

The Florida Senate
BILL ANALYSIS AND FISCAL IMPACT STATEMENT

(This document is based on the provisions contained in the legislation as of the latest date listed below.)

Prepared By: The Professional Staff of the Committee on Banking and Insurance

BILL: SB 122

INTRODUCER: Senator Broxson

SUBJECT: Attorney Fee Awards Under Insurance Policies and Contracts

DATE: February 11, 2019

REVISED: _____

	ANALYST	STAFF DIRECTOR	REFERENCE	ACTION
1.	Billmeier	Knudson	BI	Pre-meeting
2.			JU
3.			RC

I. Summary:

SB 122 provides that the right to attorney fees under ss. 626.9373 and 627.428, F.S., may not be assigned or extended by contract or other agreement to any person other than a named insured, named beneficiary, or omnibus insured.

Sections 626.9373 and 627.428, F.S., allow a named insured, named beneficiary, or omnibus insured to recover attorney fees if it obtains a judgment against an insurer or prevails on appeal. In 1972, the Florida Supreme Court held that the right to recover attorney fees under the statutes extended to persons who have accepted an assignment of post-loss benefits, such as contractors.

This bill would limit the assignees of post-loss benefits that may recover attorney fees under 626.9373, F.S. or 627.428, F.S., to a named insured, named beneficiary, or omnibus insured.¹ Assignees of post-loss benefits such as contractors, motor vehicle repair shops, and medical providers would no longer be able to recover attorney fees under s. 626.9373, F.S., or s. 627.428, F.S.²

This bill takes effect on July 1, 2019.

II. Present Situation:

Attorney Fees in Insurance Litigation

In general, parties to a lawsuit each pay their own attorney fees unless statutes or contractual provisions provide otherwise. Section 627.428, F.S., provides, in part:

² Unless the assignee is a named insured, named beneficiary, or omnibus insured.

Upon the rendition of a judgment or decree by any of the courts of this state against an insurer and in favor of any named or omnibus insured or the named beneficiary under a policy or contract executed by the insurer, the trial court or, in the event of an appeal in which the insured or beneficiary prevails, the appellate court shall adjudge or decree against the insurer and in favor of the insured or beneficiary a reasonable sum as fees or compensation for the insured's or beneficiary's attorney prosecuting the suit in which the recovery is had.³

This statute allows an insured to recover his or her own attorney fees if the insured prosecutes a lawsuit to enforce an insurance policy. Some version of this statute has been the law in Florida since at least 1893.⁴

The Florida Supreme Court recently explained the purpose of the statute:

The need for fee and cost reimbursement in the realm of insurance litigation is deeply rooted in public policy. Namely, the Legislature recognized that it was essential to "level the playing field" between the economically-advantaged and sophisticated insurance companies and the individual citizen. Most assuredly, the average policyholder has neither the finances nor the expertise to single-handedly take on an insurance carrier. Without the funds necessary to compete with an insurance carrier, often a concerned policyholder's only means to take protective action is to hire that expertise in the form of legal counsel... For this reason, the Legislature recognized that an insured is not made whole when an insurer simply grants the previously denied benefits without fees. The reality is that once the benefits have been denied and the plaintiff retains counsel to dispute that denial, additional costs that require relief have been incurred. Section 627.428, F.S., takes these additional costs into consideration and levels the scales of justice for policyholders by providing that the insurer pay the attorney's fees resulting from incorrectly denied benefits.⁵

Florida courts have interpreted the statute broadly to allow recovery of fees when the insurer ultimately settles the case before trial.⁶ The court awards fees pursuant to the statute even if the insurer does not act in bad faith.⁷

³ Section 626.9373, F.S., contains substantially similar language but it applies to surplus lines insurers. Florida courts have interpreted the statutes to have the same meaning.

There must be a dispute over the amount owed before attorney fees can be recovered pursuant to s. 627.428, F.S. In Goldman v. United Services Automobile Association,⁸ homeowners sustained water damage due to a plumbing leak. The homeowners reported the claim to their insurance company. The insurance company investigated and paid the claim. The homeowners filed a lawsuit without informing the insurance company that they disputed the amount of the claim. The insurance company demanded appraisal and paid the disputed amount after the appraisal award.⁹ The court held the homeowners were not entitled to attorney fees because the insurance company was not aware of a dispute over the amount of the claim until the filing of the lawsuit. The court said that attorney fees may only be recovered when the claims process breaks down and the parties are no longer working to resolve the claim.¹⁰

Assignments of Post-Loss Insurance Benefits

An assignment is the voluntary transfer of the rights of one party under a contract to another party. Current law generally allows an insurance policyholder to assign the benefits of the policy, such as the right to be paid, to another party. This assignment is often called an “assignment of benefits” or “AOB.” Once an assignment is made, the assignee can take action to enforce the contract. Accordingly, if the benefits are assigned and the insurer refuses to pay, the assignee may file a lawsuit against the insurer to recover the insurance benefits.¹¹

The Florida Supreme Court Applies Section 627.428, F.S., to AOB Cases

Section 627.428, F.S., provides that “any named or omnibus insured or the named beneficiary under a policy” may be entitled to attorney fees. In 1961, the First District Court of Appeal held that an assignee of the proceeds of a life insurance policy could recover attorney fees when the assignee had to sue to enforce payment.¹²

In 1971, the Fourth District Court of Appeal considered whether the insured’s assignee of benefits from a property insurance policy was entitled to attorney fees and held the assignee was not entitled to fees because the assignee was not a named insured or beneficiary.¹³ The Fourth District’s opinion was appealed to the Florida Supreme Court and the Florida Supreme Court reversed. In 1972, the Florida Supreme Court held that an insured’s assignee is entitled to attorney fees under s. 627.0127, F.S., the predecessor statute to s. 627.428, F.S. The court said “an assignee of an insurance claim stands to all intents and purposes in the shoes of the insured and logically should be entitled to an attorney’s fee when he sues and recovers on the claim.”¹⁴ The court reaffirmed the holding in 2008:

[S]ection 627.428 authorizes an award of attorney's fees only to “the named or omnibus insured or named beneficiary” under an insurance policy and to other third parties who obtain coverage based on an assignment from an insured.¹⁵

Anti-Assignment Provisions in Insurance Contracts Do Not Prevent AOB in Property Insurance or Motor Vehicle Insurance

Section 627.422, F.S., governs assignability of insurance contracts and provides that a policy may or may not be assignable according to its terms. In Lexington Insurance Company v. Simkins Industries,¹⁶ the court held that a provision in an insurance contract prohibiting assignment of the policy was enforceable under the plain language of s. 627.422, F.S. The court explained that the purpose of a provision prohibiting assignment was to protect an insurer against unbargained-for risks.¹⁷

An assignment made after the loss is valid even if the contract states otherwise.¹⁸ In Continental Casualty Company v. Ryan Incorporated Eastern,¹⁹ the court noted that it is a “well-settled rule that [anti-assignment provisions do] not apply to an assignment after loss.” A court explained that a rationale for post-loss assignments is that “assignment of the policy, or rights under the policy, before the loss is incurred transfers the insurer’s contractual relationship to a party with whom it never intended to contract, but an assignment after loss is simply the transfer of the right to a claim for money” and “has no effect upon the insurer’s duty under the policy.”²⁰

Assignments have been prohibited by contract in other insurance contexts. In Kohl v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Florida, Inc.,²¹ the court found anti-assignment language was sufficiently clear and upheld language prohibiting the assignment of a health insurance claim. The court explained that anti-assignment clauses “prohibiting an insured’s assignments to out-of-network medical providers are valuable tools in persuading health [care] providers to keep their costs down and as such override the general policy favoring the free alienability of choses in action.”²²

AOB in Property Insurance Cases

In recent years, insurers have complained of abuse of the assignment of benefits process. An insurance company described the issue in a court filing:

The typical scenario surrounding the use of an “assignment of benefits” involved vendors and contractors, mostly water remediation companies, who were called by an insured immediately after a loss to perform emergency remediation services, such as water extraction. The vendor came to the insured’s home and, before performing any work, required the insured to sign an “assignment of benefits” – when the insured would be most vulnerable to fraud and price gouging. Vendors advised the insured, “We’ll take care of everything for you.” The vendor then submitted its bill to the insurer that was, on average, nearly 30 percent higher than comparative estimates from vendors without an assignment of benefits. Some vendors added to the invoice an additional 20 percent for “overhead and profit,” even though a general contractor would not be required or hired to oversee the work. Vendors used these inflated invoices to extract higher settlements from insurers. This, in turn, significantly increases litigation over the vendors’ invoices.²³

In a court filing in a different case, a company that provides emergency repair and construction services explained the rationale behind assignments of insurance benefits:

As a practical matter, a homeowner often will not be able to afford or hire a contractor immediately following a loss unless the contractor accepts an assignment of benefits to ensure payment. A homeowner may be unable to comply with the ... provision requiring the homeowner to protect and repair the premises unless the remediation contractor accepts an assignment of benefits, however, contractors will become unwilling to accept payments by assignment if court decisions render the assignments unenforceable ...

Whether the repair invoice is routed through the insured or submitted by the service provider directly by assignment, the service provider’s repair invoice is submitted to the insurer for coverage and reviewed by an adjuster. The only difference an assignment makes is that, if an insurance company wishes to partially deny coverage or contest an invoice as unreasonable, the insured policyholder is not mired in litigation in which he or she has no stake.²⁴

There have been a number of cases in recent years where courts have held that post-loss benefits are assignable.²⁵

Automobile Insurance

Automobile insurance consists of different types of insurance coverages. Personal injury protection or “PIP” coverage is required in Florida to cover injuries to the driver regardless of which party is at fault in an accident. Bodily injury liability coverage pays for damage that the insured causes to other drivers and passengers in an accident. Property damage liability coverage covers damage that the insured causes to the property of another individual. Collision coverage pays for damages to the insured automobile caused by a collision with another automobile. Comprehensive coverage generally pays for damages to the insured automobile, including damage to the windshield, caused by events other than a collision.

The “deductible” is the amount the insured must pay before the insurance company pays any amount. Section 627.7288, F.S. states:

The deductible provisions of any policy of motor vehicle insurance, delivered or issued in this state by an authorized insurer, providing comprehensive coverage or combined additional coverage shall not be applicable to damage to the windshield of any motor vehicle covered under such policy.^{26, 27}

Consumers who purchase the minimum coverage required by law do not have first-party coverage for windshield repair or replacement. Consumers who purchase comprehensive coverage have first-party coverage if a windshield is damaged or broken. Lenders often require borrowers to purchase comprehensive coverage, so consumers who owe money on their vehicles will often qualify for windshield repair or replacement without a deductible.²⁸

Windshield Replacement and Repair

Florida law does not contain insurer claim handling requirements specific to windshield claims. The claims are handled through the insurance contract. Current law does not prohibit an insurer from including an inspection requirement in policy forms.

Many Florida insurance carriers set up a network of providers that will provide windshield repair or replacement services at negotiated rates. If the insured uses one of these “in-network” providers, an insured windshield is repaired or replaced at no cost to the insured. Some glass shops do not participate in the insurer’s provider network. To claim benefits from an insured’s automobile insurer, the “out-of-network” shop often obtains an assignment of benefits from the insured. Florida law allows an insured to assign the benefits of his or her insurance policy to a third party, in this case, the out-of-network glass shop. The assignee glass shop can negotiate with the insurer and file a lawsuit against the insurance company if the two sides do not agree on the claim amount.²⁹

Vehicle Safety Requirements

Section 316.2952, F.S., requires vehicles operated on highways to have a windshield. Section 316.610, F.S., prohibits driving a vehicle in such an unsafe condition that it endangers persons or property. A police officer is allowed to stop a vehicle if required equipment is not in ²⁶ Language similar to s. 627.7288, F.S., has been part of Florida law since 1979. See Ch. 79-241, Laws of Florida.

²⁷ At least seven other states have provisions prohibiting insurers from requiring a deductible for windshield claims or allowing insureds to purchase a policy with no deductible for windshield claims.

proper repair.³⁰ Depending on the severity of the equipment damage, a police officer may order a vehicle removed from use until repairs are made or give the driver 48 hours to make the repairs.³¹

AOB Windshield Litigation

According to the Department of Financial Services,³² the number of AOB auto glass lawsuits has increased in recent years:

Year	2006	2007	2008	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018
Auto Glass	397	571	271	709	351	478	1,389	4,331	9,018	12,817	19,695	25,664	17,399

Some insurers argue that the increase in litigation is caused by the ability of some vendors to execute an assignment of benefits and recover attorney fees under s. 627.428, F.S. They allege that some vendors are obtaining an assignment of benefits from the insured and inflating the cost of the claim when they bill the insurance company.³³ Insurers also believe that many windshield claims brought by assignees are fraudulent.^{34, 35} In such cases, the insurer must determine whether to pay what it believes to be an inflated or fraudulent claim or pay its own attorneys to litigate the case and risk having to pay the other side’s attorney fees if it does not prevail.³⁶

Some auto glass vendors argue that litigation is necessary because insurers enter into agreements with preferred vendors and will not pay the “prevailing competitive price” for windshield repair or replacement. Instead, some vendors contend, insurers will only pay the price they pay to the preferred vendors and that litigation is necessary to force the insurers to pay the “prevailing competitive price” pursuant to the insurance policy language.³⁷

PIP AOB Litigation

Assignments of benefits are common in PIP claims. The insured may assign a claim to a medical provider such as a MRI facility. The assignment gives the assignee medical provider the ability to negotiate with the insurer and file a lawsuit to recover benefits. If the assignee prevails, it can recover attorney fees pursuant to s. 626.736, F.S.³⁸ According to the Insurance Information

Data and Recommendations for Reform

According to the Department of Financial Services,⁴¹ the number of AOB lawsuits for water claims has increased in recent years:

Year	2006	2007	2008	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018
Water	8	35	87	184	483	989	1,603	2,083	2,786	5,328	8,488	10,937	16,890

This chart shows the percentage of lawsuits with an AOB for water claims or for windshield glass:

Year	Lawsuits	AOB	AOB Percentage
2018	278,739	34,289	12.3%
2017	229,188	36,601	16.0%
2016	192,598	28,183	14.6%
2015	161,062	18,145	11.3%
2014	148,003	11,804	8.0%
2013	141,320	6,414	4.5% ⁴²

In 2015, the Office of Insurance Regulation (OIR) did a data call to attempt to determine the effect of assignment of benefits in the insurance market.⁴³ The OIR found that water losses alone could require rate increases of 10 percent per year.⁴⁴ The Insurance Commissioner showed that the OIR has approved a greater percentage of rate increases in personal residential insurance in recent years:

Year	Percentage of Filings with a Rate Increase
2017	91.9%
2016	72.0%
2015	44.9%
2014	37.6% ⁴⁵

In 2017, the OIR conducted another data call on AOB. The OIR found that water losses (a combination of the frequency of water claims and the severity of the claims) increased 14.2 percent per year from January 1, 2010, to September 30, 2015.⁴⁶ From January 1, 2015, to June 30, 2017, water losses increased by 42.1 percent per year.⁴⁷ In 2015, almost 13 percent of the water claims utilized an AOB. In 2017, that percentage was approximately 17 percent.⁴⁸

Citizens Property Insurance Company (Citizens) reports an increase in both litigation and litigation where the claimant has an AOB:⁴⁹

Year	Lawsuits	AOB	AOB Percentage
2018	13,363	3,631	27.2%
2017	7,624	2,718	35.6%
2016	10,061	3,242	32.2%
2015	7,653	1,250	16.3%
2014	9,525	1,062	11.1%
2013	9,146	860	9.4%

The current average actuarial rate indication for multiperil homeowners policies for policies issued by Citizens Property Insurance Company (Citizens) is 25.2 percent. Citizens anticipates an actuarial rate indication on the same policies of 10.1 percent if AOB reform is successful.⁵⁰ Citizens reports that 70 percent of its homeowners multiperil customers received rate decreases in 2015 while 97 percent of those customers will see rate increases in 2019.⁵¹

A restoration contractor testified that issues arise between assignees and insurers because insurers wrongly deny claims and adjusters are poorly trained.⁵² The contractor suggested the following solutions:

- Regulation of restoration contractors;
- Increased training for insurance company claims staff;
- Increased penalties for insurance fraud committed by contractors; and
- Penalties against insurers for underpayment and delayed claims.⁵³

Nebraska AOB Reform

In Mallard Gutter Company v. Farm Bureau Property and Casualty Insurance Company,⁵⁴ the Nebraska Supreme Court held that assignment of post-loss benefits from an insured to a roofing contractor is allowed under Nebraska law. In 2018, the Nebraska Legislature adopted a statute to deal with perceived issues in Nebraska. The statute:

- Allows an assignment to authorize a contractor to be named as a copayee;
- Requires the assignment to be provided to the insurer within five business days after execution;
- Requires the following notice on an assignment:

YOU ARE AGREEING TO ASSIGN CERTAIN RIGHTS YOU HAVE UNDER YOUR INSURANCE POLICY. WITH AN ASSIGNMENT, THE RESIDENTIAL CONTRACTOR SHALL BE ENTITLED TO PURSUE ANY RIGHTS OR REMEDIES THAT YOU, THE INSURED HOMEOWNER, HAVE UNDER YOUR INSURANCE POLICY. PLEASE READ AND UNDERSTAND THIS DOCUMENT BEFORE SIGNING;

- Provides that the assignment shall not impair the interest of a mortgagee; and
- Provides that the assignment shall not prevent or inhibit an insurer from communicating with the named insured or mortgagee.⁵⁵

Florida Courts Say if Policy Changes Are Needed, They Should be Made by the Legislature

The First District Court of Appeal recently noted:

[W]e are not unmindful of the concerns that Security First expressed in support of [limiting assignment of benefits], providing evidence that inflated or fraudulent post-loss claims filed by remediation companies exceeded by thirty percent comparable services; that policyholders may sign away their rights without understanding the implications; and that a "cottage industry" of "vendors, contractors, and attorneys" exists that use the "assignments of benefits and the threat of litigation" to "extract higher payments from insurers." These concerns, however, are matters of policy that we are ill-suited to address.⁵⁶

The Fourth District Court of Appeal explained the competing policy arguments raised by the assignment of benefits issue:

Turning to the practical implications of this case, we note that this issue boils down to two competing public policy considerations. On the one side, the insurance industry argues that assignments of benefits allow contractors to unilaterally set the value of a claim and demand payment for fraudulent or inflated invoices. On the other side, contractors argue that assignments of benefits allow homeowners to hire contractors for emergency repairs immediately after a loss, particularly in situations where the homeowners cannot afford to pay the contractors up front.⁵⁷

The court noted that if “studies show that these assignments are inviting fraud and abuse, then the legislature is in the best position to investigate and undertake comprehensive reform.”⁵⁸

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The bill amends ss. 627.428 and 626.9373, F.S.,⁵⁹ to provide that the right to attorney fees under those sections may not be assigned or extended by contract or other agreement to any person other than another named insured, named beneficiary, or omnibus insured. Prohibiting assignees from recovering attorney fees would make assignment of post-loss benefits less valuable. The assignee would have to pay his or her own attorney fees to enforce the insurance contract.

The bill inserts the word “named” before insured or beneficiary at various places in the statute. This would appear to prevent an omnibus insured from recovering attorney fees on appeal if the omnibus insured prevailed on appeal.⁶⁰

The bill makes technical changes to subsection (2) of sections 627.428 and 626.9373, F.S.

The bill takes effect on July 1, 2019.

⁵⁹ Section 626.9373, F.S., contains substantially the same language as s. 627.428, F.S., except it applies to surplus lines insurers. Florida courts have interpreted the statutes to have the same meaning.

⁶⁰ An omnibus insured is someone covered by the policy who is not specifically named in the policy. For example, a person driving the car with permission of the insured is an omnibus insured.

E. Other Constitutional Issues:

Due Process

The Florida Supreme Court has explained that in order to determine whether a statute violates due process, it must determine whether the statute bears a reasonable relationship to a legitimate legislative objective and is not discriminatory, arbitrary, or oppressive.⁶¹ In Nationwide Mutual Fire Insurance Company v. Pinnacle Medical Inc.,⁶² the court considered a challenge to a provision in the Florida Motor Vehicle No-Fault law that created a prevailing party standard for awarding attorney fees to medical provider assignees, rather than the standard applied to insureds under s. 627.428, F.S. The court held that the prevailing party standard for awarding attorney fees to medical provider assignees violated the due process⁶³ rights of medical providers.

In 1998, the Motor Vehicle No-Fault Law required motor vehicle insurance policies to contain a provision requiring providers who accepted an assignment of personal injury protection benefits to provide medical services or supplies to resolve any dispute with the insurance company via binding arbitration. It provided the prevailing party could recover attorney fees but did not define prevailing party.⁶⁴ In 1998, the Legislature amended the No-Fault Law to create a prevailing party definition.⁶⁵ Under s. 626.736, F.S., providers who accepted assignments and had a dispute were not entitled to attorney fees under 627.428, F.S. Instead, they could only recover fees if they prevailed at arbitration under the statutory formula.

The court said that an objective of No-Fault Law was to provide persons injured in an accident with prompt payment of benefits and that the legislative objective of s. 627.428, F.S., was to discourage insurance companies from contesting valid claims and to reimburse successful insureds for their attorney fees when they are compelled to sue to enforce their insurance contracts. The court explained that the prevailing party attorney fee formula replaced s. 627.428, F.S., attorney fees with an award of attorney fees based on who was the prevailing party. Therefore, medical provider-assignees were subject to attorney fees while insureds suing to enforce the exact same contract could obtain one-way imposition of attorney fees against insurers. The court held that this distinction does nothing to further the prompt payment of benefits or to discourage insurers' denial of valid claims and that the effect of the attorney-fee provision was to delay insureds from receiving medical benefits by encouraging medical providers to require payment from insureds at the time the services are rendered. Therefore, the court said the prevailing party attorney-fee provision arbitrarily distinguished between medical providers and insureds and violated medical providers' due process rights.⁶⁶

⁶³ Article 1, section 9 of the Florida Constitution provides that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law.

⁶⁴ See Section 627.736(5), F.S. (Supp. 1998).

⁶⁵ See ch. 98-270, L.O.F. The definition provides that the claimant prevails if the PIP award at arbitration exceeds the sum of the insurer's offer at arbitration plus 50 percent of the difference between the insurer's demand at arbitration and the insurer's offer. The insurer prevails if the PIP award is less than the insurer's offer at arbitration plus 50 percent of the difference between the insurer's demand at arbitration and the insurer's offer. The formula can be expressed as PIP BENEFITS DETERMINED BY ARBITRATION < or > INSURER OFFER + .5(CLAIMANT DEMAND – INSURER OFFER)

Opponents may argue that the provisions of this bill that prohibit an assignee from using s. 627.428, F.S., to collect attorney fees when the assignee prevails in an action against an insurance company similarly violates the assignee's due process rights. They could argue that the assignee, like the medical providers in Pinnacle, are suing to enforce the same contract as a named insured and the distinction between assignees and named insureds is arbitrary and does nothing to encourage the prompt payment of valid claims.

Proponents could argue that this bill's distinction is not arbitrary. Proponents could argue that the distinction was drawn because: (1) there has been a large increase in AOB litigation in recent years; (2) claims with an AOB are often higher cost than claims without an AOB; (3) AOB claims are more likely to be inflated; and (4) the one-way attorney fee statute limits the insurers' ability to litigate smaller claims. Proponents could argue that the Legislature is drawing this distinction to prevent further increases in insurance rates because higher rates harm the state's economy.

V. Fiscal Impact Statement:

A. Tax/Fee Issues:

None.

B. Private Sector Impact:

Contractors and other vendors who use assignments of benefits may use them less often. They would be responsible for their own attorney fees if they had to prosecute a lawsuit against an insurance company.

C. Government Sector Impact:

None.

VI. Technical Deficiencies:

The bill provides that the right to attorney fees under s. 627.428, F.S., may not be assigned to any person other than another named insured, named beneficiary, or omnibus insured.

Section 627.736, F.S., specifically provides that assignees of PIP benefits may recover attorney fees pursuant to s. 627.428, F.S. This inconsistency could lead to litigation over which provision applies.
