SUMMARY ANALYSIS

Surplus lines insurance refers to a category of insurance for which there is no market available through standard insurance carriers in the admitted market (insurance companies licensed to transact insurance in Florida). Surplus lines insurance companies typically write unique risks that often include high value residential and commercial properties.

Surplus lines insurers are not “authorized” insurers as defined in the Florida Insurance Code and thus do not obtain a certificate of authority from the Office of Insurance Regulation (OIR) to transact insurance in Florida. Rather, surplus lines insurers are “unauthorized” or “nonadmitted” insurers, but are eligible to transact surplus lines insurance under the surplus lines law as “eligible surplus insurers”. In Florida in 2010 there were 172 surplus lines insurers which collected over $3.9 billion in premiums.

Although OIR has some regulatory authority over surplus lines insurers, the Florida Surplus Lines Service Office (Service Office) is directed to oversee the surplus lines industry in Florida and to protect the general public with respect to the placement of surplus lines policies. The Service Office is authorized by law to collect a premium receipts tax of 5 percent which is transferred to General Revenue and a service fee of up to .03 percent to pay the administrative and other costs associated with the office.

In 2010, Federal legislation passed which altered the collection method of surplus lines premium taxes for multi-state risks. Federal law now requires taxes paid by insurers for multi-state risks to be remitted to the home state of the insured, as opposed to the state where the risk is located. Home state within this context means the insured’s principal place of business or residence. Consequently, whereas before, Florida could tax the surplus lines insurance premiums of a company with a principal place of business in another state but had insurance coverage in Florida, the tax will now go to the home state of the insurer. The Service Office estimates that approximately 10 percent of the current premium tax collected could be lost to other states. This would amount to an approximate reduction to the General Revenue Fund of $15-20 million.

Notwithstanding these new Federal requirements, the law does permit states to enter into cooperative reciprocal agreements for collection and allocation of these tax revenues. The bill allows the Department of Financial Services or OIR to enter into such agreements and authorizes the Service Office to implement the same. The bill also provides that surplus lines agents and insureds that do not use agents to procure coverage will have 45 days after the end of the calendar quarter to file an affidavit describing transactions handled during that quarter and pay the required premium tax and fees.

The bill prevents a negative fiscal impact to the state and to the private sector.

The bill takes effect upon becoming a law.

This document does not reflect the intent or official position of the bill sponsor or House of Representatives.

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Background

Surplus Lines Insurance

Surplus lines insurance refers to a category of insurance for which there is no market available through standard insurance carriers in the admitted market (insurance companies licensed to transact insurance in Florida). There are three basic categories of surplus lines risks:

1. specialty risks that have unusual underwriting characteristics or underwriting characteristics that admitted insurers view as undesirable;
2. niche risks for which admitted carriers do not have a filed policy form or rate; and
3. capacity risks which are risks where an insured needs higher coverage limits than those that are available in the admitted market.¹

Surplus lines insurers are not “authorized” insurers as defined in the Florida Insurance Code and thus do not obtain a certificate of authority from the Office of Insurance Regulation (OIR) to transact insurance in Florida.² Rather, surplus lines insurers are “unauthorized” or “nonadmitted” insurers, but are eligible to transact surplus lines insurance under the surplus lines law as “eligible surplus insurers.”³ The OIR determines whether a surplus lines insurer is “eligible” based on statutory guidelines.⁴

Surplus lines insurance is placed by surplus lines insurance agents who are licensed and regulated by the Department of Financial Services (DFS). Licensing requires passing a written examination, having a set amount of experience or training in surplus lines, paying licensing and appointment fees, and posting a $50,000 bond. The bond amount can be increased if DFS believes a greater bond is warranted due to the volume of surplus lines insurance transacted by the insurance agent.⁵

Before an insurance agent can place insurance in the surplus lines market he or she must make a diligent effort to procure the desired coverage from admitted insurers.⁶ A diligent effort means seeking and being denied coverage from at least three authorized insurers in the admitted market unless the cost to replace the property insured is $1 million or more. In that case, diligent effort is seeking and being denied coverage from at least one authorized insurer in the admitted market.⁷

Surplus lines insurance agents must keep specified records of the business it places in the surplus lines market for five years. The entity to which certain information must be provided as well as the entity designated to facilitate compliance and provide assistance and information regarding the Florida surplus lines marketplace is the Florida Surplus Lines Service Office (Service Office). The Service Office is a statutorily mandated, not-for-profit association of all Florida surplus lines agents.⁸

The purposes of the Service Office are to protect consumers seeking insurance in this state; permit surplus lines insurance to be placed with approved surplus lines insurers; establish a self-regulating organization which will promote and permit orderly access to surplus lines insurance in this state; enhance the number and types of insurance products available to consumers in this state; provide a source of advice and counsel concerning the operation of the surplus lines insurance market for consumers, surplus lines agents, insurers and government agencies and protect the revenues of this state.⁹

The Service Office is required to receive, record, and review all surplus lines policies or documents, maintain records of the information reported to the OIR prepare monthly reports for the DFS. The Service Office is also required to prepare and deliver to each surplus lines agent monthly and quarterly reports of each surplus lines agent's business and collect a service fee of up to 0.3 percent of the total gross premium of each policy,¹⁰ along with the surplus lines premium receipts tax of 5 percent of all gross premiums.¹¹ Service fees are used to fund the cost of operations of the Service Office. The premiums receipts tax is forwarded to DFS and deposited into the General Revenue Fund.

Recent Federal Legislation

In 2010, the Nonadmitted and Reinsurance Reform Act (NRRA), which passed as a part of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act,¹² created new Federal law regarding premium taxation and regulation for surplus lines insurance. On July 21, 2011, a uniform system for taxation of surplus lines insurers goes into effect.

A key feature of the NRRA is the concept of "home state." The Act provides that no state other than the home state of an insured may require any premium tax payment for nonadmitted (surplus lines) insurance. Home state generally means the state of the insured's place of business or in the case of an individual, the individual's principal residence. Premium tax means any tax, fee, assessment, or other charge imposed by a government entity directly or indirectly based on any payment made as consideration for an insurance contract.

The Act also provides that the states may enter into a compact or otherwise establish procedures to allocate among the states the premium taxes paid to an insured's home state. Many states are now actively pursuing possible creation of an interstate compact, clearinghouse or other method to ensure that each state receives its "appropriate" share of surplus lines premium tax.

In 2010, the Service Office collected $174.4 million in taxes and $ 75.2 million in assessments for Citizens Property Insurance Corporation, the Florida Hurricane Catastrophe Fund, and for the Emergency Management, Preparedness and Assistance Trust Fund. The Service Office has estimated that approximately 10 percent of the current premium tax collected could be lost to other states if the Legislature does not act during the 2011 session. The ultimate impact on the state's general revenue collections is estimated to be between $15-20 million.¹³

Effect of the Bill:

To prevent the loss of revenue to Florida which will occur when the new federal law goes into effect, the bill makes several changes in the way the premium tax is collected and authorizes entering into cooperative reciprocal agreements with other states. The bill changes the computation of the premium receipts tax to be collected by surplus lines agents for surplus lines coverage on risks or exposures that are only partially in the state. Instead of applying the premium receipts tax to only the portion of the premium that is properly allocable to risks located in Florida, the change will apply the tax to the entire gross premium, but only if Florida is the insured's "home state" as that term is defined in the NRRA . It also makes the same change to the computation of the service fee collected by surplus line agents and provides that if an independently procured policy covers a risk or exposure that is only partially in Florida, and if Florida is the insured's "home state" as defined in the NRRA, then the tax and service fee imposed are computed on the gross premium.

¹³ OIR Bill Analysis on HB 1227, March 19, 2011, on file with the Insurance & Banking Subcommittee.

The bill also creates a new section of law to authorize DFS and the OIR to enter into a cooperative reciprocal agreement with another state or with a group of states for the purpose of collecting and allocating nonadmitted insurance taxes for multistate risks pursuant to the NRRRA.

The terms of any such agreement may include, but are not limited to:

- Creating a clearinghouse for the purpose of facilitating the receipt and distribution of nonadmitted insurance taxes;
- Specifying time requirements for reporting;
- Determining methods for collecting and forwarding nonadmitted insurance taxes to another state;
- Specifying a premium tax allocation formula for multistate risk nonadmitted insurance;
- Providing for audits and the exchange of information; and
- Facilitating the administration of any such agreement in a reasonable manner.

The bill authorizes the Service Office to implement the DFS/OIR agreement and to collect the total tax imposed on a multi-state risk nonadmitted insurance premium. The bill also authorizes DFS and OIR to adopt rules for the administration and enforcement of any such agreement (authorizing OIR to adopt rules is problematic – See Comments).

Also, the bill affirms that the new section and any agreement entered into pursuant thereto control the allocation of nonadmitted insurance taxes for multistate risks, notwithstanding any other provision of law.

The bill modifies current reporting and payment requirements regarding surplus lines insurance. Each surplus lines agent is presently required to file an affidavit with the Service Office stating that all surplus lines insurance transacted by him or her during each calendar quarter has been submitted. Rather than requiring that such an affidavit be filed by the end of the month next following each calendar quarter, the bill requires that each surplus lines agent file this affidavit on or before the 45th day following each calendar quarter.

Regarding payment of service fees, the bill requires that on or before the 45th day following each calendar quarter, surplus lines agents pay the service fees that were collected on all policies during the previous calendar quarter to the Service Office. This provision changes the current requirement that these fees be paid on a monthly basis. Similarly, regarding the payment of premium taxes, the bill provides that any insured who has independently procured coverage shall on or before the 45th day following each calendar quarter, make payable to DFS the amount of the tax on the premium and to the Florida Surplus Lines Service Office the amount of any fee. This provision changes the current requirement that such payments be made within 30 days after the insurance is procured, continued, or renewed.

B. SECTION DIRECTORY:

Section 1. Amends s.626.931, F.S., relating to agent affidavit and insurer reporting requirements.

Section 2. Amends s.626.932, F.S., relating to surplus lines tax.

Section 3. Amends s.626.9325, F.S., relating to service fee.

Section 4. Creates s. 626.9362, F.S., relating to cooperative reciprocal agreement authorized for collection and allocation of certain nonadmitted insurance taxes.

Section 5. Amends s. 626.938, F.S., relating to report and tax of independently procured coverages.

Section 6. Provides that the act shall take effect upon becoming a law.

II. FISCAL ANALYSIS & ECONOMIC IMPACT STATEMENT

A. FISCAL IMPACT ON STATE GOVERNMENT:

1. Revenues:

If enacted, there will be no impact to General Revenue. However, the failure to enter into a compact or otherwise establish procedures to allocate among the states the premium taxes paid to an insured's home state could result in a reduction of $15-20 million annually.

Also, an Emergency Management Preparedness and Assistance (EMPA) surcharge is currently levied on surplus lines insurance policyholders, collected by the Service Office and deposited into the EMPA Trust Fund. In 2010 the Service Office collected $952,000 in EMPA surcharges. Unlike the premium receipts tax and the service fee (which is also based on premium dollars) the EMPA surcharge is per policy, so the aforementioned 10 percent reduction may not be applicable. However, it is reasonable to assume that there will be a decrease in revenue to the EMPA Trust Fund if cooperative reciprocal agreements with other states are not finalized.

2. Expenditures:

The OIR states that implementation of the legislation can be absorbed within current resources of the office.¹⁴

B. FISCAL IMPACT ON LOCAL GOVERNMENTS:

1. Revenues:

None.

2. Expenditures:

None.

C. DIRECT ECONOMIC IMPACT ON PRIVATE SECTOR:

Assessments for Citizens Property Insurance Corporation and the Florida Hurricane Catastrophe Fund will be reduced by the failure to collect "taxes" from other home state insureds. Consequently, without agreement(s) with other states the assessment burden will shift to the admitted market and property and casualty insurance policyholders will pay more in assessments.

D. FISCAL COMMENTS:

III. COMMENTS

A. CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUES:

1. Applicability of Municipality/County Mandates Provision:

Not applicable. This bill does not appear to: require counties or municipalities to spend funds or take an action requiring the expenditure of funds; reduce the authority that counties or municipalities have to raise revenues in the aggregate; or reduce the percentage of a state tax shared with counties or municipalities.

2. Other:

None

¹⁴ Id.

B. RULE-MAKING AUTHORITY:

The bill authorizes DFS to adopt rules for the administration and enforcement of a cooperative reciprocal agreement with other states.

C. DRAFTING ISSUES OR OTHER COMMENTS:

None.

IV. AMENDMENTS/ COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE CHANGES

On March 23, 2011, the Insurance & Banking Subcommittee considered HB 1227 and adopted five amendments. Four amendments were purely technical in nature and the fifth amendment deleted rulemaking authority for the Office of Insurance Regulation.

The Subcommittee passed the bill as amended. This analysis has been modified to reflect the Committee Substitute.
