I. Summary:

Senate Bill 1996 imposes a series of safeguards on the initiative petition process. The bill attempts to closely regulate the petition verification process, to require that additional information be provided to a voter who signs a petition, and to regulate petition circulators, in particular paid circulators, primarily by requiring greater disclosure on the part of the circulators. The bill also authorizes additional criminal sanctions against people who abuse the petition process, either through fraud and misrepresentation, or through the misuse of signed petitions or voter registrations.

The bill provides an effective date.

The bill amends sections 99.097, 100.371, 101.161, 101.62, 104.012, 104.185, and 104.42, Florida Statutes, and creates section 100.372, Florida Statutes.

II. Present Situation:

The Constitution of the State of Florida provides for constitutional amendment by initiative. The constitution states that this power may be invoked by "filing with the custodian of state records a petition containing a copy of the proposed revision or amendment, signed by a number of electors in each of one half of the congressional districts of the state, and of the state as a whole, equal to eight percent of the votes cast in the each of such districts respectively and in the state as a whole in the last preceding election in which presidential electors were chosen.”<sup>1</sup>

Currently, under Florida law, constitutional initiative petitions are verified by supervisors of elections on a name-by-name, signature-by-signature basis, pursuant to the opinion of the First District Court of Appeal in 1978.<sup>2</sup> Supervisors are paid in advance the sum of 10 cents for each signature checked or the actual cost of checking such signatures, whichever is less. The person or organization collecting the petitions is responsible for paying this fee.<sup>3</sup>

Initiative sponsors are required to register as political committees, and are required to receive approval from the Secretary of State for the petition form used to obtain initiative signatures. Constitutional amendments proposed by initiative are placed on the ballot for the general election occurring in excess of 90 days from the certification of ballot position by the Secretary of State. The Secretary issues a certification after receiving sufficient verification certificates from the supervisors of elections. The supervisors are required to promptly verify signatures submitted by sponsors, and upon completion of verification of the signatures, the supervisors are required to execute a verification certificate indicating the total number of signatures checked, the number valid, and the distribution by congressional district.<sup>4</sup>

Certain criminal sanctions exist with regard to the voter registration and petition process. Paying a person to register to vote, paying someone to solicit voter registrations based upon the number of registrations obtained, and altering a voter registration application are all third degree felonies.<sup>5</sup> Signing a petition for a particular issue more than once, or signing another person’s name, or a fictitious name, to a petition, is a first degree misdemeanor.<sup>6</sup> Supervisors of elections are currently authorized to investigate fraudulent registrations and illegal voting, and may report their findings to the state attorney or the Florida Elections Commission.<sup>7</sup>

During the 2004 election cycle, numerous stories appeared in newspapers throughout the state of Florida concerning alleged petition fraud. Two petition gatherers were arrested in Santa Rosa County for over 40 counts each of uttering a forged document.<sup>8</sup> Several other elections supervisors found petitions signed with the names of dead voters.<sup>9</sup>

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement issued a press release in October of 2004 indicating that it had received numerous complaints relating to voting irregularities regarding voter fraud, and had initiated several investigations. While the FDLE did not reveal details of the investigations, it did say the investigations focused on the following conduct:

“In some cases, persons who believed they were signing petitions later found out that their signatures or possible forged signatures were used to complete a fraudulent voter registration. In other instances, it appears that workers hired to obtain legitimate voter registrations filled in the information on the registration forms that should have been completed by the registrants. On several occasions, workers appear to have signed multiple voter registrations themselves using information obtained during the registration drive. In many of the situations complained about, the workers were being paid on the basis of each registration form submitted.”<sup>10</sup>

The FDLE said it had created regional elections task forces to address the issue in a statewide manner.

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

Section 1.

Establishes that the name of the act is the “Petition Fraud and Voter Protection Act.”

Section 2. Verification of Signatures on Petitions. [amending subsections (1), (3), and (4) of 99.097, F.S., and creating subsection (6) in 99.097, F.S.]

- a. Codifies the current requirement that petitions to secure ballot placement for an issue, and the newly created petition revocations, must be verified by a name-by-name, signature-by-signature check of the number of valid signatures on the petitions.
- b. Prohibits supervisors of elections from counting signatures on petitions which do not satisfy all relevant provisions of the election code.
- c. Prohibits a person or organization that submits petitions to secure ballot placement for an issue, and that files a certification of undue burden, from providing compensation to any paid petition circulator before paying all supervisors for checking signatures or before reimbursing the General Revenue Fund for such costs. If such a person or organization provides compensation to a paid petition circulator before the date on which the person or organization pays all supervisors or reimburses the General Revenue Fund, then all signatures collected by the petition circulator who received payment will be invalid and not count toward the number of signatures required for ballot placement.
- d. Provides a political committee or any elector the opportunity to contest the proper verification of a signature on a petition, i.e., whether the supervisor of elections performed a name-by-name, signature-by-signature check of the number of valid signatures on the petitions, in circuit court. Any contest of the verification of signatures must be filed within 30 days after the date the verified signature was certified to the Secretary of State. The contestant must demonstrate that one or more petitions were improperly verified; any signatures shown to be improperly verified may not be counted toward the number of valid signatures required for ballot placement. If the contestant demonstrates that, due to improper verification, there was an insufficient number of valid signatures to qualify an issue for ballot placement, but the Secretary of State has already issued a certificate of ballot position, then the issue shall be removed from the ballot, or if this is impractical, than any votes cast for or against the issue may not be counted and shall be invalid.

Section 3. Initiatives; procedure for placement on ballot. [amending 100.371, F.S.]

- a. Provides that the Secretary of State must issue the certification of ballot position no later than February 1 of the year in which the general election is to be held.
- b. Provides that every signature on a petition must be dated by the elector when made.
- c. Requires that the contents of a petition form be limited to those items required by statute or rule.

  6. The elector must accurately record on the form whether the elector was presented with the petition form for signature by a petition circulator, and if so, the petition form must comply with the provisions of section 4, discussed below.
- g. Provides that an elector has the right to submit his or her signed form to the sponsor of the initiative amendment, by mail or otherwise, at an address listed on the form for this purpose.

A revocation form must be submitted with the appropriate supervisor of elections no later than January 1 of the year of the general election in which the initiative amendment is certified for ballot position. The supervisor of elections is required to promptly verify the signature on the revocation form and process the revocation upon payment of 10 cents per signature, or the actual cost, whichever is less.

Section 4. Regulation of initiative petition circulators. [creating 100.372, F.S.]

IV. Constitutional Issues:*A. Municipality/County Mandates Restrictions:

None.

B. Public Records/Open Meetings Issues:

None.

C. Trust Funds Restrictions:

None.

D. Other Constitutional Issues:

In Buckley v. American Constitutional Law Foundation, Inc., 525 U.S. 182 (1999), the United States Supreme Court approved the requirement that petition circulators submit affidavits attesting to certain personal contact information.

The Court appeared to endorse the practice of requiring a “large, plain-English notice alerting potential signers of petitions to the law’s requirements,”<sup>11</sup> as well as criminalizing petition signature forgery, and requiring that a petition is “void if a circulator has violated any provision of the laws governing circulation.”<sup>12</sup>

The Court did not reach the question of whether it was unconstitutional to require circulators to be eligible to vote or residents of the state, though it did not appear adverse to the proposition. The Court also did not rule on the constitutionality of requiring circulators to wear badges that indicate whether the circulator is paid or a volunteer. It did say that, absent sufficient cause, requiring circulators to wear badges displaying their names was unconstitutional.

The Court has not encountered, nor addressed, the issue of requiring a paid petition circulator to reveal, on an individual basis, his or her rate of compensation, though it did opine that the public listing of a petition circulator’s income from the circulation of petitions fails exacting scrutiny.

V. Economic Impact and Fiscal Note:*A. Tax/Fee Issues:
