SUMMARY ANALYSIS

Article I, s. 24(b) of the State Constitution sets forth the state's public policy regarding access to government meetings. It requires all meetings of any collegial public body of the executive branch of state government or of any collegial public body of a county, municipality, school district, or special district, at which official acts are to be taken or at which public business of such body is to be transacted or discussed, to be noticed and open to the public.

The "Government in the Sunshine Law" further requires all meetings of any board or commission of any state agency or authority or of any agency or authority of any county, municipal corporation, or political subdivision at which official acts are to be taken to be open to the public at all times. The board or commission must provide reasonable notice of all public meetings. Minutes of a public meeting must be promptly recorded and be open to public inspection.

The bill defines "de facto meeting" as the use of board or commission staff or third parties, acting as intermediaries, to facilitate a discussion of public business between or among board or commission members. The bill clarifies that de facto meetings are subject to the Sunshine Law.

The bill specifies that members of the same board or commission may participate in fact-finding exercises or excursions to research public business, and may participate in meetings with a member of the Legislature, if:

- The board or commission provides reasonable notice;
- The exercise, excursion, or meeting is open to the public;
- A vote, an official act, or an agreement regarding an action at a future meeting does not occur;
- There is no discussion of "public business" that occurs; and
- There are appropriate records, minutes, audio recordings, or video recordings made and retained as a public record.

The bill does not appear to have a fiscal impact on the state or local governments.

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Background

Public Meetings Law

Article I, s. 24(b) of the State Constitution sets forth the state's public policy regarding access to government meetings. It requires all meetings of any collegial public body of the executive branch of state government or of any collegial public body of a county, municipality, school district, or special district, at which official acts are to be taken or at which public business of such body is to be transacted or discussed, to be noticed and open to the public.

Public policy regarding access to government meetings is also addressed in the Florida Statutes. Section 286.011, F.S., known as the "Government in the Sunshine Law" or "Sunshine Law," further requires all meetings of any board or commission of any state agency or authority or of any agency or authority of any county, municipal corporation, or political subdivision at which official acts are to be taken to be open to the public at all times. The board or commission must provide reasonable notice of all public meetings.¹ Minutes of a public meeting must be promptly recorded and be open to public inspection.²

No resolution, rule, or formal action is considered binding, unless action is taken or made at a public meeting.³ Acts taken by a board or commission in violation of this requirement are considered void,⁴ though a failure to comply with open meeting requirements may be cured by independent final action by the board or commission fully in compliance with public meeting requirements.⁵

The Sunshine Law applies to "[m]embers-elect of boards, commissions, agencies, etc." as soon as they are elected, even if they have not yet been sworn into office.⁶ Any assemblage of members-elect or elected members of a collegial body who "discuss matters on which foreseeable action may be taken by that board or commission" constitutes a meeting subject to the Sunshine Law.⁷

Definition of "Meeting"

The Legislature has not defined the term "meeting" within the context of the Sunshine Law. However, the courts provide a definition. In Sarasota Citizens for Responsible Gov't v. City of Sarasota, the Florida Supreme Court stated:

[M]eetings within the meaning of the Sunshine Law include any gathering, formal or informal, of two or more members of the same board or commission where the members deal with some matter on which foreseeable action will be taken by the Board.⁸

The Court has also interpreted the intent of the Sunshine Law in relation to the types of assemblages that constitute a “meeting”:

The obvious intent of the Government in the Sunshine Law, supra, was to cover any gathering of some of the members of a public board where those members discuss some matters on which foreseeable action may be taken by the board.⁹

A meeting, within the meaning of the Sunshine Law, can occur even if the members of a collegial body do not speak to each other about a topic where foreseeable action may take place. Courts have ruled that the opportunity to make a decision was sufficient to make a gathering of school officials a public meeting.¹⁰ In one case, school board members, two school board candidates, a superintendent and his deputy, and members of the press, toured new school bus routes on a school bus. The school board members sat several rows away from each other as a precaution and none of the members discussed preferences, expressed opinions, or voted on the bus trip.¹¹ Despite taking those precautions, the court opined that the school board “had ultimate decision-making authority,” gathered in a confined space, and had “the opportunity at that time to make decisions outside of the public scrutiny.” Therefore, the court held that the bus ride was a meeting that violated the Sunshine Law.¹²

A “sunshine meeting” may also occur even if the members of a board do not assemble or share information through an intermediary. In this case, a superintendent met individual school board members in succession to discuss redistricting, but denied acting as a “go-between” or sharing the opinions of one board member with another one.¹³ Although board members did not exchange information or otherwise congregate, the court, in finding a violation of the Sunshine Law, held:

The scheduling of six sessions of secret discussions, repetitive in content, in rapid-fire seriatim and of such obvious official portent, resulted in de facto meetings by two or more members of the board at which official action was taken.¹⁴

Any meeting when public officials meet to avoid being seen or heard by the public violates the Sunshine Law, regardless of whether that meeting is formal or informal.¹⁵ The judiciary has advised, “[i]f a public official is unable to know whether by convening two or more officials he is violating the law, he should leave the meeting forthwith.”¹⁶

Not all meetings of government officials are subject to the Sunshine Law, and the presence of two government officials alone is not sufficient to require a public meeting.¹⁷ In addition to the exemptions listed in statute, staff meetings and fact-finding meetings are exceptions to the Sunshine Law and there is no requirement that these meetings be open and noticed to the public.

Officials may also meet alone with their staff or employees for “fact-finding” purposes in order to execute their duties without violating the Sunshine Law.¹⁸ In addition, case law states that as long as they do not have decision-making authority, “fact-finding” committees are not subject to the Sunshine Law.¹⁹ The Florida Supreme Court ruled that “[w]hen a committee has been established for and

Effect of the Bill

The bill creates the following definitions:

- “De facto meeting” means the use of board or commission staff or third parties, acting as intermediaries, to facilitate a discussion of public business between or among board or commission members.
- “Discussion” means a conversation between or among board or commission members regardless of whether through oral, written, electronic, or any other form of communication.
- “Meeting” means a gathering, whether formal or informal, of two or more members elected to or of the same board or commission, even if they have not yet taken office.
- “Official act” means the adoption of a resolution or rule or other formal action being taken by the board or commission.
- “Public business” means any matter before, or foreseeably expected to come before, the board or commission.

The bill clarifies that de facto meetings are subject to the Sunshine Law.

The bill also specifies that members of the same board or commission may participate in fact-finding exercises or excursions to research public business, and may participate in meetings with a member of the Legislature, if:

- The board or commission provides reasonable notice;
- The exercise, excursion, or meeting is open to the public;
- A vote, an official act, or an agreement regarding an action at a future meeting does not occur;
- There is no discussion of “public business” that occurs; and
- There are appropriate records, minutes, audio recordings, or video recordings made and retained as a public record.

IV. AMENDMENTS/ COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE CHANGES

On February 26, 2018, the Government Accountability Committee adopted a proposed committee substitute and reported the bill favorably as a committee substitute. The proposed committee substitute:

- Specified that fact-finding exercises and excursions as well as meetings with a member of the Legislature must be open to the public; and
- Removed a provision from the bill that specified that the bill may not be construed to require public notice of, and access to, any gathering of two or more members of the same board or commission.

This analysis is drafted to the committee substitute as approved by the Government Accountability Committee.
