Impact:

As the provisions of the bill are implemented, school boards and community college boards of trustees should experience a reduction in the unfunded liability associated with large terminal payments for unused sick leave and, in the case of school boards, annual leave.

The proposed changes will bring leave provisions available to certain school board and community college employees more in line with those currently enjoyed by State Career Service personnel.
