SUMMARY ANALYSIS

This bill expands the boundaries of the Lake Worth Drainage District in Palm Beach County.

The bill amends existing special act to provide that the provisions with respect to the liability of the Lake Worth Drainage District to persons using the district lands, rights-of-way, works, or easements for authorized, permitted, or licensed activities or facilities, or for outdoor recreational purposes, control.

The bill provides that when the Lake Worth Drainage District permits or licenses activities or facilities, that the district is not liable for personal injury or damages caused by the negligent, willful, or intentional acts of a permittee or their invitee.

The bill provides that the LWDD incur no "duty of care toward a person who goes onto those lands ..." by reason of a LWDD authorization. Therefore, without a duty of care, there can be no case of negligence made against the LWDD for issuance of a permit or authorization to use district property.

The bill provides that the Lake Worth Drainage District is not relieved of any liability arising out of the acts or omissions of its officers, employees, or agents that would otherwise exist for negligent, deliberate, willful, or malicious injuries to a person or property as provided by law. Also, provides that any such liability is subject to s. 768.28, F.S.

The bill does not appear to have an impact on local or state budgets.

B. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

This bill amends the charter of the Lake Worth Drainage District (LWDD).

This bill addresses two issues. The first issue relates to expansion of the LWDD’s boundary. The second issue relates to a waiver of liability for the benefit of the LWDD.

Expansion of LWDD’s Boundaries – Issue 1

This bill provides for an expansion of the LWDD’s boundaries. According to counsel for the district, the boundary expansion is at the request of a landowner that desires to be included into the LWDD.¹

Waiver of Liability- Issue 2

This bill also provides a liability waiver for the benefit of the LWDD with respect to any persons using the district’s lands, rights-of-ways, works, or easements for authorized, permitted, or licensed activities or facilities, or outdoor recreational purposes.

The bill creates a new section 23 of the LWDD charter, which provides that the section controls with respect to the liability of the LWDD, to persons using the district lands, rights-of-way, works, or easements for authorized, permitted, or licensed activities or facilities, or outdoor recreational purposes.

The bill provides that when the LWDD permits or licenses activities or facilities, that the district is not liable for personal injury or damages caused by the negligent, willful, or intentional acts of a permittee or their invitee.

This bill provides that the LWDD incur no “duty of care toward a person who goes onto those lands ...” by reason of a LWDD authorization. Therefore, without a duty of care, there can be no case of negligence made against the LWDD for issuance of a permit or authorization to use district property.

The bill provides that the LWDD is not relieved of any liability arising out of the acts or omissions of its officers, employees, or agents that would otherwise exist for negligent, deliberate, willful, or malicious injuries to a person or property as provided by law. Also, provides that any such liability is subject to s. 768.28, F.S.

The bill defines the term “outdoor recreational purposes” to include such activities as horseback riding, hunting, fishing, bicycling, swimming, boating, camping, picnicking, hiking, pleasure driving, nature study, waterskiing, motorcycling, and visiting historical, archeological, scenic, or scientific sites.

Background – Issue 2

The Lake Worth Drainage District (LWDD), located in Palm Beach County, is a district created pursuant to ch. 298, F.S.,² comprises some 511 miles of canals, 20 major water control structures and numerous minor structures that provide flood protection to over 700,000 residents, 20,000 acres of agricultural land and 120,000 acres of urban development.³ The LWDD is the largest water control district in the state and was originally established to provide flood control to promote settlement and small scale agricultural enterprises in what was then a sparsely populated rural southern Palm Beach County.⁴

The LWDD’s website indicates that “all projects within the district’s boundaries, regardless of size or location, require review and permitting by the LWDD.”⁵ Historically, the LWDD issued permits to individuals living adjacent to the district’s channels for such things as boat docks, fences, boat davits, and similar structures. Also, historically, the LWDD required permittees to name the district as an Additional Insured on their insurance policies. At some time after Hurricane Andrew, reportedly these insurance carriers discontinued the practice of allowing the district to be named as an Additional Insured. The LWDD sought legislation (HB 1065) during the 2002 Legislative Session to authorize a more complete liability waiver than the one currently sought in HB 773 and this bill. HB 1065 (2002) died in the Committee on Local Government & Veteran Affairs. The LWDD advises that it has ceased issuing permits in light of the permittees’ inability to secure insurance that names the district as an Additional Insured.⁶

Current Law (Sovereign Immunity) – Issue 2

Sovereign immunity is a doctrine that prohibits suits against the government without the government’s consent. The State Constitution addresses sovereign immunity in s. 13, Art. X. This provision allows the state to waive its immunity through an enactment of general law. Sovereign immunity extends to all subdivisions of the state.

The 1973 Legislature enacted s. 768.28, F.S. This section allows individuals to sue the state government, subdivisions of the state, and municipalities under circumstances where a private person “would be liable to the claimant, in accordance with general laws of the state...”

Under current law, water control districts are subject to the same waiver of sovereign immunity for tort actions provided for the state, its agencies or subdivisions.⁷ The Legislature has expressly waived sovereign immunity in tort actions for claims against its agencies and subdivisions, resulting from a negligent or wrongful act or omission of an employee acting within the scope of employment, but established limits on the amount of liability. A claim or judgment by any one person may not exceed $100,000, and may not exceed $200,000 paid by the state or its agencies or subdivisions for claims arising out of the same incident or occurrence.

Section 1.01(8), F.S., defines “political subdivision” as “counties, cities, towns, villages, special tax school districts, special road and bridge districts, bridge districts, and all other districts in this state.” The term “other districts” includes water management districts and water control districts.

Claims Bills – Issue 2

A claim bill, sometime called a relief act, is a bill that compensates a particular individual or entity for injuries or losses occasioned by the negligence or error of a public officer or agency. It is a means by which an injured party may recover damages even though the public officer or agency involved may be immune from suit. Majority approval in both houses of the Legislature is required for passage.

There are two kinds of claims bills – general and local. General bills are paid out of the state’s general appropriations. Local bills are paid by local dollars. Once a claim bill has been approved by the Legislature and signed by the Governor it has the effect of law.

In 1995, a claims bill was filed seeking $909,000 from the Loxahatchee Groves Water Control and Management District as a result of personal injuries.⁸

Negligence – Duty to Care – Issue 2

One of the essential or fundamental elements or threshold elements of actionable negligence is the existence of a duty owed by the person charged with negligence to the person injured. There must be some relation or nexus from which flows a legal duty, express or implied, on the part of the defendant toward the particular person injured. Without the element of such a duty, there is no cause of action for negligence.

This bill provides, in s. 23(2) of the charter that the LWDD incur no “duty of care toward a person who goes onto those lands ...” by reason of a LWDD authorization. Therefore, without a duty of care, there can be no case of negligence made against the LWDD for issuance of a permit or authorization to use district property.

Water Control Districts – Generally

History of Water Control Districts

As early as the 1830s, the Legislature passed special acts authorizing landowners to construct drainage ditches across adjacent lands for the discharge of excess water. Following the passage of several special acts creating these districts, the Legislature passed the state’s first general drainage law, the General Drainage Act of 1913. The purpose of this Act was to establish that all drainage districts would be created by circuit court decree, and to provide general law provisions governing the operation of these districts.

Between 1913 and 1972, the General Drainage Act remained virtually unchanged. In 1972 and 1979, the Act was amended to change the name of the entities from drainage districts, to water management districts, and finally to water control districts. Although the Legislature did not enact a major reform of the Act in either year, the 1979 amendment repeal provisions in the Act that authorized the creation of water control districts by circuit court decree.

Current Law

Chapter 298, F.S., contains the provisions governing the creation and operation of water control districts.

A water control district can be created as a dependant, or an independent special district, and this decision determines the powers and authority of the special district. Section 298.01, F.S., restricts the creation of independent water control districts to special acts of the Legislature, and dependant water control districts to the provisions of section 125.01, F.S. Districts created by circuit court decree prior to July 1, 1980, are authorized to operate under the authority provided by chapter 298, Florida Statutes.

Revenue Sources

The primary funding source for water control district activities is special assessments. Special assessments are a home rule revenue source that may be used by a local government to fund local improvements or essential services. In order to be valid, special assessments must meet legal requirements as articulated in Florida case law. The greatest challenge to a valid special assessment is its classification as a tax by the courts.

As established by case law, two requirements exist for the imposition of a valid special assessment. First, the property assessed must derive a special benefit from the improvement or service provided. Second, the assessment must be fairly and reasonably apportioned among the properties that receive the special benefit. If a local government's special assessment ordinance withstands these two legal requirements, the assessment is not considered a tax.

The special benefit and fair apportionment tests must be incorporated into the assessment rate structure. The development of an assessment rate structure involves determining the cost to be apportioned, allocating program costs into program components, and apportioning these costs to each eligible parcel based upon factors such as the property use, and the parcel's physical characteristics.

A special assessment may provide funding for capital expenditures, or the operational costs of services, provided that the property subject to the assessment derives a special benefit from the improvement or service. The courts have upheld a number of assessed services and improvements, such as: garbage disposal, sewer improvements, fire protection, fire and rescue services, street improvements, parking facilities, downtown redevelopment, storm-water management services, and water and sewer line extensions.

The districts are governing by a board of supervisors that is authorized to issue bonds, not to exceed 90 percent of the total amount of special assessments levied.

Limitation on Special Acts

Section 11(a)(21), Article III, State Constitution, provides that no special law, or general law of local application, shall be enacted that pertains to any subject prohibited by a general law passed by a three-fifths vote of the membership of each house. However, a general law may be amended or repealed by a like vote.

Section 298.76, F.S., is an example of a general law passed by a three-fifths vote of the membership of each house. The statute provides that there shall be no special law, or general law of local application, granting additional authority, powers, rights, or privileges to any water control district formed pursuant to ch. 298, F.S.

Section 298.76 F.S., does not prohibit special or local legislation that:

- (a) Amends an existing special act that provides for the levy of an annual maintenance tax of a district;
- (b) Extends the corporate life of a district;
- (c) Consolidates adjacent districts; or
- (d) Authorizes the construction or maintenance of roads for agricultural purposes as outlined in this chapter.

Section 298.76 F.S., authorizes special or local legislation that:

- (a) Changes the method of voting for a board of supervisors for any water control district;
- (b) Provides a change in the term of office of the board of supervisors, and changes the qualifications of the board of supervisors of any water control district; and
- (c) Changes the governing authority or governing board of any water control district.

Finally, s. 298.76, F.S., provides that any special or local laws enacted by the Legislature pertaining to any water control district shall prevail as to that district, and shall have the same force and effect as though it had been a part of ch. 298, F.S., at the time the district was created, and organized.

III. COMMENTS

A. CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUES:

Access to Courts

The Legislature can only eliminate a remedy for injury or damages if there is a valid public purpose coupled with a reasonable alternative, or an overriding public necessity. The question then arises whether there is a historic remedy for persons sustaining injury or damage on property owned by LWDD.

If there are any historic remedies available to an individual who suffers a personal injury or damage while engaging, for instance in an activity for "outdoor recreational purposes," then the Legislature may not eliminate that remedy unless there is a valid public purpose coupled with a reasonable alternative, or an overriding public necessity.

Since the LWDD is a governmental entity, it appears that they may have the duty to warn or correct a known danger created by the government.⁹ A duty to warn arises with respect to a known hazard so serious and so inconspicuous to a foreseeable plaintiff that it virtually constitutes a trap.¹⁰ If the danger is so open, notorious, and readily apparent to the public, there is no duty to warn.¹¹ Thus, if a court determines that there is a historic legal remedy that is being eliminated by the Legislature, the court may determine that there is an infringement on the right of access to courts.
