I. Summary:

Current law requires a person seeking a name change, other than a person restoring a former name, to attach a set of fingerprints to the petition. If the petition is granted, the fingerprints are then submitted to Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE).¹

This bill provides that a person seeking a name change, other than a person restoring a former name, must attach two sets of fingerprints to the petition together with a fingerprint processing fee. The clerk of the court must send one set of the petitioner's fingerprints to FDLE for a state and national criminal history records check, which must be provided to the court prior to hearing the name change request. This requirement will increase the cost for filing a petition for name change by $47.00.

This bill substantially amends section 68.07, Florida Statutes.

II. Present Situation:

Any person or family that wants to change their name must follow the procedural requirements established by s. 68.07, F.S. The person seeking a name change is called the petitioner, and the petitioner files his or her petition for a change of name in the county in which he or she resides.

Section 68.07(2), F.S., provides that the petition must include a copy of the petitioner's fingerprints taken by a law enforcement agency, except where a former name is being restored. Section 68.07(2), F.S., also provides that the petition must be verified and show:

- That the petitioner is a bona fide resident of and domiciled in the county where the change of name is sought.
- If known, the date and place of birth of the petitioner, the petitioner's residences since birth, and petitioner's father's name and mother's maiden name.
- If the petitioner is married, the name of petitioner's spouse. If the petitioner has children, the names and ages of each child and where they reside.
- If the petitioner's name has previously been changed and when and where and by what court.
- The petitioner's occupation and where the petitioner is currently employed and has been employed for five years preceding filing of the petition. If the petitioner owns and operates a business, the name and place of the business, and petitioner's connection and length of identification with the business must be included. If the petitioner is in a profession, the profession shall be stated, and where the petitioner has practiced the profession. If the petitioner is a graduate of a school or schools, the petitioner must include the name of school or schools, degrees received, and time of graduation.
- Whether the petitioner has been generally known or called by any other names and if so, by what names and where.
- Whether the petitioner has ever been adjudicated bankrupt and if so, where and when.
- Whether the petitioner has ever been arrested for or charged with, pled guilty or nolo contendere to, or been found to have committed a criminal offense, regardless of adjudication, and if so, when and where.
- Whether any money judgment has ever been entered against the petitioner and if so, the name of the judgment creditor, the amount and date thereof, the court by which entered, and whether the judgment has been satisfied.
- That the petition is filed for no ulterior or illegal purpose and granting it will not in any manner invade the property rights of others, whether partnership, patent, good will, privacy, trademark, or otherwise.
- That the petitioner's civil rights have never been suspended, or if the petitioner's civil rights have been suspended, that full restoration of civil rights has occurred.²

The judge is given the name change petition by the clerk of court. Upon entry of the final judgment, the clerk must send a report of the judgment to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE or the department). The department must send a copy of the report to the Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles. Any information retained by these departments is to be revised to reflect the changes made by the name change. If a person has been convicted of a felony in another state or of a federal offense, FDLE must send the report to the respective state's office of law enforcement records or to the office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). The department may also forward the report to any other law enforcement agency it believes may retain information related to the petitioner.³

Section 68.07(3), F.S., provides that a hearing on a change of name petition may be held immediately after the petition is filed.

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

This bill amends s. 68.07(2), F.S., to require that a petition for name change, other than a petition seeking to restore a former name, must include two sets of the petitioner's fingerprints instead of one, and must include a fingerprint-processing fee. The bill requires a fee in the amount set by s. 943.053, F.S., for the state criminal history records check plus the amount established by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) for the national criminal history records check.⁴ This bill requires the clerk of the court to forward one of the sets of fingerprints to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE or the department) for a state and national criminal history records check. The results of the criminal history check are then to be returned to the clerk to be used by the court in determining whether to grant the petition for name change. If the judgment is granted, the clerk must send the second set of fingerprints to FDLE as required by s. 68.07(5), F.S.

The bill states that the criminal history check results are to be used by the court "in determining whether to grant the petition." The bill does not specify how the court is to use the information from the criminal history check, and the degree to which the information will be used to evaluate the petition. Currently, case law states that a facially sufficient petition should be granted in the absence of evidence of a wrongful or fraudulent purpose.⁵ According to current case law, other than for a facially insufficient petition, the court cannot summarily dismiss a petition without first giving the petitioner a chance to be heard.⁶ It is unclear whether or not this bill intends to allow the criminal background checks to be used as a basis for determining wrongful or fraudulent purpose in seeking a name change.

In addition, the bill is silent on whether or not there are any exceptions to the new practice. The bill creates a waiting period for the name change that did not previously exist by requiring the criminal history check to be returned before the name change can be granted. If the fingerprints are submitted electronically, the turnover time is two to three days. If the clerk of court mails the paper form to FDLE, the department in turn has to mail the fingerprints to the FBI. The process could take two weeks to two months to receive the results. Currently, the clerks of courts are submitting all fingerprints in the paper form.⁷ In some circumstances, this waiting period for the criminal history checks to be returned may create a risk of harm. For example, an individual with no criminal record who is seeking a name change to escape a violent situation would appear to be required to wait for a background check to be returned before the petition could be granted.

IV. Constitutional Issues:

A. Municipality/County Mandates Restrictions:

None.

B. Public Records/Open Meetings Issues:

None.

C. Trust Funds Restrictions:

None.

V. Economic Impact and Fiscal Note:

A. Tax/Fee Issues:

None.

B. Private Sector Impact:

Under current law, the petitioner is required to pay a $255 fee when filing a petition for a name change,⁸ and also any costs associated with obtaining one set of fingerprints to include with the petition. This bill increases the cost of a name change, except in the case of restoring a former name, by requiring the petitioner to pay a $47 fingerprint-processing fee for the state and national criminal history records check, as well as any costs associated with obtaining an additional set of fingerprints.

C. Government Sector Impact:

Under this bill, a portion of the $47 criminal history check fee will go to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE or the department). The department estimates that it will receive approximately 3,420 criminal history checks for name change petitions annually. These checks would provide $23 per check for the fingerprint-processing fee, leading to $78,660 per year to be deposited into the FDLE Operating Trust Fund.⁹ The department does not believe that this bill will necessitate additional full-time equivalent (FTE) positions.

VI. Technical Deficiencies:

On page 2, line 25, the bill adds the word “the” in reference to the petitioner; however the article “the” is already in the existing statute. Therefore, adding this word to the bill would be duplicative. This problem is corrected in Judiciary amendment 040476.

VII. Related Issues:

None.

VIII. Summary of Amendments:

Barcode 040476 by Judiciary:

Deletes redundant occurrence of the word “the.”

Barcode 813040 by Judiciary:

Revises provision concerning the circumstances when a hearing on a name change petition may be heard immediately after filing the petition. Only petitions for restoring a former name may be heard immediately after filing the petition. Adds a provision providing that the timing for a hearing on the petition for a name change where a criminal history records check is required may be immediately after the results are returned.
