I. Summary:

The bill amends the current statutory experience and continuing legal education requirements in order for an attorney to be appointed by the court to represent an inmate in capital collateral litigation.

The bill also provides that an appointed registry counsel who does not execute a contract with the Chief Financial Officer within a specified period of time is to be removed from the registry. Registry counsel who fail to comply with any of the statutory requirements are required to submit certification of compliance with the experience and education criteria, and quarterly reports to the Commission on Capital Cases or be removed from the registry and potentially have court-ordered sanctions imposed.

The bill amends the number of inmates an attorney may be appointed to represent in capital postconviction litigation from 5 to 7.

The current fee payment schedule is adjusted to provide for fee payment to registry attorneys upon completion of a final hearing in the original postconviction motion, rather than upon the issuance of the court's final order.

The bill also includes payment for costs incurred in pro bono cases. The bill specifies that these funds shall come from registry funds by the Chief Financial Officer.

The bill addresses issues with regard to the payment of fees by setting forth the Legislative finding that not all capital collateral cases are extraordinary or unusual, and requiring written findings of fact where a judge deviates upward from the statutorily authorized fee schedule.

This bill substantially amends the following sections of the Florida Statutes: 27.7001, 27.709, 27.710, and 27.711.

II. Present Situation:

Overview of Postconviction Proceedings in Capital Cases

After a defendant has been sentenced to death, he or she is entitled to challenge the conviction and sentence in three distinct stages. First, the public defender or private counsel is required to file a direct appeal to the Florida Supreme Court. An appeal of the Florida Supreme Court's decision on the direct appeal is to the United States Supreme Court by petition for certiorari.

Second, if the U.S. Supreme Court rejects the appeal, state postconviction proceedings or collateral review begins. The Capital Collateral Regional Counsel (CCRC) or registry counsel usually represent defendants in postconviction proceedings.

State postconviction proceedings are controlled by Rules 3.850, 3.851, and 3.852, Florida Rules of Criminal Procedure. Unlike a direct appeal that challenges the legal errors apparent from the trial transcripts or record on appeal, a postconviction proceeding is designed to raise claims that are collateral to what transpired in the trial court. Consequently, postconviction proceedings usually involve three categories of claims:

- Ineffective assistance of trial counsel,
- Brady violations, i.e., a due process denial from the prosecution's suppression of material, exculpatory evidence, and
- Newly discovered evidence, for example, post-trial recantation by a principal witness.

Because the consideration of these claims may require new fact-finding, Rule 3.850 and 3.851 motions are filed in the trial court which sentenced the defendant to death. Appeals from the Rule 3.850 and 3.851 motions are to the Florida Supreme Court. (At this point, the CCRC or registry attorney, in a writ of habeas corpus, usually will raise the claim of ineffective assistance of appellate counsel for the direct appeal.)

The third and what is intended to be the final stage is federal habeas corpus, a proceeding controlled by 28 U.S.C. s. 2254(a). Finally, once the Governor signs a death warrant, a defendant will typically file a second Rule 3.850 or 3.851 motion and a second federal habeas petition along with motions to stay the execution.

Commission on Capital Cases

Section 27.709, F.S., creates the Commission on Capital Cases, a legislative commission within the Office of Legislative Services which is tasked with reviewing the "administration of justice in capital collateral cases." The commission is comprised of two members appointed by the Governor, two Senators appointed by the President of the Senate, and two members of the House of Representatives appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Capital Collateral Regional Counsel

As described above, the Capital Collateral Regional Counsel (CCRC) represents death sentenced inmates on collateral actions challenging the legality of the judgment and sentence in the state and federal courts. s. 27.702(1), F.S. Currently, there are two CCRC offices that function independently -- Middle Region (Tampa) and Southern Region (Miami). s. 27.701, F.S.

Since 2003, postconviction representation of capital defendants in the Northern Region has been provided by registry attorneys in a "pilot project" undertaken to determine whether capital collateral representation of indigent inmates could be provided in a more efficient manner. s. 27.701, F.S. The Auditor General is conducting a Performance Review, to be submitted to the presiding officers of the Legislature by January 30, 2007. This review should provide data from which a determination could be made regarding the overall cost-effectiveness and efficiency of the registry, compared to the CCRC system. s. 27.701(2), F.S.

The CCRC represents defendants sentenced within his or her region. In the event that a CCRC has a conflict of interest with a client, the sentencing court may designate another CCRC or private counsel to represent the defendant. s. 27.703, F.S.

Attorney Registry for Postconviction Representation

The 1998 Legislature created a statewide registry of private attorneys to supplement the CCRC system and serve as a backup by alleviating any case backlog. ss. 27.710 and 27.711, F.S. Backlog cases are those which are ready for the postconviction process to begin, yet no attorney is assigned to the case.

Attorney appointment. The executive director of the Commission on Capital Cases compiles and maintains the statewide attorney registry. Under s. 27.710, F.S., an attorney from the statewide registry is appointed by the trial court that sentenced the defendant when it is notified by the executive director of the need for counsel to be appointed.

Attorney qualifications. To be eligible to contract with a CCRC office, be appointed on a pro bono basis by a CCRC, or for inclusion on the registry, an attorney must meet the minimum qualifications specified in s. 27.704(2), F.S. That is, the attorney must have at least 3 years experience in the practice of criminal law, and must have participated in at least five felony jury trials, five felony appeals, or five capital postconviction evidentiary hearings or any combination of at least five such proceedings.

Additionally, a registry attorney must have attended 10 hours of continuing legal education devoted to the defense of capital cases within the year prior to his or her inclusion on the registry. s. 27.710(1), F.S.

The registry attorney must certify that, if appointed, he or she will continue such representation under the terms and conditions set forth in s. 27.711, F.S., until the sentence is reversed, reduced, or carried out, unless he or she is permitted by the trial court to withdraw. s. 27.710(3), F.S.

Attorney limitations. Certain limitations are placed on attorneys who are appointed pursuant to the registry statute:

- An attorney may not represent more than 5 capital defendants at any one time, (ss. 27.710(3), and 27.711(9), F.S.)
- An attorney may not file repetitive or frivolous pleadings that are not supported by law or facts, (s. 27.711(10), F.S.)
- An attorney may not represent the death-sentenced defendant during a retrial, a resentencing proceeding, a proceeding commenced under ch. 940, F.S. (executive clemency), or in a proceeding challenging a conviction or sentence other than the conviction and sentence of death for which the appointment was made (s. 27.711(11), F.S.), or
- An attorney may not represent the death-sentenced defendant in any civil litigation other than habeas corpus proceedings (s. 27.711(11), F.S.).

Attorney contract. Immediately after appointment by the trial court that sentenced the defendant to death, the attorney must file a notice of appearance with the trial court indicating acceptance of the appointment. s. 27.711(2), F.S. The attorney must specify that he will represent the defendant throughout all postconviction capital collateral proceedings, including federal habeas corpus proceedings, or until released by order of the trial court. Id. Additionally, the attorney must enter into a contract with the Chief Financial Officer. s. 27.710(4), F.S. The Chief Financial Officer develops the form of the contract and functions as contract manager, as well as enforces performance of the terms and conditions of the contract. Id.

Fee and payment schedule. Section 27.711(4), F.S., provides a fee and payment schedule. Upon approval by the trial court, and after certain stages in litigation are complete, a registry attorney is entitled to payment of $100 per hour by the Chief Financial Officer, up to a maximum of:

- $2,500 upon accepting the appointment and filing the notice of appearance,
- $20,000 after timely filing in the trial court the capital defendant's complete original motion for postconviction relief, or if the trial court schedules a hearing on the matter that makes the filing of the motion unnecessary or otherwise disposes of the case,
- $20,000 after the trial court issues a final order granting or denying the defendant's motion for postconviction relief,
- $20,000 after timely filing in the Supreme Court the defendant's briefs that address the trial court's final order granting or denying the defendant's motion for postconviction relief and the state petition for writ of habeas corpus,
- $10,000 after the trial court issues an order, pursuant to a remand from the Supreme Court, which directs the trial court to hold further proceedings on the motion for postconviction relief,
- $4,000 after the appeal of the trial court's denial of the motion for postconviction relief and the state petition for writ of habeas corpus become final in the Supreme Court,
- $2,500 at the conclusion of the defendant's postconviction capital collateral proceeding in state court, after filing a petition for writ of certiorari in the U.S. Supreme Court, and
- $5,000, if, at any time a death warrant is signed.

In addition, the attorney is authorized to hire an investigator for $40 per hour, up to a maximum of $15,000, to assist in the defendant's representation. s. 27.711(5), F.S.

Finally, the attorney is entitled to a maximum of $15,000 for miscellaneous expenses, such as transcript preparation, expert witnesses, and copying, unless the trial court finds that extraordinary circumstances exist in which case the attorney is entitled to payment in excess of $15,000. s. 27.711(6), F.S.

Section 27.711(7), F.S., provides for a payment of up to $500 per fiscal year to an attorney who is actively representing a capital defendant for tuition and expenses for continuing legal education. The curriculum is not specified by the statute.

Litigation on Attorney's Fees, Fee Payment Caps

It should be noted that the Florida Supreme Court has held that the statutory fee caps, while not facially unconstitutional, could be unconstitutional if applied "in such a manner as to curtail the court's inherent power to ensure the adequate representation of the criminally accused."

Makemson v. Martin County, 491 So. 2d 1109, 1112 (Fla. 1986). However, Makemson involved the representation of criminal defendants at trial and on direct appeal where there is a constitutional right to counsel, unlike postconviction proceedings where the right to counsel is by statutory authorization and not a constitutional right. Despite the lack of a constitutional right to counsel in postconviction proceedings, the Court in Olive v. Maas, 811 So. 2d 644 (Fla. 2002) extended the reasoning of Makemson to the capital collateral context.

The Court's holding in Olive was not based on a constitutional right to postconviction counsel, rather, it interpreted the legislative history and staff analysis to allow for fees exceeding the statutory caps in cases where unusual or extraordinary circumstances exist. Olive, 811 So. 2d at 654.

Consideration of Minimum Continuing Legal Education Standards

The Florida Supreme Court has considered and opted not to set minimum requirements for counsel in capital postconviction cases that might vary from those enacted by the Legislature in this area. The Court, however, has shared concerns with the commission about deficiencies the Court has observed among registry counsel, and has endorsed the need for increased standards for registry counsel. (Remarks by Justice Cantero at the Commission's February 2005 Meeting, Tallahassee, Florida; Letter to Executive Director of the Commission, February 8, 2005, Chief Justice Pariente.)¹

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

Section 1 of the bill states the Legislative finding that "not all capital collateral cases are extraordinary or unusual." This statement addresses the fee payment issues outlined above in the Litigation on Attorney's Fees section. The Legislative finding sets forth the Legislature's view that, while some capital collateral cases may indeed rise to the level of extraordinary or unusual, as a routine matter they should not be considered to be such by the courts; therefore the courts should not automatically award fees in excess of the statutory limits.

Section 2 revises the responsibilities of the Commission on Capital Cases to include any project recommended or approved by the commission members. It also allows the Commission on Capital Cases to sponsor continuing legal education programs devoted specifically to capital cases.

Section 3 sets forth minimum statutory requirements and responsibilities for registry counsel, and provides for removal of attorneys not meeting those requirements from the Registry. It also provides for the potential for removal of the attorney from the case by the judge, or a court-imposed fine.

Currently, to be on the Registry maintained by the Commission on Capital Cases, an attorney must certify that he or she satisfies the minimum requirements in s. 27.704(2), F.S. These requirements consist of being a member in good standing of The Florida Bar, 3 years' experience in the practice of criminal law, and either five felony trials, felony appeals, capital postconviction evidentiary hearings, or a combination thereof.

The bill raises the minimum requirements for court appointed counsel in capital postconviction litigation, but provides that the trial court may appoint counsel who does not meet the new requirements under exceptional circumstances. The court must enter an order specifying the exceptional circumstances and the court's determination of counsel's competence.

The minimum requirements for appointment are almost identical to those specified in Rule 3.112, Rules of Criminal Procedure, for the appointment of attorneys in death penalty cases at the trial and appellate level. The bill requires that a lawyer be a member in good standing of The Florida Bar, and:

- Be an active practitioner who has at least 5 years' experience in the practice of criminal law;
 - Be familiar with the production of evidence and use of expert witnesses, including psychiatric and forensic evidence;
 - Has demonstrated proficiency necessary for representation in capital cases, including the investigation and presentation of mitigation evidence;
 - Has attended a minimum of 12 hours of continuing legal education programs within the previous two years which were devoted to the defense of capital cases;
 - Has tried at least nine state or federal jury trials to completion, two of which must have been capital cases and
 - three of which must have been murder trials;
 - one of which must have been a murder trial and five of which must have been other felony trials; or
 - one of which must have included a postconviction evidentiary hearing and five of which must have been other felony trials;
- OR
- Has appealed one capital conviction and
 - appealed at least three felony convictions, one of which must have been a murder;
 - appealed at least three felony convictions and participated in one capital postconviction evidentiary hearing; or
 - six felony convictions, two of which must have been murders.

The attorney must certify his or her compliance with the statutory criteria for appointment as counsel on an application submitted to the commission. This requirement will be satisfied by the submission of the application by electronic mail without a signature. Under the provisions of the bill, failure to comply may be cause to remove an attorney from the registry until he or she complies.

The bill further provides that a court-appointed registry attorney's failure to execute the statutorily required contract with the Chief Financial Officer, within 30 days of the contract being mailed to the attorney, will result in the attorney's removal from the list of registry counsel.

The bill also requires a court-appointed registry attorney to submit quarterly reports to the commission and provides that if an attorney fails to submit a quarterly report within 30 days following the end of the quarter, the executive director shall remove the attorney from the registry. The bill also provides that the court may remove counsel from a case or impose a fine for failure to comply with this requirement.

The bill provides that if a registry attorney does not wish to continue representation in the federal courts, the attorney must make reasonable efforts to assist the person in finding replacement counsel who meets the federal requirements to represent a capital defendant in federal proceedings.

Section 4 of the bill amends s. 27.711, F.S., to modify the current payment schedule to provide for the payment of costs incurred in pro bono cases. The bill specifies that the funds for such payment shall come from registry funds, paid by the Chief Financial Officer.

The bill authorizes payment of $100 per hour, up to a maximum of $20,000, after the final hearing on the capital defendant's motion for postconviction relief rather than when the trial court issues a final order granting or denying the defendant's motion. In some cases, judges take an extended amount of time in ruling on a postconviction motion after the evidentiary hearing is held – this provision will authorize payment of the attorney sooner.

The bill authorizes payment of $100 per hour, up to a maximum of $2,500, for the preparation of the initial federal pleading.

The bill clarifies that a registry attorney who is representing at least one capital defendant is entitled to a maximum of $500 per fiscal year for tuition and expenses for continuing legal education that pertains to the representation of capital defendants.

The bill increases the number of inmates an attorney may represent in capital postconviction litigation from 5 to 7. This includes contract cases with the Capital Collateral Regional Counsel, pro bono cases, and cases where the attorney is privately retained by an inmate.

The bill also provides that when a judge intends to award fees in excess of the statutorily authorized amounts, the judge must make written findings of fact that specifically state the reasons that set the particular case apart from other capital collateral cases.

IV. Constitutional Issues:

A. Municipality/County Mandates Restrictions:

None.

B. Public Records/Open Meetings Issues:

None.

C. Trust Funds Restrictions:

None.

D. Other Constitutional Issues:

See the discussion on Litigation on Attorney's Fees, Fee Payment Caps, in the Present Situation portion of the Bill Analysis.

V. Economic Impact and Fiscal Note:

A. Tax/Fee Issues:

None.

B. Private Sector Impact:

Court-appointed capital collateral counsel should receive certain fees more quickly than under current law, in that the bill provides for payment after the final hearing on the original motion for postconviction relief, rather than upon the issuance of the court's order on the motion. Further, costs incurred by an attorney who has taken a capital collateral case on a pro bono basis may be paid by the Chief Financial Officer, upon approval of the court.

C. Government Sector Impact:

It should be noted that the entire question of the cost-effectiveness of registry attorneys versus the Capital Collateral Regional Counsel attorneys is the subject of a performance review currently being undertaken by the Auditor General. The review will be submitted to the presiding officers of both legislative chambers by January 30, 2007. s. 27.701(2), F.S.

VI. Technical Deficiencies:

None.

VII. Related Issues:

The Chief Financial Officer (CFO) is responsible for the payment of fees to registry attorneys. s. 27.711(4), F.S. The Department of Financial Services (DFS) manages the registry contracts. There are 118 signed contracts at the time of the writing of this analysis.² Section 27.710(4), F.S., specifies that: “Each private attorney who is appointed by the court to represent a capital defendant must enter into a contract with the Chief Financial Officer. ... The Chief Financial Officer shall develop the form of the contract, function as contract manager, and enforce performance of the terms and conditions of the contract.”

Since the registry came into existence, the statutory caps have been exceeded in 28 cases as follows:

Attorney Fees	$343,880.00
Investigative Fees	18,058.00
Misc. Expenses	293,149.71
TOTAL	$655,087.71

The decision whether to award fees that exceed the caps is left to the discretion of the court, sometimes with virtually no argument from the “State” to counter the request. A recent example of this situation is found in the Florida Department of Financial Services v. Freeman, No. SC04-1492, 2006 WL 176748 (Fla. Jan. 26, 2006). In that case, the trial court awarded fees in excess of the caps. No sworn testimony was presented; no witnesses were brought forth; and there was very little discussion about the justification for counsel’s request for nearly nine times the statutory cap for the particular fee allotment for the task completed by counsel. Counsel for DFS objected to the requested fees and referred the judge to the statutory caps. The judge granted the registry attorney’s request in its entirety, in contravention of the statute, and did not make a factual or legal finding that “extraordinary or unusual circumstances” existed in the case that justified the payment. (See the discussion on Litigation on Attorney’s Fees, Fee Payment Caps above.)

The court’s order was appealed by DFS. Because there was no competent, substantial evidence in the record to support an award of fees in excess of the statutory amounts, the Florida Supreme Court vacated the trial court’s order and remanded for an evidentiary hearing.

The apparent weaknesses related to the court’s determination of whether an award of attorney’s fees in excess of the statutory cap should be granted appears to be addressed by the holding in Freeman—requiring an evidentiary hearing—and the bill’s proposed modifications to ss. 27.7001 and 27.711(15), F.S.—stating that the Legislature finds that not all capital collateral cases are extraordinary or unusual, and requiring specific findings of fact.
