I. Summary:

This bill permits district school superintendents to authorize administrative personnel to extend participation in the Deferred Retirement Option Program (DROP) program an additional 36 months, beyond the current 60-month maximum authorized.

This bill substantially amends section 121.091 of the Florida Statutes.

II. Present Situation:

Florida Retirement System and the Deferred Retirement Option Program

Chapter 121, F.S., contains the Florida Retirement System Act for specified public employees.¹ A member of the Florida Retirement System (FRS) is not eligible to receive benefits until terminating employment or starting participation in the Deferred Retirement Option Program (DROP).² Eligibility for participation in DROP includes certain active:

- Florida Retirement System members in regularly established positions;
- Teacher's Retirement System members; or
- State and County Officers' and Employees' Retirement System members.³

The DROP program authorizes eligible members of the FRS to elect to defer retirement benefits to continue employment with an FRS employer. The benefit of DROP is that deferred monthly benefits accrue in the System Trust Fund on behalf of the participant plus compounded interest, for the fixed period of DROP participation. Upon termination, the participant receives total DROP benefits in addition to beginning to receive original normal retirement benefits. Members entering DROP are permitted to pre-select their DROP end date, or final retirement date. All state employees, including school district employees, who are eligible to retire, have the option of participating in DROP. A 60-month period is the maximum authorized, unless the eligible member qualifies as instructional personnel and is approved by the district school superintendent or Board of Trustees of the Florida School for the Deaf and the Blind, as applicable, to serve up to 96 months.⁴

Administrative Personnel

Administrative personnel are defined as:

Personnel who perform management activities such as developing broad policies for the school district and executing those policies through the direction of personnel at all levels within the district.⁵

Classes of administrative personnel include district school superintendents and assistant superintendents, school principals and assistant principals, career center directors, and others who perform management tasks.⁶

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

This bill authorizes administrative personnel employed in the area of K-12 education to elect to extend participation in DROP for an additional 36 months, for a total of 96 months in DROP, provided that the extension is approved by a local district superintendent.

Administrative personnel will receive the same option to extend participation in DROP beyond the standard 60 months as is currently provided to instructional personnel.

Language in the bill provides that a proper and legitimate state purpose is served when employees and retirees of the state and its political subdivisions, and the dependents, survivors, and beneficiaries of such employees and retirees, are extended the basic protections from retirement systems which give fair and adequate benefits, thereby serving an important state interest.⁷ It is unclear what impact, if any, this statement will have, as the provisions of this bill do not appear to create an unfunded mandate.

According to the Department of Management Services, the impetus for providing extended DROP authority to instructional personnel was to alleviate the critical shortage of teachers in grades K-12, which was exacerbated by the number of teachers who would terminate because they had reached their maximum DROP participation in June 2003. It is expected that as this option is offered to new groups, increasing pressure develops for parity to be the motivating factor, rather than the original goal of providing immediate temporary relief to a critical problem. Therefore, the effect of liberalizing the extension provision may have future impact in terms of additional groups requesting the same authority.

⁷ Article VII, Section 18, of the State Constitution provides: "No county or municipality shall be bound by any general law requiring such county or municipality to spend funds or to take an action requiring the expenditures of funds unless the legislature has determined that such law fulfills an important state interest and unless: funds have been appropriated that have been estimated at the time of enactment to be sufficient to fund such expenditure...."

Additionally, the Department of Management Services indicates that this provision may contravene existing legislative intent. The Florida Protection of Public Employee Retirement Benefits Act, contained in Part VII of Chapter 112, F.S., provides legislative intent that the retirement systems and plans be fairly and equitably funded. Further:

Accordingly, except as herein provided, it is the intent of this act to prohibit the use of any procedure, methodology, or assumptions the effect of which is to transfer to future taxpayers any portion of the costs which may reasonably have been expected to be paid by the current taxpayers.⁸

C. Government Sector Impact:

Data on DROP Participants

In 2002, 472 administrators entered DROP, and in 2003, 413 administrators entered DROP. For the 6-year period from 1998 through 2003, a total of 2,988 administrators entered DROP.⁹ About 8.6 percent of administrators employed in 2003 intended to leave employment to enter DROP. No data exists beyond 2003. Of those administrators who chose the full time authorized in DROP, it is unclear how many would elect to extend beyond the 60 month maximum, as it is not currently an option.

Data is available, however, on the number of teachers who applied for extensions beyond the 60 month maximum. By way of comparison, as of mid-December, 2003, of the 304 teachers who applied for extensions:

- 62 teachers requested six months or less;
- 44 requested seven to 11 months;
- 181 requested one year; and
- 17 requested more than one year.¹⁰

Many of these extensions were intended to make the final leave date of the participant coincide with the end of a calendar or school year. Administrative personnel receive, as a group, higher compensation than do instructional personnel; however, any impact of the salary difference is indeterminate.

Sound Actuarial Basis Requirement

Section 14 of Article X of the State Constitution requires that any changes made to a publicly funded retirement or pension system resulting in an increase in member or beneficiary benefits must also include provision for the funding of the increase in benefits on a sound actuarial basis.

The Department of Management Services estimates the following potential cost impacts:

- Salary Differentials: A new hire may be paid a much different salary than an existing employee extending DROP participation.
- FRS Contribution Rates: A cost impact may result from the difference between the DROP contribution rate and the contribution rate for the FRS membership class.

Still, once a person is in DROP, the FRS impact is already being funded. According to the Milliman actuarial study,¹¹ it is expected that expansion of the members eligible for extended DROP participation would have a nominal fiscal impact and would actually depend upon how frequently the district school board authorizes the extension. In other words, as the local superintendent controls whether an administrative employee can extend, and, if so, for how long, it is difficult to ascertain impact. This impact can only be realized by future valuations, and incorporated into the rates recommended at that time. The study concludes that this bill complies with the constitutional requirement of actuarial soundness.
