I. Summary:

This bill defines planned residential communities as a planned unit development having amenities that are designed to serve residents who have developmental disabilities and may consist of two or more community residential homes that are contiguous to one another. The bill provides that a home that has six or fewer residents that would otherwise meet the definition of a community residential home and is within a planned residential community does not require local government approval regardless of its proximity to other similar homes or community residential homes.

This bill substantially amends s. 419.001, F.S.

II. Present Situation:

Historically, community housing options for persons with disabilities, frail elderly persons, dependent or delinquent children, and persons with mental illnesses have been limited. Although the transition from providing services in large institutions to community based programs began in the 1970's, the availability of safe, appropriate, and affordable housing in Florida has been an ongoing challenge. The "NIMBY" (Not In My Back Yard) syndrome is used to describe the opposition to siting affordable housing or housing for persons with disabilities or special needs in residential neighborhoods. This opposition began to be routinely challenged during the 1980's as policy and practice reform led to the development of more opportunities for persons with disabilities to live independently and participate fully in their communities. In 1989, the Legislature enacted chapter 89-372, L.O.F., which was codified as chapter 419, F.S. The legislation was aimed at preventing or reducing inappropriate institutional care by encouraging the development of community-based residential environments for persons with special needs.

The Federal Fair Housing Act of 1988 prohibits discrimination on the basis of a handicap in all types of housing transactions. The Act defines a “handicap” to mean those mental or physical impairments that substantially limit one or more major life activities. The term “mental or physical impairment” may include conditions such as blindness, hearing impairment, mobility impairment, HIV infection, mental retardation, alcoholism, drug addiction, chronic fatigue, learning disability, head injury, and mental illness. The term “major life activity” may include seeing, hearing, walking, breathing, performing manual tasks, caring for one's self, learning, speaking, or working. The Fair Housing Act also protects persons who have a record of such impairment, or are regarded as having such impairment. Current users of illegal controlled substances, persons convicted for illegal manufacture or distribution of a controlled substance, sex offenders, and juvenile offenders are not considered disabled under the Fair Housing Act, by virtue of that status.<sup>1</sup>

The Florida Fair Housing Act in s. 760.23(7)(b), F.S., provides that, “It is unlawful to discriminate in the sale or rental of, or to otherwise make unavailable or deny, a dwelling to any buyer or renter because of a handicap of a person residing in or intending to reside in that dwelling after it is sold, rented, or made available.” The statute states further that “discrimination” is defined as to include a refusal to make reasonable accommodations in rules, policies, practices, or services, when such accommodations may be necessary to afford such person equal opportunity to use and enjoy a dwelling.

In July 1999, the U.S. Supreme Court held that the unnecessary institutionalization of people with disabilities is a form of discrimination prohibited by the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). In its opinion, the Court challenged federal, state, and local governments to develop more opportunities for individuals with disabilities through accessible systems of cost-effective community-based services.<sup>2</sup> The Olmstead decision interpreted Title II of the ADA and its implementing regulation, requiring states to administer their services, programs, and activities “in the most integrated setting appropriate to meet the needs of qualified individuals with disabilities.” The ADA and the Olmstead decision apply to all qualified individuals with disabilities regardless of age.

Section 419.001, F.S., regulates homes with multiple residents. Section 419.001(1) (d), F.S., includes in the definition of a “resident” the following:

- “Frail elder” pursuant to s. 429.65, F.S., means a functionally impaired elderly person who is 60 years of age or older and who has physical or mental limitations that restrict the person's ability to perform the normal activities of daily living and that impede the person's capacity to live independently.
- Person with a “handicap” pursuant to s. 760.22(7)(a), F.S., means a person that has a physical or mental impairment which substantially limits one or more major life activities, or he or she has a record of having, or is regarded as having, such physical or mental impairment or a person with a developmental disability as defined in s. 393.063, F.S.

- “Developmental disability” pursuant to s. 393.063, F.S., means a person with a disorder or syndrome that is attributable to retardation, cerebral palsy, autism, spina bifida, or Prader-Willi syndrome and which constitutes a substantial handicap that can reasonably be expected to continue indefinitely.
- “Nondangerous mentally ill person” means a person with a “mental illness” as defined in s. 394.455(18), F.S., which is “an impairment of the mental or emotional processes that exercise conscious control of one’s actions or of the ability to perceive or understand reality, which impairment substantially interferes with a person’s ability to meet the ordinary demands of living, regardless of etiology. For the purposes of this part, the term does not include retardation or developmental disability as defined in chapter 393, intoxication, or conditions manifested only by antisocial behavior or substance abuse impairment.”
- “Child” means a “child who is found to be dependent” as defined in s. 39.01(12), F.S., and a “child in need of services” pursuant to ss. 984.03(9) and 985.03(8), F.S.

A home consisting of “7 to 14 unrelated residents who operate as the functional equivalent of a family, including such supervision and care by supportive staff as may be necessary to meet the physical, emotional, and social needs of the residents” is a “community residential home.”<sup>3</sup> The law dictates how local governments can regulate community residential homes and homes that would be community residential homes but consist of 6 or fewer residents.

A community residential home should be licensed with a government agency. Section 419.001, F.S., requires a sponsoring agency<sup>4</sup> to notify the chief executive officer of the local government in writing when a site for a community residential home has been selected in an area zoned for multifamily use. The notice must include the address of the site, the residential licensing category, the number of residents, and the community support requirements of the program. The notice must also contain a statement from the licensing agency<sup>5</sup> indicating the need for the proposed home, the licensing status of the home, and how the home meets applicable licensing criteria for the safe care and supervision of the residents. The sponsoring agency must provide the local government with the most recently published data compiled that identifies all community residential homes in the district in which the proposed site is to be located.<sup>6</sup> The local government reviews the notification from the sponsoring agency in accordance with the zoning ordinance of the jurisdiction in which the community residential home is located. The local government then has up to 60 days to respond and if no response is given within 60 days, the sponsoring agency may establish the home at the site in question.<sup>7</sup>

The local government may deny the siting of a community residential home if the site selected:

<sup>4</sup> Section 419.001(1)(e), F.S., defines “sponsoring agency” as “an agency or unit of government, a profit or nonprofit agency, or any other person or organization which intends to establish or operate a community residential home.”

<sup>5</sup> Section 419.001(1)(b), F.S. defines “licensing agency” as the Department of Elderly Affairs, the Agency for Persons with Disabilities, the Department of Juvenile Justice, the Department of Children and Family Services, or the Agency for Health Care Administration, all of which are authorized to license a community residential home to serve residents, as defined in paragraph (d).

- Does not conform with zoning laws,
- Do not meet licensing criteria,
- Would substantially alter the nature and character of the area, which the statute states would occur when the community residential home is within:
  - 1,200 feet of another existing community residential home or
  - 500 feet of an area of single-family zoning.

A home with six or fewer residents is deemed a single family unit, and such a home is allowed in a single- or multi-family zoned area without approval by the local government, provided that the home does not exist within a 1,000 feet radius of another home with 6 or fewer residents and the sponsoring agency notifies the local government at the time of occupancy that the home is licensed.<sup>8</sup>

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The bill amends subsections (1) and (2) of s. 419.001, F.S., to define a “planned residential community” as a planned unit development having amenities that are designed to serve residents who have developmental disabilities and may consist of two or more community residential homes that are contiguous to one another. The bill provides that homes that have six or fewer residents that would otherwise meet the definition of a community residential home that is within a planned residential community does not require local government approval regardless of their proximity to each other. This means that even if a home with 6 or fewer disabled residents locates within 1,000 feet of another home with 6 or fewer disabled residents or a community group home, it will not require additional local government approval.

These provisions will make it easier for homes with 6 or fewer disabled residents to locate within a planned unit development designed to serve residents who have developmental disabilities. This exemption makes it clear that these homes will not have to get local approval, but they will still have to provide notification to the local government.
