I. Summary:

The bill repeals s. 388.191, F.S., which grants the board of commissioners of a mosquito control district the power of eminent domain to condemn any land or easements necessary for the purposes of mosquito control. The section also permits the board to hold, control, and acquire any real or personal property for use by the district. The board is permitted by this section to begin and maintain condemnation proceedings, pursuant to ch. 73, F.S., to obtain real and personal property by eminent domain.

The bill repeals section 388.191 of the Florida Statutes.

II. Present Situation:

Mosquito Control Districts

Section 388.101, F.S., provides that it is the public policy of the state to control mosquitoes in such a manner as to protect health and safety, improve quality of life, promote economic development, and allow for enjoyment of natural attractions of the state. To that end, the Florida Anti-Mosquito Association, now known as the Florida Mosquito Control Association, was established in 1922.<sup>1</sup> Soon after the creation of the association, special taxing districts for mosquito control were established by statute. The first mosquito control district (MCD) formed was the Indian River Mosquito Control District in 1925.<sup>2</sup> By 1935, five mosquito control districts were created.<sup>3</sup> There are approximately 56 MCDs in Florida.<sup>4</sup>

Chapter 388, F.S., governs and regulates the operation of MCDs in the state. The chapter authorizes the MCDs to take whatever steps are necessary to control all species of mosquito within the confines of applicable state and federal law.<sup>5</sup> Mosquito control is accomplished through a concept known as integrated mosquito management (IMM), which uses multidisciplinary methodologies to implement pest control strategies.<sup>6</sup> IMM includes source reduction, which includes digging ditches and ponds in marsh areas and eliminating standing water that serves as a breeding ground for mosquitoes.<sup>7</sup> IMM also includes the use of mosquito fish in ditches and ponds to eat mosquito larvae.<sup>8</sup> Another method of mosquito control is larviciding, or the application of insecticides to target and eliminate immature mosquitoes in bodies of water harboring larvae and pupae.<sup>9</sup> Florida MCDs use permanent strategies to control mosquitoes, including impounding water, ditching, and draining swampy areas that serve as mosquito breeding grounds. Florida MCDs also use temporary control measures, such as aerosol spraying by ground and aerial equipment to kill adult and larval mosquitoes.<sup>10</sup>

The Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services (DACS) administers and enforces the laws associated with mosquito control in Florida.<sup>11</sup> The Coordinating Council on Mosquito Control was established by statute to assist the DACS in developing and implementing guidelines to resolve disputes associated with mosquito control on public land.<sup>12</sup>

Section 388.191, F.S., permits the board of commissioners of an MCD to hold, control, and acquire any real or personal property for the use of the district. The section also permits the board of commissioners to condemn any land or easements for use by the district. Lastly, the section permits the board of commissioners to exercise the right of eminent domain and begin and continue condemnation proceedings pursuant to the procedure outlined in chapter 73, F.S.

Eminent Domain

Eminent domain is generally defined as the power of the nation or a sovereign state to take, or to authorize the taking of, private property for a public use without the owner's consent, conditioned upon the payment of just compensation.<sup>13</sup> Eminent domain also refers to a legal <sup>5</sup> In addition to ch. 388, F.S., ch. 487, F.S., Pesticide Regulation and Safety, regulates the use of pesticides in controlling mosquitoes. Chapter 5E-2, F.A.C., regulates pesticide registration in Florida. Also, states must comply with the provisions of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), 7 U.S.C. § 136 et seq.

proceeding in which a government asserts its authority to condemn property, while inverse condemnation is a shorthand description of the manner in which a landowner recovers just compensation for a taking of his or her property when condemnation proceedings have not been instituted.<sup>14</sup> An inverse condemnation action is initiated by the property owner, rather than the governmental entity.<sup>15</sup>

Eminent domain is subject to constitutional prohibitions found in both the federal and state constitutions.<sup>16</sup> The U.S. Constitution requires that property cannot be taken for public use without just compensation.<sup>17</sup> Section 6, Art. X of the Florida Constitution reads:

- a) No private property shall be taken except for a public purpose and with full compensation therefor paid to each owner or secured by deposit in the registry of the court and available to the owner.
- (b) Provision may be made by law for the taking of easements, by like proceedings, for the drainage of the land of one person over or through the land of another.
- (c) Private property taken by eminent domain pursuant to a petition to initiate condemnation proceedings filed on or after January 2, 2007, may not be conveyed to a natural person or private entity except as provided by general law passed by a three-fifths vote of the membership of each house of the Legislature.

The “full compensation” mandated by the state constitution is restricted to the value of the condemned land,<sup>18</sup> the value of associated appurtenances and improvements, and damages to the remaining land,<sup>19</sup> i.e., severance damages.<sup>20</sup> Florida’s law governing eminent domain can be found in chapters 73 and 74 of the Florida Statutes. Except as limited or prohibited by constitutional provisions,<sup>21</sup> there can be no taking of private property for public use against the will of the owner without direct authority from the legislature.<sup>22</sup>

Statutory Eminent Domain Procedures

The statutory eminent domain procedures in ch. 73, F.S., include presuit negotiations between a governmental entity exercising its rights and the land owner,<sup>23</sup> offers of judgment,<sup>24</sup> jury trials,<sup>25</sup>

Powelson*, 319 U.S. 266, 275, 63 S.Ct. 1047, 87 L.Ed. 1390 (1943) (“...the value may be determined in light of the special or higher use of the land”).

compensation,<sup>26</sup> business damage offers,<sup>27</sup> and costs and attorneys' fees related to the proceeding.<sup>28</sup> Eminent domain actions proceeding to trial require a jury of 12 persons in the circuit court of the county where the property lies.<sup>29</sup> Eminent domain procedures take precedence over all other civil matters.<sup>30</sup>

Supplementary procedures for eminent domain actions in ch. 74, F.S., are commonly referred to as "quick-take" provisions. Under the quick-take provisions, certain entities, including municipalities and public utilities, may take possession of land subject to an eminent domain proceeding in advance of the entry of final judgment.<sup>31</sup> Eminent domain procedures, especially quick-take procedures, offer certain advantages. For the property owner, the only issue in dispute is the amount of compensation for the property taken. Under quick-take, a governmental entity is required to deposit, with the court, an amount not less than the petitioner's estimate of value and, in some circumstances, twice the estimated value of the property, until the amount of compensation is determined by the final judgment.<sup>32</sup>

Since 1959, when s. 388.191, F.S., was enacted, state and federal case law regarding eminent domain powers of the government have significantly evolved. MCD boards are political subdivisions,<sup>33</sup> created by statute, with eminent domain powers.<sup>34</sup>

According to the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, the eminent domain power has not been used in recent memory, and would likely be unpopular if it were exerted by a mosquito control district.<sup>35</sup> Recent land issues have been resolved through the purchase of land by the mosquito control district.<sup>36</sup> In addition, s. 388.181, F.S., provides that MCDs are "...fully authorized to do and perform all things necessary to carry out the intent and purposes of this law." This statutory language would include the authority to exercise eminent domain power pursuant to chapter 73, F.S. As a result, s. 388.191, F.S., is duplicative and extraneous.

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

Section 1 repeals s. 388.191, F.S., relating to the power of eminent domain.

Section 2 provides an effective date of July 1, 2012.
