I. Summary:

This bill reenacts the public records exemption provisions for specific information of a sensitive personal nature held by the Department of Children and Families regarding a foster parent applicant and a licensed foster parent and his or her spouse, minor child, or other household member. The bill deletes the portion of the public records exemption protecting social security numbers of these individuals, because this provision is duplicative of a more stringent exemption for social security numbers found in chapter 119, F.S., the public records law.

The bill amends section 409.175, Florida Statutes.

II. Present Situation:

Open Government Sunset Review Act

Section 119.15, F.S., the Open Government Sunset Review Act, provides for the systematic review of exemptions from the Public Records Act on a five-year cycle ending October 2 of the fifth year following the enactment or substantial amendment of an exemption.¹ Each year, by June 1, the Division of Statutory Revision of the Office of Legislative Services is required to certify to the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives the language and statutory citation of each exemption scheduled for repeal the following year.²

² Section 119.15(5)(a), F.S.

Under the Open Government Sunset Review Act, an exemption may be created, revised, or maintained only if it serves an identifiable public purpose and it is no broader than necessary to meet the public purpose it serves.³ An identifiable public purpose is served if the exemption meets one of three specified purposes and the Legislature finds that the purpose is sufficiently compelling to override the strong public policy of open government and cannot be accomplished without the exemption. An exemption meets the statutory criteria if it:

1. Allows the state or its political subdivisions to effectively and efficiently administer a governmental program, which administration would be significantly impaired without the exemption;
2. Protects information of a sensitive personal nature concerning individuals, the release of which information would be defamatory to such individuals or cause unwarranted damage to the good name or reputation of such individuals or would jeopardize the safety of such individuals. However, in exemptions under this subparagraph, only information that would identify the individuals may be exempted; or
3. Protects information of a confidential nature concerning entities, including, but not limited to, a formula, pattern, device, combination of devices, or compilation of information which is used to protect or further a business advantage over those who do not know or use it, the disclosure of which information would injure the affected entity in the marketplace.⁴

Foster Care

The Department of Children and Families (DCF or department) is directed to establish and administer a program for dependent children and their families. Included in this program are foster homes and other settings that provide shelter and care to dependent children when they must be placed away from their families.⁵

All foster homes must be licensed.⁶ Section 409.175(5), F.S., directs DCF to adopt rules for the licensure of family foster homes and establish requirements for licensure with respect to the following, among other requirements:

- The operation of the foster family home;
- The provision of food, clothing, supplies, and services to the foster children;
- The safety and cleanliness of the premises;
- The ratio and supervision of children;
- The moral character of the personnel; and
- The financial ability of the foster parents to provide care.

⁵ Sections 409.145 and 409.165, F.S.

⁶ Section 409.175(4), F.S.

Chapter 65C-13, F.A.C., Substitute Care of Children, contains the administrative rules for licensing of family foster homes. These rules prescribe the standards for licensure of a foster parent applicant.

Section 409.175, F.S., provides specific legislative requirements related to the licensing of foster homes including:

- Background screening requirements;⁷
- Inspections of the homes by the local health departments;⁸
- Pre-service and in-service training requirements;⁹
- The ability of the department to deny, suspend, or revoke a license and grounds for such actions;¹⁰
- Actions the department may take to ensure compliance with the licensing requirements;¹¹ and
- The provision of general liability coverage for family foster homes through the Division of Risk Management.¹²

According to DCF, a foster parent applicant must volunteer a number of potentially sensitive documents as a result of these requirements and the department's need to determine the suitability of individuals to be foster parents. These documents include medical history, financial information, and neighbor references. If this information is made available to the public, potential foster parents may be discouraged from applying for licensure.¹³

In 1998, an exemption was created to protect the personal information of a licensed foster parent and his or her spouse, child, and other household members.¹⁴

In 2003, the Legislature expanded the public records exemption found in s. 409.175(16), F.S., to include the personal information of a foster parent applicant and information regarding a foster parent applicant's spouse, child, and other adult household member.¹⁵

The Legislature also found that a public records exemption for the medical records of potential applicants and those who were already licensed foster parents was a public necessity because matters of personal health are traditionally private and confidential. According to the Legislature, the public availability of medical records could lessen the willingness of prospective caregivers to reveal medical information, thus hindering the department's ability to assess foster parent applicants and licensed foster parents and hindering the department's attempts to make appropriate placements for foster children.¹⁶

In addition, the Legislature found that it was a public necessity to provide foster parent applicants with the same public records exemptions afforded licensed foster parents under s. 409.175(16), F.S., in order to encourage persons to apply to become licensed foster parents and avoid a potential chilling effect on the recruitment of such persons.¹⁷ According to the department, this finding is still valid.¹⁸

Today, s. 409.175(16), F.S., provides an exemption to the public records law for potentially sensitive information pertaining to a foster parent applicant or licensed foster parent and his or her spouse, minor child, and adult household member. The exempt information includes:

- Home, business, work, child care, and school addresses and telephone numbers;
- Social security numbers;
- Birth dates;
- Medical records;
- Floor plan of the home; and
- Photographs.¹⁹

Under the provisions of s. 119.071(5)(a)5, F.S., all Social Security numbers held by an agency are confidential and exempt from s. 119.07(1), F.S., and s. 24(a), Article I of the State Constitution. Therefore, the exemption specific to Social Security numbers found in s. 409.175(16)(a) and (b), F.S., is duplicative.

If a foster parent applicant does not receive a license, the exempt information becomes public five years after the date of application.²⁰ If a foster parent's license becomes inactive, the exempt information becomes public five years after the expiration date of the foster parent's license.²¹ However, in either case, social security numbers and medical records remain exempt from the provisions of s. 119.07(1), F.S., and s. 24(a), Article I of the State Constitution.²²

If a licensed foster parent becomes an adoptive parent, the adoptive parent's information remains exempt after the expiration of the adoptive parent's foster license.²³

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The bill repeals the public records exemption specific to social security numbers and retains the remainder of the exemption for the specific information held by the Department of Children and Families regarding a foster parent applicant or a licensed foster parent and his or her spouse, minor child, and other adult household member, found in s 409.175(16)(a) and (b), F.S.

¹⁹ Section 409.175(16)(a) and (b), F.S.

²⁰ Section 409.175(16)(a), F.S.

²¹ Section 409.175(16)(b), F.S.

²² Section 409.175(16)(a) and (b), F.S.

²³ Section 409.175(16)(b), F.S.

The bill implements the recommendations of the Open Government Sunset Review of this public records exemption. That review recommended reenactment of the exemption but noted that the Legislature may wish to repeal the portion related to social security numbers because this particular information is already rendered confidential and exempt under s. 119.071(5)(a)5., F.S.²⁴

The bill provides for an effective date of July 1, 2008.
