I. Summary:

Domestic Violence Fatality Review Teams (FRTs) were first formed in Florida in the mid-1990's. The teams, which are not funded by the state, work independently and may be composed of representatives from municipal, county, state and federal agencies, as well as individuals or organizations that are involved with, or affected by, a domestic violence fatality. The goals of the FRTs are to review fatal and near-fatal incidents of domestic violence, related domestic violence matters, and suicides, and to identify changes in policy or procedure that may prevent future deaths.

When it authorized FRTs, the Legislature also enacted a public records and meetings exemption related to FRTs. This exemption is subject to review under the Open Government Sunset Review Act and stands repealed on October 2, 2010, unless reviewed and saved from repeal through reenactment.

This bill substantially amends s. 741.3165, F.S.

II. Present Situation:

Florida Public Records Law

Florida has a long history of providing public access to government records. The Legislature enacted the first public records law in 1892. In 1992, Floridians adopted an amendment, article I, section 24, to the State Constitution that raised the statutory right of access to public records to a constitutional level.

The Public Records Act² specifies conditions under which public access must be provided to records of the executive branch and other agencies. Unless specifically exempted, all agency³ records are available for public inspection. Section 119.011(12), F.S., defines public record very broadly to include "all documents, ... tapes, photographs, films, sound recordings, ... made or received pursuant to law or ordinance or in connection with the transaction of official business by any agency." Unless made exempt, all such materials are open for public inspection.⁴

Only the Legislature is authorized to create exemptions to open government requirements. Exemptions must be created by general law, and such law must specifically state the public necessity justifying the exemption.⁵ Further, the exemption must be no broader than necessary to accomplish the stated purpose of the law.⁶ A bill enacting an exemption or substantially amending an existing exemption may not contain other substantive provisions, although it may contain multiple exemptions that relate to one subject.⁷

Open Government Sunset Review Act

The Open Government Sunset Review Act⁸ provides for the systematic review of an exemption from the Public Records Act in the fifth year after its enactment. The act states that an exemption may be created, revised, or maintained only if it serves an identifiable public purpose and if the exemption is no broader than necessary to meet the public purpose it serves. An identifiable public purpose is served if the exemption meets one of three specified criteria and if the Legislature finds that the purpose is sufficiently compelling to override the strong public policy of open government and cannot be accomplished without the exemption. An exemption meets the statutory criteria if it:

- Allows the state or its political subdivisions to effectively and efficiently administer a governmental program, which administration would be significantly impaired without the exemption;
- Protects information of a sensitive personal nature concerning individuals, the release of which ... would be defamatory ... or cause unwarranted damage to the good name or reputation of such individuals or would jeopardize the safety of such individuals; or
- Protects information of a confidential nature concerning entities, including, but not limited to, a formula, pattern, device, combination of devices, or compilation of information which is used to protect or further a business advantage over those who do not know or use it, the disclosure of which ... would injure the affected entity in the marketplace.¹¹

³ Section 119.011(2), F.S., defines agency as "any state, county, ... or municipal officer, department, ... or other separate unit of government created or established by law ... and any other public or private agency, person, ... acting on behalf of any public agency."

Domestic Violence Fatality Review Teams

In Florida, domestic violence is defined as:

[A]ny assault, aggravated assault, battery, aggravated battery, sexual assault, sexual battery, stalking, aggravated stalking, kidnapping, false imprisonment, or any criminal offense resulting in physical injury or death of one family or household member by another family or household member.¹²

In 2008, the total number of domestic violence offenses reported across Florida was 113,123. Of the total, 194 offenses were classified as murder or manslaughter. ¹³

Domestic Violence Fatality Review Teams (FRTs) were first formed in Florida in the mid-1990's. These teams began as local initiatives supported with federal grant funds. ¹⁴ In 2000, the Legislature enacted s. 741.316, F.S., which allows organizations to establish FRTs at the local, regional, or state level. The teams, which are not funded by the state, work independently and may be composed of representatives from municipal, county, state and federal agencies, as well as individuals or organizations that are involved with, or affected by, a domestic violence fatality. ¹⁵ The goals of the FRTs are to review fatal and near-fatal incidents of domestic violence, related domestic violence matters, and suicides, and to identify changes in policy or procedure that may prevent future deaths. ¹⁶

There are 19 active FRTs in Florida.¹⁷ In addition, the Department of Children and Families (DCF), in partnership with the Florida Coalition Against Domestic Violence (FCADV), has recently created a statewide domestic violence fatality review team, funded by a federal grant.¹⁸ The specified goals of the statewide FRT are to identify gaps in service delivery to domestic violence victims, promote training, and coordinate activities among agencies involved in domestic violence issues.¹⁹

Public Records and Meetings Exemptions for Domestic Violence Fatality Review Teams In 2000, when the Legislature authorized FRTs, it also granted them immunity from liability for "any act or proceeding undertaken or performed within the scope of the functions of the team"

unless the act or proceeding was undertaken in bad faith.²⁰ Additionally, information gathered by the teams is protected from discovery and introduction into evidence in civil proceedings, and persons attending team meetings are prohibited from testifying in civil or disciplinary actions regarding records or information produced or presented to the team.²¹

The Legislature also enacted public records and meetings exemptions related to FRTs, providing that:

- Confidential and exempt information obtained by an FRT retains its confidential and exempt status when held by, or included in a report from, the FRT; and
- Meetings and proceedings of an FRT at which identifying information regarding a victim or a victim's child are discussed are exempt from the public meetings requirements. ²²

The public necessity for the exemptions was described by the Legislature as follows:

[In the absence of public records and public meetings exemptions], sensitive personal information concerning victims and victims' children and family members would be disclosed and open communication and coordination among parties involved in the domestic violence fatality reviews would be hampered. Accordingly, the Legislature finds that the harm that would result in the release of such information substantially outweighs any minimal public benefit derived therefrom.²³

In 2005, when the exemption was reviewed as required by the Open Government Sunset Review Act, it was reenacted and expanded in response to the report's findings. Specifically, the report noted:

Several [fatality review] teams reported that a portion of their duties included interviewing family members and survivors of near-fatal incidents of domestic violence. Since the current statute only maintains confidentiality for information which is confidential when it comes to the team, the personal identifying information in new records created as a result of these interviews does not appear to be protected from disclosure, except for the protection against discovery or introduction into court proceedings found in s. 741.316(6), F.S.²⁴

In addition, the report found that the scope of the public meetings exemption was being interpreted in varying ways by FRTs, and recommended that the Legislature clarify "that the meeting exemption only applies to the portions of the meeting in which identifying information is discussed . . . "²⁵ Section 741. 3165, F.S., was amended pursuant to these recommendations, with the Legislature finding public necessity as follows:

In the course of collecting information on domestic violence, the review teams may interview a survivor of domestic violence or the children of the survivor. These individuals may be unlikely to cooperate if they could be identified in records held by a review team because identification could result in potential threats and additional public embarrassment, as well as the exposure of information of a personal, sensitive nature. If these persons were reluctant to participate because they could be identified, this would defeat the purpose of the review teams and limit the collection of potentially valuable information that could be used to make policy and other recommendations that might reduce the frequency of domestic violence in our society.

In the course of collecting information on domestic violence, the review teams obtain confidential or exempt information from other agencies and this information is discussed during meetings of the review teams. If the portions of those meetings at which this confidential or exempt information is discussed are not closed, confidential or exempt information could be disclosed, which would defeat the purpose of those exemptions.²⁶

Because the exemption was substantially amended in 2005, it is now subject to another sunset review.²⁷

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The bill reenacts and saves from repeal s. 741.365, F.S., allowing the records reviewed by an FRT, and the information that identifies a victim or a victim's children when that information is included in records created by an FRT or discussed at an FRT meeting, to remain confidential and exempt from public disclosure.

IV. Constitutional Issues:

A. Municipality/County Mandates Restrictions:

None.

B. Public Records/Open Meetings Issues:

The bill would retain the exemption specified in s. 741.3165, F.S., protecting the records reviewed by an FRT and the information that identifies a victim or a victim's children
