BILL: SB 344

INTRODUCER: Senator Diaz

SUBJECT: Legislative Review of Occupational Regulations

DATE: March 16, 2021

REVISED: _____

I. Summary:

SB 344 repeals over 75 occupational regulatory programs currently administered in Florida. The bill states that it is the intent of the legislature to review each program before the scheduled effective date of the repeal of the program to determine whether (a) to allow the program to expire under the terms of this bill, (b) to enact another law to save the program from repeal and to renew the program with or without modifications, or (c) to provide for other appropriate actions.

If an occupational regulatory program expires through the repeal of the program by this act, the agency positions responsible for administering the program are abolished and any appropriations for the program revert. Any remaining unencumbered revenue collected under the program must be refunded on a pro rata basis if the refund is requested within one year of the repeal. Any causes of action pending upon repeal of the program are transferred to the Department of Legal Affairs to be prosecuted or defended.

The bill expressly preempts to the state the regulation of any occupation related to an occupational regulatory program repealed by this act.

State agencies who administer occupational regulatory programs that are repealed by this act will experience a reduction in revenues associated with the repealed regulatory fees and licenses. On the other hand, these same agencies will experience a reduction in expenditures associated with the ceased administration of the occupation regulatory programs.

In some instances, the regulatory revenues associated with the administration of the occupation regulatory programs are subject to the general revenue service charge imposed by s. 215.20, F.S. To the extent the regulatory fees subject to the service charge expire, the distributions to the General Revenue Fund will be reduced.

The bill provides that, except as otherwise provided in the act, the act takes effect upon becoming a law.

II. Present Situation:

Occupational Licensing

An occupational or professional license is a form of regulation that requires individuals who want to perform certain types of work, such as contractors and cosmetologists, to obtain permission from the government to perform the work. Generally, an individual obtains such permission by demonstrating that they have the designated knowledge, skills, and abilities to perform the work by meeting pre-determined criteria established by the government, such as work experience and examinations. If the individual successfully completes the pre-determined criteria, the government issues the individual a license, which allows them to perform the work.

Various governmental entities and agencies in Florida license and regulate such individuals practicing in a wide range of professions, including:

- Department of Business and Professional Regulation (DBPR);
- Department of Health (DOH);
- Department of Financial Services (DFS);
- Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services (DACS);
- Florida Supreme Court (FSC);
- Department of Environmental Protection (DEP);
- Agency for Healthcare Administration (AHCA);
- Department of Children and Families (DCF);
- Department of Elder Affairs (DEA);
- Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles (DHSMV); and
- Office of Financial Regulation (OFR).

Sunset Reviews of Occupations and Professions

A sunset review is a clause within a statute or regulation requiring the statute or regulation to expire on a certain date unless the legislature takes action to renew the statute or regulation. A sunset review allows regulations to be periodically examined to determine if they are necessary or if they need to be changed, improved, or reduced. Sunset reviews can be useful, because even if a regulation was justified when first introduced, technological and economic advancements may have made the regulation unnecessary or overly burdensome.¹ Thirty-six states have some form of sunset process for existing occupational licensing laws, ranging from automatic program reviews and repeals, to sunset recommendations made from a commission to the state legislature.²

Sunset Reviews of Occupations and Professions in Florida

In 1976, the Florida Legislature enacted The Regulatory Reform Act (the Act).³ The Act set up a sunset review process which called for a systematic, cyclical review and repeal of statutes related to the regulatory functions of the executive branch, including statutes regulating professions, occupations, businesses, and industries. In 1978, The Sundown Act was enacted as a supplement to the sunset review law to set up a review for boards of trustees, commissions, and advisory bodies that were connected to executive agency functions.⁴

The law required certain committees within the Legislature to perform an in-depth review and make a recommendation for the continuation, modification, or repeal of certain occupational regulatory programs. The recommendation needed to consider the following criteria:⁵

- Would the absence of the regulation significantly harm or endanger the public health, safety, or welfare?
- Is there a reasonable relationship between the exercise of the police power of the state and the protection of the public health, safety, and welfare?
- Is there a less restrictive method of regulation available that would adequately protect the public?
- Does the regulation have the effect of directly or indirectly increasing the costs of any goods or services involved, and, if so, to what degree?
- Is the increase in cost more harmful to the public than the harm that would result from the absence of regulation?
- Are any facets of the regulatory process designed for the purpose of benefitting, and do they have as their primary effect the benefit of, their regulated entity?

During the sunset review process, if any program was allowed to expire, the personnel positions responsible for carrying out the program were abolished, and all unexpended balances of appropriations, allocations, or other funds for such program were reverted to the fund from which they were appropriated, or, if that fund was abolished, to the General Revenue Fund. Any remaining unencumbered revenue collected under a repealed occupational regulatory program were to be refunded on a pro rata basis by the Comptroller (now the Chief Financial Officer), upon request of the person or entity who paid, if such request was made within one year after the repeal of the program.⁶

The Act also provided that any cause of action pending on the date any program was repealed, or any cause of action brought thereafter, was to be prosecuted or defended in the name of the state by the Department of Legal Affairs. All regulatory activities related to the repealed program were to cease after the date of repeal.⁷

In 1991, the Senate Committee on Government Operations (SCGO) performed a review of the sunset and sundown laws. SCGO found that between 1977 and 1991, 240 program sunset reviews were completed. During that time period, an estimated 20 regulatory laws were repealed, and 50 new ones were created. Based on the mandatory nature of the in-depth review process, it was found that the costs of the sunset reviews were high in terms of legislative and executive agency staff time. The SCGO report also found that the initial reviews of regulatory programs were more useful than any second or subsequent reviews.⁸

In light of the SCGO findings, the sunset reviews for occupations, professions, businesses, and industries under the Regulatory Reform Act, and entities under The Sundown Act, were repealed in 1991. There has not been a comprehensive sunset review process specifically for occupational licensing schemes since.⁹

Preemption

Local governments have broad authority to legislate on any matter that is not inconsistent with federal or state law. A local government enactment may be inconsistent with state law if (1) the Legislature has preempted a particular subject area or (2) the local enactment conflicts with a state statute. Where state preemption applies, it precludes a local government from exercising authority in that particular area.¹⁰

Florida law recognizes two types of preemption: express and implied. Express preemption requires a specific legislative statement; it cannot be implied or inferred.¹¹ Express preemption of a field by the Legislature must be accomplished by clear language stating that intent.¹² In cases where the Legislature expressly or specifically preempts an area, there is no problem with ascertaining what the Legislature intended.¹³ Implied preemption is “a more difficult concept.”¹⁴ Implied preemption will be found to exist in those circumstances where the state “legislative scheme is so pervasive as to evidence an intent to preempt the particular area, and where strong public policy reasons exist for finding such an area to be preempted by the Legislature.”¹⁵ Thus, implied preemption is actually a decision by the courts to create preemption in the absence of an explicit legislative directive.¹⁶ Implied preemption is generally disfavored by courts and the

Between 2006 and 2011, there was another systematic and scheduled sunset review process which included occupational regulatory programs, but that review process was applicable to every aspect of state agencies as a whole. Supreme Court has emphasized that it can be found only “so long as it is clear that the legislature has clearly preempted local regulation of the subject.”¹⁷ In cases determining the validity of ordinances enacted in the face of state preemption, the effect has been to find such ordinances null and void.¹⁸ Implied preemption is found where the local legislation would present the danger of conflict with the state's pervasive regulatory scheme.¹⁹

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The bill repeals specified occupational regulatory programs, over four years, beginning July 1, 2022, and ending July 1, 2025. The bill impacts over 75 professions and occupations.

Section 1 provides that this act may be cited as the “Occupational Regulation Sunset Act.”

Section 2 creates s. 11.65, F.S., to provide legislative intent that each occupational regulatory program be reviewed before the effective date of the repeal of a program.

This section states that it is the intent of the legislature to complete a systematic review of the costs and benefits of certain occupational regulatory programs prior to the date set for repeal to determine whether the program should be allowed to expire, be fully renewed, or be renewed with modifications.

The section provides:

There is established a schedule for systematic review of the costs and benefits of occupational regulatory programs. The Legislature intends to review each program before the scheduled date on which each occupational regulatory program is set to expire through scheduled repeal to determine whether to allow the program to expire, renew the program without modifications, renew the program with modifications, or provide for other appropriate actions.

The section defines the following terms:

- "Occupational regulatory program" or "program" means any statutory regulatory provision or scheme which places a condition on practicing an occupation, including, but not limited to, programs that require a license, certification, registration, or credential.
- "Local government" means a county, municipality, special district, or political subdivision of the state.
- "Occupation" means a paid job, profession, work, line of work, trade, employment, position, post, career, field, vocation, or craft.

When an occupational regulatory program is allowed to expire or is repealed, this section requires:

- The personnel positions which are responsible for carrying out the program to be abolished, and all unexpended balances of appropriations, allocations, or other funds for such program revert to the fund from which they were appropriated, or, if that fund is abolished, to the General Revenue Fund, within 60 days;

- Any remaining unencumbered revenue collected under a repealed occupational regulatory program to be refunded on a pro rata basis by the Chief Financial Officer, upon request of the person or entity who paid, if such request is made within one year after the repeal of the program;
- Any cause of action pending on the date the occupational regulatory program was repealed, or any cause of action brought thereafter, to be prosecuted or defended in the name of the state by the Department of Legal Affairs, if prior to repeal such action would have been prosecuted or defended by the occupational regulatory program repealed by this act; and
- All regulatory activities related to the repealed program cease after the date of repeal, except as otherwise authorized.

This section prohibits any local government from regulating any occupation or profession of any occupational regulatory program allowed to expire through a scheduled repeal pursuant to this act, and preempts such regulation to the state, unless local regulation of such occupation is expressly authorized by law.

If after the effective date of the bill a law scheduled for review under the bill is amended or transferred, such action does not eliminate the scheduled repeal of such law, unless otherwise expressly provided in law.

Section 7 provides that, except at otherwise provided, the bill takes effect upon becoming a law.

IV. Constitutional Issues:

A. Municipality/County Mandates Restrictions:

The bill does not require counties or municipalities to take action requiring the expenditure of funds, reduce the authority that counties or municipalities have to raise revenue in the aggregate, nor reduce the percentage of state tax shared with counties or municipalities.

B. Public Records/Open Meetings Issues:

None.

C. Trust Funds Restrictions:

None.

D. State Tax or Fee Increases:

Article VII, s. 19 of the State Constitution provides:

No state tax or fee may be raised by the legislature except through legislation approved by two-thirds of the membership of each house and presented to the Governor for approval pursuant to Article III, Section 8.

The provision defines the term “raise” to include “to decrease or eliminate a state tax or fee exemption or credit.”

Moreover, the provision requires that a state fee “raised under this section must be contained in a separate bill that contains no other subject.”

Several occupational regulatory programs provide “exemptions” to various licenses. As such, these workers are not required to be licensed (or pay fees) under the regulatory statute. To the extent this act repeals the exemption (at a later date) absent another legislative act to save the exemption from repeal, it is unclear whether Article VII, s. 19 of the State Constitution applies to this bill. If applicable, the repeal of any exemptions to the regulatory statutes or the fees imposed, should be in a separate bill and will require a 2/3 vote of each house to become a law.

E. Other Constitutional Issues:

Article III, Section 6 of the State Constitution provides that “Every law shall embrace but one subject and matter properly connected therewith...” This bill is an act relating to “legislative review of occupational regulations.” The bill provides a statement of legislative intent that each occupation regulatory program will be reviewed prior to its respective repeal date, repeals the regulatory statutes relating to over 75 occupations or professions over a 4-year period, directs the distribution and refund of regulatory fees collected for repealed programs, appears to modify later-enacted general appropriations acts regarding the funding and personnel of repealed programs, and preempts the regulation of these occupations and professions to the state.

It is unclear whether the substance of this bill violates the constitutional “single subject” requirement. If a court of competent jurisdiction finds that it is in violation, the entire act may be voided.

V. Fiscal Impact Statement:A. Tax/Fee Issues:

The bill repeals, over a four-year period, numerous statutes imposing regulatory fees and licenses. At this time, it is unknown the value of the regulatory fees and licenses repealed each year.

It is unknown to what extent local governments currently regulate any of the occupations impacted by this bill. A local government will be preempted from regulating any occupation for which the state regulation of that occupation expires, unless the local regulation is expressly authorized by law.

If the regulatory authority is not reenacted, affected regulatory agencies will experience a significant loss of fee revenue.

B. Private Sector Impact:

For any occupational regulatory program that is repealed as a result of the sunset review process, the bill may have a positive impact on individuals who would have otherwise been required to pay licensing fees and comply with extensive licensing requirements. The impact on consumers is indeterminate.

C. Government Sector Impact:

State agencies who administer occupational regulatory programs that are repealed by this act will experience a reduction in revenues associated with the regulatory fees and licenses. On the other hand, these same agencies will experience a reduction in expenditures associated with the administration of the occupation regulatory programs.

In some instances, the revenues associated with the administration of the occupation regulatory programs are subject to the general revenue service charge imposed by s. 215.20, F.S. To the extent the regulatory fees subject to the service charge expire, the distributions to the General Revenue Fund will be reduced.

Local governments that regulate occupations also regulated by the state may experience reductions in revenues and expenditures to the extent that the local regulation of these occupations are preempted to the state.

VI. Technical Deficiencies:

The Legislature may want to consider amending the title to be more broad and inclusive of the provisions in the bill. An example of a title that may be appropriate is “an act relating to occupational regulatory programs.”

VII. Related Issues:

The bill repeals over 75 occupational regulatory programs over the next four years without any further action by the legislature. However, the bill states that it is the intent of the legislature to review each occupational regulatory program before the scheduled effective date of the repeal of the program to determine whether (a) to allow the program to expire under the terms of this bill, (b) to enact another law to save the program from repeal and to renew the program with or without modifications, or (c) to provide for other appropriate actions. In order to achieve this legislative review, the legislature should consider certain constitutional requirements that may be applicable.

Art. VII, Section 19 of the State Constitution limits the authority of the legislature to enact legislation that imposes a new state tax or fee or raises a state tax or fee by requiring such legislation to be approved by a 2/3 vote of each chamber of the legislature. A new state tax or fee imposed or authorized, or a state tax or fee raised must be contained in a separate bill that contains no other subject. For purposes of this limitation, the term “fee” is defined, in pertinent part, to mean any charge or payment required by law, including . . . fee or cost for licenses, and charge for service.

If the occupational regulatory program (including the associated statutory fee provisions) is repealed by this bill and a future legislature enacts a new regulatory structure with fees after the effective date of the repeal, the fee bill associated with that regulatory program must be in a separate bill and will require a 2/3 vote of each chamber of the legislature. This means that a new regulatory program with fees will require a 2/3 vote or the use of monies from existing trust fund revenues or the General Revenue Fund.

If an occupational regulatory program (including the associated statutory fee provisions) is repealed by this bill but a future legislature saves the program (and statutory fee provisions) from repeal before the scheduled repeal date, it is unclear whether the bill extending the imposition of the fees beyond the repeal date established in SB 344 must be in a separate bill and will require a 2/3 vote of each chamber of the legislature. If the requirements of Art. VII., Section 19 of the State Constitution must be met even though the effective date of the repeal has not passed, a decision by a future legislature to continue the occupational regulatory program without modification will require a 2/3 vote of each chamber of the legislature.

To address the unknown aspect of the application of this constitutional requirement, the Legislature may want to consider excluding the statutory fee provisions from repeal. A future legislature, after the intended review of each program, may repeal those fee provisions that are rendered unnecessary by the repeal of the regulatory program.

VIII. Statutes Affected:

This bill creates section 11.65 of the Florida Statutes.
