SUMMARY ANALYSIS

The bill requires each district school board to list in its emergency response policy the emergency response agency responsible for notifying the school district regarding each type of emergency. District model emergency management and preparedness procedures for weather emergencies and other situations must also list the agencies with notification responsibilities. The bill requires the emergency response agency identified in a district school board's emergency policies and procedures to notify private schools in the district of occurrences that threaten student safety if the private school requests such notification by opting into the district school board's notification procedures.

Florida law requires each district school board to establish emergency response policies and model emergency management and preparedness procedures. Emergency response policies must include procedures for responding to fires, natural disasters, and bomb threats. Model emergency management and preparedness procedures must address life-threatening emergencies, such as weapon-use and hostage situations; hazardous materials or toxic chemical spills; weather emergencies; and exposure resulting from manmade emergencies. Florida law does not expressly require that district school board emergency response policies and procedures list the agency responsible for notifying the school district regarding each type of emergency.

Private school emergency policies are not regulated by the state. Private schools typically make arrangements to receive notification of emergencies from the appropriate emergency response agency. Florida law does not expressly authorize private schools to opt into school district emergency notification procedures for the purpose of receiving emergency notifications.

The bill does not have fiscal impact on state or local governments.

The bill takes effect July 1, 2011.

FULL ANALYSIS

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Present Situation

Florida law requires each district school board to establish emergency response policies and model emergency management and preparedness procedures. Emergency response policies must include procedures for responding to fires, natural disasters, and bomb threats. Commonly used alarm system responses for specific types of emergencies must be incorporated into such policies.¹ Additionally, district school boards must establish model emergency management and preparedness procedures for weapon-use and hostage situations; hazardous materials or toxic chemical spills; weather emergencies, including hurricanes, tornadoes, and severe storms; and exposure resulting from manmade emergencies.²

Florida law does not expressly require that school district emergency response policies and model emergency management and preparedness procedures list the agency responsible for notifying the school district regarding emergencies. However, cooperation with emergency response agencies is incorporated into the Safety and Security Best Practices, a self-assessment tool that each school district must use to annually assess the effectiveness of district emergency response policies. Among other “best practices,” the self-assessment suggests that school districts:

- Make arrangements to work with local emergency officials, including, without limitation, law enforcement; fire department; emergency management; hospital, mental health, health, and social services agencies; and court officials.
- Share comprehensive school safety plans and emergency procedures with appropriate emergency response agencies.
- Implement procedures for contacting all district schools simultaneously regarding an emergency.³

Private school emergency policies are not regulated by the state.⁴ Private schools typically make arrangements to receive notification of emergencies from the appropriate emergency response agency. Despite such arrangements, private schools do not always receive notification.⁵ Florida law does not expressly authorize private schools to opt into district school board emergency notification procedures for the purpose of receiving notification of emergencies from an emergency response agency.⁶

IV. AMENDMENTS/ COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE CHANGES

On March 23, 2011, the K-20 Competitiveness Subcommittee adopted one amendment and reported the bill favorably as a committee substitute. The original bill could be construed to require a district school board to select an emergency response agency to be responsible for notifying the school district regarding emergencies. The amendment clarifies that each district school board is simply required to list in its emergency policies and procedures each agency that notifies the school district for each type of emergency.
