SUMMARY ANALYSIS

Currently, the Florida Parole Commission re-interviews parole eligible inmates to review the inmate's presumptive parole release date (PPRD). Generally, inmates are re-interviewed every two years. However, the statute provides for re-interviews every seven years if an inmate's PPRD is more than seven years from the date of the initial interview and if the inmate is serving a 25-year minimum mandatory sentence under s. 775.082, F.S., or the inmate was convicted of:

- Murder,
- Attempted murder, or
- Sexual battery or attempted sexual battery.

This bill increases the intervals between parole interview dates from two to seven years for inmates convicted of:

- Kidnapping; or
- Robbery, burglary of dwelling, or burglary of a structure or conveyance in which a human being is present and a sexual act is completed or attempted.

The bill does not appear to have a fiscal impact and is effective on July 1, 2012.

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Background

Parole is a discretionary prison release mechanism administered by the Florida Parole Commission (commission) through chs. 947, 948, and 949, F.S. An inmate who is granted parole is allowed to serve the remainder of his or her prison sentence outside of confinement according to terms and conditions established by the commission. Parolees are supervised by Correctional Probation Officers of the Department of Corrections (department). Parole is not available for most crimes that were committed on or after October 1, 1983.¹ There is no parole eligibility for any crime committed on or after October 1, 1995. The commission reports that currently there are 5,360 Florida inmates still eligible for parole consideration with about 489 under supervision in the community.²

The parole process begins with the setting of a presumptive parole release date (PPRD) by the commission after a hearing examiner reviews the inmate's file, conducts an initial interview with the inmate, and makes an initial recommendation to a panel of commissioners.³ The PPRD is the tentative parole release date as determined by objective parole guidelines.⁴ An inmate may request one review of the initial PPRD within 60 days after notification.⁵ Otherwise, the PPRD is not reviewed until a hearing examiner holds subsequent interviews with the inmate.⁶

Subsequent interviews for review of the PPRD may be held every two years or every seven years depending on the offense the inmate was convicted of.⁷ Generally, inmates are re-interviewed every two years.⁸ However, the statute provides for less frequent reviews if an inmate's PPRD is more than seven years from the date of the initial interview and if the inmate was convicted of: murder, attempted murder, sexual battery, or attempted sexual battery, or is serving a 25-year minimum mandatory sentence under s. 775.082, F.S.⁹ In such cases, the subsequent interviews may be conducted every seven years if the commission makes a written finding that it is not reasonable to expect that parole will be granted.^{10,11}

Subsequent interviews are limited to determining whether or not information has been gathered that might affect the PPRD.¹² The department is responsible for bringing to the attention of the commission any information that may be pertinent for review, such as an inmate's current progress reports, psychological reports, and disciplinary reports.¹³

After an interview is conducted the hearing examiner sends his or her report and recommendation to a panel of commissioners.¹⁴ The inmate's case is then added to the docket of the next available parole hearing date where the commission will hear public testimony and make a final decision regarding the ¹The exceptions are for capital felony murders committed prior to October 1, 1994, and capital felony sexual battery prior to October 1, 1995.

If the judge vacates the parole release order and denies the parole, the offender shall be re-interviewed by the commission every two or seven years as determined by the same criteria described in this cited paragraph.

PPRD recommendation. Inmates are not permitted to attend parole hearings.¹⁵ At parole hearings, victims and their families, inmates' families, attorneys, law enforcement, and other interested parties may address the commission.¹⁶ The commission's Victims' Services unit provides advance notice to victims of upcoming parole proceedings.¹⁷

The hearing examiner conducts a final interview of the inmate within 90 days of the PPRD in order to set an effective parole release date and to establish a parole release plan.¹⁸ The commission is required to give notice to the sentencing court prior to this final interview.¹⁹ If the court objects to the offender's release, the objection can be an exceptional circumstance under s. 947.173, F.S., for the commission to cancel the final interview and reset the case for future review.²⁰ If the court does not object and the final interview is held, the commission then holds a final public hearing at which it decides whether the inmate's parole release plan is satisfactory and whether to authorize the effective parole release date and enter a release order.²¹

Proposed Changes

As noted above, the Florida Parole Commission re-interviews parole eligible inmates to review the inmate's presumptive parole release date (PPRD). Generally, inmates are re-interviewed every two years. However, the statute provides for re-interviews every seven years if an inmate's PPRD is more than seven years from the date of the initial interview and if the inmate is serving a 25-year minimum mandatory sentence under s. 775.082, F.S., or the inmate was convicted of:

- Murder,
- Attempted murder, or
- Sexual battery or attempted sexual battery.

This bill increases the intervals between parole interview dates from two to seven years for inmates convicted of:

- Kidnapping; or
- Robbery, burglary of dwelling, or burglary of a structure or conveyance in which a human being is present and a sexual act is completed or attempted.

II. FISCAL ANALYSIS & ECONOMIC IMPACT STATEMENT

A. FISCAL IMPACT ON STATE GOVERNMENT:

1. Revenues:

The bill does not appear to have any impact on state revenues.

2. Expenditures:

The Parole Commission, through working with the Department of Corrections, reports that this bill will affect an estimated 162 to 531 inmates. However, the Parole Commission reports that the bill will have no impact on the number of commission hearings held annually because the workload associated with these subsequent parole interviews is not being eliminated; it is merely being postponed for an additional time period.

This bill is similar to SB 200 which passed during the 2010 Legislative Session. Senate Bill 200 extended the interview dates from five to seven years for specified crimes which resulted in a workload equivalent to 0.5 FTE ($26,968 annually).²² However, unlike SB 200, where interview dates were based upon the crime the offender committed, this bill bases the interview dates upon the behavior during the crime.²³

B. FISCAL IMPACT ON LOCAL GOVERNMENTS:

1. Revenues:

The bill does not appear to have any impact on local government revenues.

2. Expenditures:

The bill does not appear to have any impact on local government expenditures.

C. DIRECT ECONOMIC IMPACT ON PRIVATE SECTOR:

None.

D. FISCAL COMMENTS:

None.

III. COMMENTS

A. CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUES:

1. Applicability of Municipality/County Mandates Provision:

This bill appears to be exempt from the requirements of Article VII, Section 18 of the Florida Constitution because it is a criminal law.

2. Other:

On June 1, 1997, the Legislature changed the frequency of subsequent parole interviews for certain prisoners from every two years to every five years.²⁴ According to the Third District Court of Appeal, the ex post facto clause was not violated by the retroactive application of this law as it applied to a limited number of inmates and was narrowly constructed.²⁵

B. RULE-MAKING AUTHORITY:

The bill does not appear to create a need for rulemaking or rulemaking authority.

C. DRAFTING ISSUES OR OTHER COMMENTS:

None.

IV. AMENDMENTS/ COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE CHANGES

On November 15, 2011, the Criminal Justice Subcommittee approved one amendment and reported the bill favorably as a committee substitute. The amendment clarifies which crimes the phrase “in which a human being is present and a sexual act is completed or attempted” applies to.

The analysis is drafted to the committee substitute as passed by the Criminal Justice Subcommittee.
