(q) "Direct supervision" means supervision in a hospital by an anesthesiologist who is present in the same room as the anesthesiologist assistant, or in an immediately adjacent room or hallway, such that the supervising anesthesiologist is able to monitor the ongoing anesthetic and be immediately available to provide assistance and direction while anesthesia services are being performed. Direct supervision requires the supervising anesthesiologist to personally participate in the most demanding procedures in the anesthesia plan, including induction and emergence.
