I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. HOUSE PRINCIPLES ANALYSIS:

Provide limited government—The bill creates in law two new entities: the Commission on Efficient Government and the Center for Efficient Government. The bill codifies two similar entities that have been operating for the past year under the Governor’s executive order 04-45: the Center for Efficient Government and its oversight board. The bill provides for the repeal of the Commission on Efficient Government and the Center for Efficient Government on July 1, 2010, unless re-enacted by the Legislature prior to that date. The bill also authorizes 9 FTE to staff the Center. In addition, the bill repeals law authorizing another entity, the Council on Competitive Government. The discussion below provides details.

B. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Present situation

Since the 1950’s, Florida has statutorily required competitive bidding in state procurement. Through the years, the Legislature has amended the requirements numerous times with control over the procurement process passing from the State Purchasing Commission to the Department of General Services, now known as the Department of Management Services (DMS).

Currently, part I of ch. 287, F.S., sets forth the requirements for the procurement of commodities and contractual services by state agencies. The law tasks DMS, as the centralized authority, with overseeing the implementation of competitive bidding requirements and with creating uniform rules for procurement. The state purchasing process is also partly decentralized. Except in the cases where state term contracts exist, agencies may buy commodities and contractual services themselves.

As the state has increasingly shifted to external provision of services,¹ it has occasionally experienced challenges in ensuring that the desired results are achieved. Recent studies and audits have suggested that the state’s procurement of large, complex initiatives could be improved.

- The Governor’s Chief Inspector General released an audit report in June 2003 entitled “A Road Map to Excellence in Contracting.” It found problems with procurement, particularly with performance monitoring, procurement methodologies, and contract writing. The report suggested a variety of solutions, including revising ch. 287, F.S., improving leadership by the DMS, instating a negotiations training program, and facilitating communication among agency procurement staff.
- In January 2004, the Office of Program Policy Analysis and Government Accountability (OPPAGA) released a report entitled “The Legislature Could Strengthen State’s Privatization² Accountability Requirements.” OPPAGA concurred with the Chief Inspector General’s June 2003 findings and suggested Legislative actions including mandating the use of business cases, strengthening requirements for performance contracting, and strengthening oversight of agency privatization initiatives.
- Various reports by the Auditor General identified problems. For example:
 - In the MyFloridaAlliance initiative of the State Technology Office (STO) involving outsourcing multiple functions, the STO had not conducted full feasibility studies, cost analyses, or risk assessments to determine if the outsourcing of these functions would provide the best value to the state. Additionally, the information provided in the solicitation documents did not provide sufficient detail about STO operations, services, and needs to allow for a responsible vendor to adequately respond to the listed key initiatives. The contracts with Accenture and BearingPoint lacked certain provisions to adequately protect state resources.³ The STO subsequently cancelled the contracts.

¹ According to the Center for Efficient Government, there have been at least 138 outsourcing projects undertaken between January 1999 and June 2004.

² OPPAGA uses “privatization” as a generic term encompassing such techniques and activities as contracting out, outsourcing, and public-private partnerships.

- In the Department of Management Services' procurement of the MyFloridaMarketplace e-procurement system, the department planning process did not include timely completion of a cost-benefit or risk analysis.⁴
- In the Department of Business and Professional Regulation's On-line Licensing and Call Center Services procurement, the department did not perform a feasibility study for the procurement's Application Management Services component.⁵ Additionally, the contract, which is funded through a shared-savings model, failed to provide specifics about how to define and share savings.⁶

The Governor entered an executive order on March 11, 2004, creating the Center for Efficient Government (Center) within the DMS. The executive order stated that the Center was "to be the enterprise wide gateway for best business practices in order to improve the way state agencies deliver services to Florida's citizens." The order required the Center to:

- Establish a five-member oversight panel made up of agency heads;
- Create a centralized, multi-stage, gate process for the review, evaluation, and approval of agency outsourcing⁷ initiatives;
- Provide documentation at the completion of each stage to the Legislature prior to initiation of the next stage;
- Review past outsourcing projects for best business practices and existing outsourcing plans to ensure agency compliance with center standards;
- Maintain a database with information about initiatives being performed by contractors that includes a description of the work being performed, applicable performance measures, and contractor and subcontractor identification; and
- Implement a program to transition impacted state employees.⁸

Pursuant to the Governor's order, the Center began its operations in April 2004. The executive order states that it is to be in existence until January 3, 2007.

The Center's policies require all agency outsourcing projects to undergo a sequential review and validation process, referred to as the "Gate Process." The oversight board, however, only reviews and validates projects estimated to be valued at more than $10 million per fiscal year and enterprise-wide projects that are proposed by the center. As an agency completes each stage, the oversight board is to review the agency's progress and determine whether to validate that progress so that the agency may continue to the next stage. However, the board has no authority to accept or deny a project, or the documentation provided by an agency.

Proposed changes

The bill creates mechanisms to improve the state's procurement. The bill:

- Provides criteria that procurements of contractual services must meet. They must not be inherently governmental, as defined in the bill, and must result in either cost savings while maintaining services' quality or increase services' quality at the same or lower cost.
- Provides a formal review process for certain procurements by:
 - Creating a Commission on Efficient Government (Commission) in DMS to review and approve the procurements at key decision points using a "centralized gate process." The bill specifies the Commission's membership as three agency heads and four private sector individuals appointed by the Governor.
 - Requiring certain contractual services procurements to pass through the gate process, including those costing $10 million and above annually; those requiring budgetary changes; and those with unusual funding, such as from fees or shared-savings. The bill requires procurements by agencies headed by the Attorney General, Chief Financial Officer, or Commissioner of Agriculture to pass through the centralized gate process but provides that the agency head, not the Commission on Efficient Government, will approve, withhold approval, or deny approval of procurements.
 - Requiring the Commission to approve by a unanimous vote for a procurement to move to the next gate.
 - Requiring the Commission to give the Legislature business cases and supporting documents 14 days before a Commission meeting for information purposes.
 - Requiring the Commission to provide the Legislature and the Governor with a quarterly report of the Commission's actions and of the Center's activities.
- Creates a Center for Efficient Government, provides for its staff, and requires it to support the Commission in its review and agencies in planning for and implementing certain procurements.
- Requires that business cases be completed that include specific requirements, such as qualitative and quantitative descriptions of agencies' current performance, descriptions and analyses of options for service provision, and detailed cost-benefit analyses.
- Requires solicitations to contain certain information to ensure that prospective contractors are fully informed of the state's needs.
- Requires contracts to include certain provisions, such as specifics about how contractors will be evaluated and paid and how public records law requirements will be met.
- Requires an Auditor General review of any agency entering into a contract without following the provisions of this bill, if required, and allows for Legislative action to place budget into mandatory reserve.
- Provides an appropriation of $1,023,554 and authorizes 9 positions for the Center for Efficient Government.
