BILL #: HB 17
RELATING TO: Retired Judges/Temporary Duty
SPONSOR(S): Representative Heyman
TIED BILL(S):

ORIGINATING COMMITTEE(S)/COUNCIL(S)/COMMITTEE(S) OF REFERENCE:

- (1) JUDICIAL OVERSIGHT
 - (2) COUNCIL FOR SMARTER GOVERNMENT

I. SUMMARY:

The chief justice of the Supreme Court of Florida can appoint retired justices or judges to serve in judicial positions on a temporary basis. Retired justices or judges are paid not less than $200 per day for their service. Currently, in order to be compensated for service as a retired justice or judge, the justice or judge must not have been defeated or have not failed to have been retained in the justice or judge's last judicial office and must not be engaged in the practice of law. HB 17 changes that requirement and permits any justice or judge who has served in a judicial office for a minimum of ten years, whether or not the justice or judge was defeated in the last judicial race, and meets other requirements as set forth by the Supreme Court of Florida to be compensated for service as a retired justice or judge. The bill eliminates that requirement that a retired justice or judge not be engaged in the practice of law and instead permits the Supreme Court of Florida to limit the law practice of retired justices or judges.

The bill takes effect on July 1, 2002.

B. PRESENT SITUATION:

Article 5, Section (2)(b), Florida Constitution and Florida Rule of Judicial Administration 2.030(a)(3)(A) permit the chief justice of the Supreme Court to temporarily assign retired justices or judges to any court which they are qualified to serve. Florida Rule of Judicial Administration 2.030(a)(3)(B) defines a retired judge as a judge who is not engaged in the practice of law and who has been a judicial officer of this state. Retired judges must comply with continuing judicial education requirements, including completion of 30 hours of approved judicial education programs every three years. See Fla.R.Jud.Admin. 2.150.

Section 25.073(1), Florida Statutes, defines retired justice or judge as a former justice or judge who is not engaged in the practice of law and who has not been defeated in seeking reelection to, or has not failed to be retained in seeking retention in his or her last judicial office. No person may serve more than 60 days on temporary duty during a year without the approval of the chief justice. See s. 25.073(2)(a), F.S.

Retired judges may receive compensation as set by law. See Fla.R.Jud.Admin. 2.030(a)(3)(A). Only persons who meet the qualifications set forth in section 25.073(1), Florida Statutes, may be compensated for service as retired justices or judges. Currently, compensation for retired justices or judges is set at not less than $200 per day. See s. 25.073(2)(a), F.S. According to the Office of the State Court Administrator, retired justices or judges are paid $300 per day for service. In addition, retired justices or judges are entitled to necessary travel expenses pursuant to section 25.073(2)(b), Florida Statutes.

Currently, the Code of Judicial Conduct prohibits retired justices or judges from practicing law or accepting any assignment in which the judge's present financial business dealings or other extra-judicial activities might be affected. A retired justice or judge is permitted to serve as a mediator and may be associated with mediation or alternative dispute resolution firms. A retired justice or judge is required to disclose any negotiations or agreements for the provision of mediation services between the judge and any parties or counsel on cases that the judge is assigned to adjudicate.

According to the Office of the State Court Administrator, a person wishing appointment as a retired justice or judge must submit an application to the Judicial Qualifications Commission. The Commission reviews the application and forwards it to the Supreme Court. The justices review the application and the clerk's office notifies the applicant if the application is accepted. If the application is accepted, the person becomes eligible for service and can be appointed to serve by the chief judge of the district or circuit as needed.

The Supreme Court of Florida has appointed a committee to investigate and report on the use of senior judges. The 11 member committee is required to submit a report to the court no later than February 1, 2002. See In re: Committee on Appointment and Assignment of Senior Judges, Administrative Order No. AOSC01-25 (Fla. June 6, 2001). According to the Florida Bar News, October 1, 2001 issue, the committee will make recommendations regarding whether there is a need for a system of certifying senior judges. If the committee finds that such a need exists, the court has asked for recommendations on how to create such a system. In addition, the court is seeking information on how to best use senior judges.

C. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

The bill would amend section 25.073, Florida Statutes, and alter the requirements for compensating retired justices or judges for their service. Under the bill, in order to be compensated for service as a retired justice or judge, the justice or judge must have served in a judicial office and meet the criteria set forth by the Supreme Court of Florida. After July 1, 2002, all persons eligible and approved for temporary duty must have served in a judicial office for a minimum of ten years. This change would permit judges with more than 10 years of experience to be compensated for serving as a retired justice or judge even if that justice or judge was defeated or failed to be retained in his or her last election campaign.

The bill eliminates the requirement that a retired justice or judge not be engaged in the practice of law and instead permits the retired justice or judge to practice law as limited by the Supreme Court of Florida. Under current court rules, a person cannot serve as a retired justice or judge if the person is engaged in the practice of law. See Fla.R.Jud.Admin. 2.030(3)(B). While the Supreme Court of Florida could amend the court rules to permit a person to engage in the practice of law and serve as a retired justice or judge, the person could not be compensated for such service under current law. The bill would remove the requirement that a person not be engaged in the practice of law in order to be compensated for service as a retired judge.

The Office of the State Court Administrator (OSCA) states that the bill will have no fiscal impact since it does not change the compensation rate for retired justices or judges. According to information collected by OSCA, the average justice or judge serves 18 years. However, there are currently 23 persons serving as retired justices or judges who have not served for ten years in a judicial office.

The bill would be effective July 1, 2002.
