Delete lines 312 - 329

and insert:

2. Test the processed cannabis before it is dispensed.
Results must be verified and signed by two dispensing organization employees. Before dispensing low-THC cannabis, the dispensing organization must determine that the test results indicate that the low-THC cannabis meets the definition of low-THC cannabis and, for medical cannabis, low-THC cannabis, or any other type of cannabis, that all such cannabis is safe for human 12 consumption and free from contaminants that are unsafe for human 13 consumption. The dispensing organization must also determine 14 that the test results indicate that any presence of microbials, 15 mold, pesticides, fertilizers, harmful chemicals, and toxins in 16 the cannabis is safe for human consumption before dispensing the 17 cannabis. The dispensing organization must retain records of all 18 testing and samples of each homogenous batch of cannabis and 19 low-THC cannabis for at least 9 months. The dispensing 20 organization must contract with the independent testing 21 laboratory to perform audits on the dispensing organization's 22 standard operating procedures, testing records, and samples and 23 provide the results to the department to confirm that the 24 cannabis meets the requirements of this section and that it is 25 safe for human consumption.
