SUMMARY ANALYSIS

Article I, section 14, of the Florida Constitution provides, with some exceptions, that every person charged with a crime or violation of a municipal or county ordinance is entitled to pretrial release on reasonable conditions. With certain exceptions, there is a presumption in favor of release on nonmonetary conditions. Additionally, courts must impose conditions requiring the defendant on pretrial release to refrain from criminal activity of any kind and to refrain from contact with the victim.

HB 827 requires judges who grant monetary bail to set a separate and specific bail amount for each charge. This bill also provides that a court must require a defendant to comply with all conditions of pretrial release.

Bail, one of the most common monetary conditions of pretrial release, requires an accused to pay a set sum of money to the sheriff. As an alternative to posting bail, a defendant may employ the services of a bail bond agent who pledges that a defendant will appear at all scheduled proceedings before a court. If a defendant does not appear for judicial proceedings as ensured by the bail bond, the bond is considered breached and the court declares the bond "forfeited." In cases where a bond has been forfeited and not paid or discharged by a court within 60 days, the court enters a judgment against the bail bond agent for the amount of the bond.

HB 827 amends statutes relating to bail bonds, specifically their forfeiture, judgment, and cancellation. The bill provides that bond conditions are satisfied upon acquittal or withholding of adjudication.

This bill takes effect October 1, 2006.

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. HOUSE PRINCIPLES ANALYSIS:

Maintain Public Security → This bill provides that a court must require persons on pretrial release to comply with all conditions of pretrial release.

B. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Present Situation

Pretrial Release

Article I, section 14, of the Florida Constitution provides, with some exceptions, that every person charged with a crime or violation of a municipal or county ordinance is entitled to pretrial release on reasonable conditions.<sup>1</sup> There is a presumption in favor of release on nonmonetary conditions<sup>2</sup> for any person who is granted pretrial release unless such person is charged with a dangerous crime.<sup>3</sup> Although courts have the authority to impose any number of pretrial release conditions, courts must impose conditions requiring the defendant to refrain from criminal activity of any kind and to refrain from contact with the victim.<sup>4</sup>

Bail Bonds

Bail, one of the most common monetary conditions of pretrial release, requires an accused to pay a set sum of money to the sheriff. As an alternative to posting bail, a defendant may employ the services of a bail bond agent.<sup>5</sup> A bail bond serves as a pledge by a bail bond agent that a defendant will appear at all scheduled proceedings before a court.

Bail bond agents are licensed and regulated by the Department of Financial Services (DFS), pursuant to chapter 648, F.S. A bail bond agent may either be a limited surety agent who is appointed by a surety insurance company to execute or countersign bail bonds, or a professional bail bond agent who pledges his or her own funds as security for a bail bond. The chapter provides requirements for licensure of bail bond agents, limits the amount of premium and expenses which can be charged, restricts the types of collateral which can be demanded, and requires that such collateral be returned in a timely manner once the bond has been canceled.

Chapter 903, F.S., sets forth the requirements relating to bail and bail bonds, including all forms of pretrial release. After a defendant has been released on bail, the bail bond agent has the authority to "surrender," or return, the defendant to the custody of the person who would have held the defendant absent the bail.<sup>6</sup> Ordinarily, a bail bond agent will do this if the bail bond agent believes the defendant is a flight risk or if the collateral provided for bail is discovered to be insufficient. Upon surrender, the

<sup>3</sup> "Dangerous crimes" include: arson; aggravated assault; aggravated battery; illegal use of explosives; child abuse or aggravated child abuse; abuse or aggravated abuse of an elderly person or disabled adult; aircraft piracy; kidnapping; homicide; manslaughter; sexual battery; robbery; carjacking; lewd, lascivious, or indecent assault or act upon or in presence of a child under the age of 16 years; sexual activity with a child, who is 12 years of age or older but less than 18 years of age, by or at solicitation of person in familial or custodial authority; burglary of a dwelling; stalking and aggravated stalking; act of domestic violence as defined in s. 741.28, F.S.; home invasion robbery; act of terrorism as defined in s. 775.30, F.S.; and attempting or conspiring to commit any such crime. s. 907.041, F.S.

<sup>5</sup> Section 648.25, F.S., defines "Professional bail bond agent" as any person who pledges United States currency, United States postal money orders, or cashier's checks as security for a bail bond in connection with a judicial proceeding and receives or is promised therefor money or other things of value.

official taking custody of the defendant will issue a certificate acknowledging the surrender.<sup>7</sup> The bail bond agent then can present the certificate and bond to the court which will issue an order exonerating the obligors and refunding money or bonds deposited as bail.<sup>8</sup>

If a defendant does not appear for judicial proceedings as ensured by the bail bond, the bond is considered breached and the court declares the bond “forfeited.”<sup>9</sup> Within 5 days after forfeiture of a bail bond, the court must mail a notice to the surety agent and the surety company.<sup>10</sup> The forfeiture of a bond must be paid within 60 days of the date the notice to the bail bond agent and surety was filed.<sup>11</sup> However, after a breach of the bond, the law requires a court to “discharge” a forfeiture (before it is paid) within 60 days upon:

- a determination that it was impossible for the defendant to appear as required due to circumstances beyond the defendant’s control;
- a determination that, at the time of the appearance, the defendant was adjudicated insane and confined in an institution or hospital or was confined in a jail or prison; or
- surrender or arrest of the defendant if the delay has not thwarted the proper prosecution of the defendant.<sup>12</sup>

In addition to the above, the clerk of court must discharge the forfeiture of the bond if the defendant is arrested and returned to the county of jurisdiction of the court prior to judgment.<sup>13</sup> The bail bond agent is required to pay the costs associated with returning the defendant to the county of jurisdiction, as a condition of the clerk discharging the forfeiture.<sup>14</sup>

In cases where a bond has been forfeited and not paid or discharged by a court within 60 days, the court enters a judgment against the bail bond agent for the amount of the bond.<sup>15</sup> After the judgment is entered, the court is required to furnish DFS and the surety company issuing the bond with a certified copy of the judgment.<sup>16</sup> If this judgment is not paid within 35 days, the court provides DFS and the sheriff of the county in which the bond was executed, copies of the judgment and a certification that the judgment has not been satisfied.<sup>17</sup> DFS receives notice of the judgment and monitors unpaid judgments as a part of its regulation of surety insurance companies. Bail bond agents who have outstanding judgments which are unpaid for 35 days are precluded by law from executing bail bonds. After 50 days of an unpaid judgment, the surety company is precluded by law from issuing bail bonds.<sup>18</sup>

The law provides that within 10 days after all of the conditions of a bond have been satisfied or the forfeiture discharged or remitted, the court shall order the bond canceled.<sup>19</sup> All of the conditions of a bond are deemed to be satisfied after the defendant has been adjudicated guilty or not guilty.<sup>20</sup>

Polakoff Bail Bonds v. Orange County

The original appearance bond shall not be construed to guarantee deferred sentences, appearance during or after a presentence investigation, appearance during or after appeals, conduct during or appearance after admission to a pretrial intervention program, payment of fines, or attendance at educational or rehabilitation facilities the court otherwise provides in the judgment. If the original appearance bond has been forfeited or revoked, the bond shall not be reinstated without approval from the surety on the original bond.

In Polakoff Bail Bonds v. Orange County, the Florida Supreme Court said the condition of an appearance bond was not satisfied when the trial court accepts a plea of guilty and enters a finding of guilt, but withholds adjudication and judgment and continues the case for sentencing until the completion of the presentence investigation.<sup>21</sup> The court found that a judgment must be entered in order for the conditions of bond to be satisfied.<sup>22</sup> The court read s. 903.31, F. S., in conjunction with s. 903.045, F.S., which explains the nature of a surety bail bond:

It is the public policy of this state and the intent of the Legislature that a criminal surety bail bond, executed by a bail bond agent licensed pursuant to chapter 648 in connection with the pretrial or appellate release of a criminal defendant, shall be construed as a commitment by and an obligation upon the bail bond agent to ensure that the defendant appears at all subsequent criminal proceedings and otherwise fulfills all conditions of the bond. The failure of a defendant to appear at any subsequent criminal proceeding or the breach by the defendant of any other condition of the bond constitutes a breach by the bail bond agent of this commitment and obligation.<sup>23</sup>

The court found that “in the context of a presentence investigation, unless the trial court adjudicates the defendant guilty and provides for the presentence investigation within the judgment, the bond is not satisfied and the defendant must continue to appear at all subsequent proceedings to avoid forfeiture.”<sup>24</sup>

Subsequent to the Polakoff Bail Bonds decision, the Fifth District Court of Appeal found that the Florida Supreme Court’s decision in Polakoff Bail Bonds was limited to the circumstances of a presentence investigation where no judgment had been entered, but reasoned that “because there is never an adjudication of guilt or innocence before a defendant is accepted into a pretrial intervention program, we believe that the legislature must have intended, in cases involving pretrial intervention, an exception to the general rule requiring an adjudication for discharge of a bond.”<sup>25</sup>

Effect of Proposed Changes

Pretrial Release

Existing law mandates certain conditions of pretrial release. A defendant on pretrial release must refrain from criminal activity and must refrain from contact with the victim. This bill requires a defendant to comply with all conditions of pretrial release.

This bill also requires judges who grant monetary bail to set a separate and specific bail amount for each charge.<sup>26</sup>

<sup>25</sup> Rosenberg Bail Bonds v. Orange County, 663 So.2d 1389, 1392 (Fla. 5th DCA 1995).

<sup>26</sup> Florida Statutes do not currently require (or prevent) a judge to set a separate bail for each offense charged. However, the usual practice is for judges to set one bail amount regardless of how many offenses a defendant is charged with.

Bail Bonds

This bill provides that in any case in which a bond forfeiture has been discharged by the court conditioned on payment of costs and fees, the amount for which judgment may be entered may not exceed the costs and fees. This bill provides that an acquittal or withholding of adjudication satisfies the conditions of a bond.

This bill would have the effect of overruling the Polakoff Bail Bond holding that a bond is not satisfied when adjudication is withheld.

C. SECTION DIRECTORY:

IV. AMENDMENTS/COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE & COMBINED BILL CHANGES

The Criminal Justice Appropriations Committee adopted a strike-all amendment on April 11, 2006. The amendment removed the following provisions from the original bill:

- The elimination of presumption in favor of monetary release for certain defendants.
- The requirement for the court to issue a capias or arrest warrant upon failure to appear that requires extradition of a defendant arrested in another state.
- The exoneration of the surety if the court refuses or fails to issue the capias or arrest warrant.
- The exoneration of the surety if the surety agrees in writing to pay transportation costs and the state attorney fails to institute extradition proceedings.
- The provision for automatic cancellation (without a court order) upon satisfaction of the conditions of the bond or discharge or remittance of the bond.
- The provisions that the original appearance bond does not guarantee the following: a guilty or nolo contendere plea; agreement to enter into pretrial intervention or deferred prosecution; acquittal; adjudication of guilt; withheld adjudication; or a finding of guilt by a judge or a jury.

The amendment further provides that the original appearance bond does not guarantee sentencing deferrals.

On April 25, 2006, the Justice Council adopted one amendment to the bill and reported the bill favorably with committee substitute. The amendment removes language that provides that the original appearance bond does not guarantee sentencing deferrals.
