BILL #: HB 465
RELATING TO: Military Children/Residency/Tuition
SPONSOR(S): Representative(s) Baxley
TIED BILL(S): None

I. SUMMARY:

HB 465 provides that dependent children of active duty members of the Armed Services of the United States attending a public community college or university within 50 miles of the military establishment where they are stationed, if such military establishment is within a county contiguous to Florida, be treated as residents for tuition purposes. The bill provides for consistency in the treatment of dependent children among active duty members of the Armed Services who are given resident status for tuition purposes.

Current law includes the following categories of students among those that must be classified as a "resident for tuition purposes":

- Active duty members of the Armed Services of the United States residing or stationed in this state, their spouses, and dependent children.
- Active duty members of the Armed Services of the United States and their spouses attending a public community college or university within 50 miles of the military establishment where they are stationed, if such military establishment is within a county contiguous to Florida.
- Active duty members of the Canadian military residing or stationed in this state under the North American Air Defense (NORAD) agreement, and their spouses and dependent children, attending a public community college or university within 50 miles of the military establishment where they are stationed.

In two of the three categories where spouses of the primary beneficiary are permitted to obtain resident status for tuition purposes, dependent children are also given resident status. This is not currently the case for dependent children of an active duty member of the Armed Services attending a public community college or state university within 50 miles of the base where the active duty member is stationed, if the military establishment is within a county contiguous to Florida.

The fiscal impact is expected to be minimal. An estimated number of individuals that would be eligible for in-state tuition under this provision is not known. There is currently only one military base in a county contiguous to Florida and within 50 miles of a public community college or state university.

The effective date of the bill is July 1, 2002.

B. PRESENT SITUATION:

Section 240.1201, F.S., provides that students must be classified as residents or nonresidents for the purpose of assessing tuition fees in state universities and public community colleges. A student classified as a "resident for tuition purposes" qualifies for the in-state tuition rate. Section 240.1201, F.S., establishes general residency requirements and establishes separate categories of persons who must be classified as a "resident for tuition purposes". Section 240.1201(10), F.S., provides that the following categories of students must be classified as a "resident for tuition purposes":

- Active duty members of the Armed Services of the United States residing or stationed in this state, their spouses, and dependent children.
- Active duty members of the Armed Services of the United States and their spouses attending a public community college or university within 50 miles of the military establishment where they are stationed, if such military establishment is within a county contiguous to Florida.
- Active duty members of the Canadian military residing or stationed in this state under the North American Air Defense (NORAD) agreement, and their spouses and dependent children, attending a public community college or university within 50 miles of the military establishment where they are stationed.
- United States citizens living on the Isthmus of Panama, who have completed 12 consecutive months of college work at the Florida State University Panama Canal Branch, and their spouses and dependent children.
- Full-time instructional and administrative personnel employed by state public schools, community colleges, and institutions of higher education, as defined in s. 228.041, F.S, and their spouses and dependent children.
- Students from Latin America and the Caribbean who receive scholarships from the federal or state government. Any student classified pursuant to this paragraph must attend, on a full-time basis, a Florida institution of higher education.

- Southern Regional Education Board's Academic Common Market graduate students attending Florida's state universities.
- Full-time employees of state agencies or political subdivisions of the state when the student fees are paid by the state agency or political subdivision for the purpose of job-related law enforcement or corrections training.
- McKnight Doctoral Fellows and Finalists who are United States citizens.
- United States citizens living outside the United States who are teaching at a Department of Defense Dependent School or in an American International School and who enroll in a Board of Regents-approved graduate level education program which leads to a Florida teaching certificate.

In two of the three categories where spouses of the primary beneficiary are permitted to obtain resident status for tuition purposes, dependent children are also given resident status. This is not currently the case for dependent children of an active duty member of the Armed Services attending a public community college or state university within 50 miles of the base where the active duty member is stationed, if the military establishment is within a county contiguous to Florida.

A residency sub-group of the Articulation Coordinating Committee recommends that dependent children of active duty members of the Armed Services of the United States attending a public community college or university within 50 miles of the military establishment where they are stationed, if such military establishment is within a county contiguous to Florida, be treated as residents for tuition purposes. The group recommends that the law be amended to make the treatment of dependent children among the various categories consistent.

C. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

The bill provides that dependent children of active duty members of the Armed Services of the United States attending a public community college or university within 50 miles of the military establishment where they are stationed, if such military establishment is within a county contiguous to Florida, be treated as residents for tuition purposes.

The bill provides for consistency in the treatment of dependent children among categories of active duty members of the Armed Services who are given resident status for tuition purposes.
