20 provisional technology certification that the course complies
21 with the requirements of this section before offering the course
22 using technology as the delivery method. After provisional 23 certification and completion of the course by 3,000 students, 24 the department shall conduct an evaluation to assess the 25 effectiveness of the course. During the pendency of the 26 effectiveness study, the course provider may provide instruction 27 to no more than 3,000 additional students. Upon determination by 28 the department that the course is effective, the course provider
29 shall be granted certification.
