BILL ANALYSIS AND FISCAL IMPACT STATEMENT

(This document is based on the provisions contained in the legislation as of the latest date listed below.)

Prepared By: The Professional Staff of the Committee on Children, Families, and Elder Affairs

BILL: SPB 7122

INTRODUCER: For consideration by the Children, Families, and Elder Affairs Committee

SUBJECT: Reimbursement for Crisis Stabilization Unit Services

DATE: March 31, 2014

REVISED: _____

ANALYST	STAFF DIRECTOR	REFERENCE	ACTION
1. Crosier	Hendon		Pre-meeting

I. Summary:

SPB 7122 directs the Department of Children and Families (DCF) to require the behavioral health managing entities to implement a new reimbursement methodology for crisis stabilization unit services by January 1, 2015. DCF is directed to maintain a statewide database to track utilization of crisis stabilization services regardless of available funding.

The bill is not expected to have a fiscal impact and the effective date is July 1, 2014.

II. Present Situation:

Individuals experiencing severe emotional or behavioral problems often require emergency treatment to stabilize their situations before referral for outpatient services or inpatient services can occur. Emergency mental health stabilization services may be provided to voluntary or involuntary patients. Involuntary patients must be taken to one of the state's designated receiving facilities. Receiving facilities are defined by the Florida Mental Health Act (ss. 394.451 – 394.4789, F.S.) and are referred to as Baker Act Receiving Facilities.¹ According to the Department of Children and Families (department or DCF), the Florida Legislature enacted the Florida Mental Health Act in 1971 to revise the state's mental health commitment laws. The Act substantially strengthened the due process and civil rights of persons in mental health facilities and those alleged to be in need of emergency evaluation and treatment. A major intent of the Act was to increase community care of persons with mental illnesses.²

The purpose of receiving facilities is to receive and hold involuntary patients under emergency conditions or for psychiatric evaluation and to provide short-term treatment. Law enforcement officers usually transport individuals requiring involuntary Baker Act examinations to the nearest receiving facility.³ However, involuntary examinations may be initiated by a court order, a certificate executed by a physician, clinical psychologist, psychiatric nurse, mental health counselor, marriage and family therapist, or clinical social worker or by self-presentation.⁴ The facility must accept individuals brought by a law enforcement officer for involuntary examination, regardless of bed availability.⁵ Receiving facilities may be either public or private but only facilities with a contract with a managing entity to provide mental health services to all persons, regardless of their ability to pay, and receiving state funds for this purpose are considered public receiving facilities.⁶ Transfer of individuals between public facilities, between public and private facilities, and private and public receiving facilities is permitted.⁷ Funds appropriated for Baker Act services may only pay for services to diagnostically and financially-eligible persons, or those who are acutely ill, in need of mental health services, and the least able to pay.

Crisis Stabilization Units (CSUs) are public receiving facilities, receive state funding and provide a less intensive and less costly alternative to inpatient psychiatric hospitalizations for individuals presenting as acutely mentally ill. CSUs screen, assess, and admit for short-term services persons brought to the unit under the Baker Act as well as those who present themselves for services.⁸ CSUs provide services 24 hours a day, seven days a week through a team of mental health professionals. The purpose of the CSU is to examine, stabilize, and redirect people to the most appropriate and least restrictive treatment settings, consistent with their mental health needs. Individuals often enter the public mental health system through CSUs.⁹

The department contracts with a single private non-profit entity at the local level (managing entities) for the administration and oversight of community mental health and substance abuse services.¹⁰ Managing entities have assumed the responsibility for purchasing, managing, and monitoring behavioral health services in the state. The department's contracts with the managing entities are required to include payment methods that promote flexibility, efficiency, and accountability. Managing entities must follow current statutes and rules that require CSUs be paid for bed availability rather than utilization.

As of January 2014, the department's expenditures for adult CSUs, Baker Act, and Inpatient Crisis Services was $50.4 million. Expenditures for the same services for children was $10.9 million.¹¹ As of March 2014, there were 51 public receiving facilities with 1,971 beds and 66 private receiving facilities with 3,118 beds available. The department has a contracted capacity of 2,987 adults and 478 children for FY 2013-2014. Based on the Florida Mental Health Institute's Annual Report of Baker Act Data Summary for 2012, released February 2014, in calendar year 2012 there were 157,352 involuntary examinations initiated.¹²

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

Section 1 creates a new subsection 10 of s. 394.9082, F.S., to direct the department to require its contracted managing entities to implement a reimbursement methodology for crisis stabilization unit (CSU) services by January 1, 2015. The bill requires each managing entity to:

- Enter into agreements with providers qualified to serve as public receiving facilities located within the managing entity's designated service area.
- Enter into agreements with any receiving facility located within the same service area that chooses to participate. Private receiving facilities that choose not to participate cannot be paid by the managing entity for involuntary care.
- Using no more than one-quarter of the funds provided to managing entities for crisis stabilization services, a base funding amount not to exceed a minimum utilization level set out by the managing entity, is to be allocated to receiving facilities that signed agreements with the managing entity. This funding is to be proportionate to the number of involuntary admissions to the receiving facility in the prior fiscal year and updated annually.
- The managing entity shall use the balance of the funds provided for crisis stabilization services to provide a per diem reimbursement to receiving facilities with a signed agreement.
- Per diem payments shall be made by the managing entity when a claim is submitted by the receiving facility following the patient's discharge. Claims must include the identity of the patient; the date of admission; date of discharge; lack of third-party coverage; services provided during the stay; and whether the patient was discharged to his or her home or to another facility.
- Based on available funds, cost of service, and the expected total days of care in the area, each managing entity will define a standard per diem reimbursement rate.
- As part of the written agreement between the managing entity and the receiving facility, caps on the amount of reimbursements that each receiving facility may earn in a month may be established by the managing entity. The caps must be proportionate to the days of care provided by the receiving facility.
- After three months, if the total reimbursements paid during the period are less than one-quarter of the funds available for this purpose, the remaining funds shall be distributed by the managing entity in an amount proportionate to the days of care provided by each receiving facility.

This section also requires each receiving facility that signs an agreement with the managing entity to provide crisis stabilization unit services to accept all patients. The receiving facility must also agree to accept the base funding and reimbursement of adjudicated claims as payment in full for services provided to involuntary patients.

The department is directed to establish uniform standards for the data that must be submitted by the providers with their claims. The department is directed to establish a statewide database to compile claims data from the managing entities to track use of crisis stabilization services regardless of available funding. The claims data must be securely maintained consistent with state and federal law.

The department is to submit a report to the Governor, the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives by January 31, 2016, and annually thereafter. The report is to include a description of fund expended, base allocations and per diem rates in each service area, total reimbursements paid to each provider, the amount of quarterly distributions, and the amount of unfunded care in each service area.

Section 2 provides an effective date of July 1, 2014.
