I. Summary:

SB 7034 amends s. 499.051, F.S., to remove the scheduled repeal of a public records exemption for a trade secret related to a complaint filed against a licensed prescription drug manufacturer, repackager, or distributor, or a trade secret obtained by the Department of Business and Professional Regulation (DBPR) pursuant to inspections and investigations of licensees as authorized under s. 499.051, F.S. Affected licensees include prescription and over-the-counter drug manufacturers, drug distributors, repackagers, and wholesalers; manufacturers of drugs, devices, or cosmetics; and certain health care clinics, veterinary drug retail establishments, freight forwarders, and logistics providers.

This public record exemption would stand repealed on October 2, 2021, unless it is reenacted by the Legislature under the Open Government Sunset Review Act. Under the bill, qualified trade secrets remain exempt from public disclosure.

The bill is not expected to impact state and local revenues and expenditures.

The bill takes effect October 1, 2021.

II. Present Situation:

Access to Public Records - Generally

The Florida Constitution provides that the public has the right to inspect or copy records made or received in connection with official governmental business.¹ The right to inspect or copy applies to the official business of any public body, officer, or employee of the state, including all three branches of state government, local governmental entities, and any person acting on behalf of the government.²

Additional requirements and exemptions related to public records are found in various statutes and rules, depending on the branch of government involved. For instance, s. 11.0431, F.S., provides public access requirements for legislative records. Relevant exemptions are codified in s. 11.0431(2)-(3), F.S., and the statutory provisions are adopted in the rules of each house of the legislature.³ Florida Rule of Judicial Administration 2.420 governs public access to judicial branch records.⁴ Lastly, ch. 119, F.S., provides requirements for public records held by executive agencies.

Executive Agency Records – The Public Records Act

Chapter 119, F.S., known as the Public Records Act, provides that all state, county and municipal records are open for personal inspection and copying by any person, and that providing access to public records is a duty of each agency.⁵

A public record includes virtually any document or recording, regardless of its physical form or how it may be transmitted.⁶ The Florida Supreme Court has interpreted the statutory definition of “public record” to include “material prepared in connection with official agency business which is intended to perpetuate, communicate, or formalize knowledge of some type.”⁷

The Florida Statutes specify conditions under which public access to public records must be provided. The Public Records Act guarantees every person’s right to inspect and copy any public record at any reasonable time, under reasonable conditions, and under supervision by the

⁵ Section 119.01(1), F.S. Section 119.011(2), F.S., defines “agency” as “any state, county, district, authority, or municipal officer, department, division, board, bureau, commission, or other separate unit of government created or established by law including, for the purposes of this chapter, the Commission on Ethics, the Public Service Commission, and the Office of Public Counsel, and any other public or private agency, person, partnership, corporation, or business entity acting on behalf of any public agency.”

⁶ Section 119.011(12), F.S., defines “public record” to mean “all documents, papers, letters, maps, books, tapes, photographs, films, sound recordings, data processing software, or other material, regardless of the physical form, characteristics, or means of transmission, made or received pursuant to law or ordinance or in connection with the transaction of official business by any agency.”

custodian of the public record.⁸ A violation of the Public Records Act may result in civil or criminal liability.⁹

The Legislature may exempt public records from public access requirements by passing a general law by a two-thirds vote of both the House and the Senate.¹⁰ The exemption must state with specificity the public necessity justifying the exemption and must be no broader than necessary to accomplish the stated purpose of the exemption.¹¹

General exemptions from the public records requirements are contained in the Public Records Act.¹² Specific exemptions often are placed in the substantive statutes relating to a particular agency or program.¹³

When creating a public records exemption, the Legislature may provide that a record is “exempt” or “confidential and exempt.” Custodians of records designated as “exempt” are not prohibited from disclosing the record; rather, the exemption means that the custodian cannot be compelled to disclose the record.¹⁴ Custodians of records designated as “confidential and exempt” may not disclose the record except under circumstances specifically defined by the Legislature.¹⁵

Open Government Sunset Review Act

The Open Government Sunset Review Act¹⁶ (the act) prescribes a legislative review process for newly created or substantially amended¹⁷ public records or open meetings exemptions, with specified exceptions.¹⁸ It requires the automatic repeal of such exemption on October 2nd of the fifth year after creation or substantial amendment, unless the Legislature reenacts the exemption.¹⁹

The act provides that a public records or open meetings exemption may be created or maintained only if it serves an identifiable public purpose and is no broader than is necessary.²⁰

⁸ Section 119.07(1)(a), F.S.

⁹ Section 119.10, F.S. Public records laws are found throughout the Florida Statutes, as are the penalties for violating those laws.

News-Journal Corp.*, 724 So. 2d 567 (Fla. 1999) (holding that a public meetings exemption was unconstitutional because the statement of public necessity did not define important terms and did not justify the breadth of the exemption); *Baker County Press, Inc. v. ¹⁶ Section 119.15, F.S.

¹⁷ An exemption is considered to be substantially amended if it is expanded to include more records or information or to include meetings as well as records. Section 119.15(4)(b), F.S.

¹⁸ Section 119.15(2)(a) and (b), F.S., provide that exemptions that are required by federal law or are applicable solely to the Legislature or the State Court System are not subject to the Open Government Sunset Review Act.

¹⁹ Section 119.15(3), F.S.

²⁰ Section 119.15(6)(b), F.S.

An exemption serves an identifiable purpose if it meets one of the following purposes and the Legislature finds that the purpose of the exemption outweighs open government policy and cannot be accomplished without the exemption:

- It allows the state or its political subdivisions to effectively and efficiently administer a governmental program, and administration would be significantly impaired without the exemption;²¹
- It protects sensitive, personal information, the release of which would be defamatory, cause unwarranted damage to the good name or reputation of the individual, or would jeopardize the individual's safety. If this public purpose is cited as the basis of an exemption, however, only personal identifying information is exempt;²² or
- It protects information of a confidential nature concerning entities, such as trade or business secrets.²³

In examining an exemption, the act directs the Legislature to carefully question the purpose and necessity of reenacting the exemption. The act requires the Legislature to consider the following specific questions in such a review:²⁴

- What specific records or meetings are affected by the exemption?
- Whom does the exemption uniquely affect, as opposed to the general public?
- What is the identifiable public purpose or goal of the exemption?
- Can the information contained in the records or discussed in the meeting be readily obtained by alternative means? If so, how?
- Is the record or meeting protected by another exemption?
- Are there multiple exemptions for the same type of record or meeting that it would be appropriate to merge?

If the exemption is continued and expanded, then a public necessity statement and a two-thirds vote for passage are required.²⁵ If the exemption is continued without substantive changes or if the exemption is continued and narrowed, then a public necessity statement and a two-thirds vote for passage are not required. If the Legislature allows an exemption to sunset, the previously exempt records will remain exempt unless provided for by law.²⁶ making or causing to be made a copy of an article representing a trade secret. A violation is a felony of the third degree.²⁷

Section 812.081(1)(c), F.S., defines a “trade secret” to mean:

...the whole or any portion or phase of any formula, pattern, device, combination of devices, or compilation of information which is for use, or is used, in the operation of a business and which provides the business an advantage, or an opportunity to obtain an advantage, over those who do not know or use it. The term includes any scientific, technical, or commercial information, including financial information, and includes any design, process, procedure, list of suppliers, list of customers, business code, or improvement thereof. Irrespective of novelty, invention, patentability, the state of the prior art, and the level of skill in the business, art, or field to which the subject matter pertains, a trade secret is considered to be:

1. Secret;
2. Of value;
3. For use or in use by the business; and
4. Of advantage to the business, or providing an opportunity to obtain an advantage, over those who do not know or use it when the owner thereof takes measures to prevent it from becoming available to persons other than those selected by the owner to have access thereto for limited purposes.

Uniform Trade Secrets Act

Florida's Uniform Trade Secrets Act in ch. 688, F.S., provides a separate civil process for the protection of trade secrets, including injunctive relief to preserve a trade secret,²⁹ and the right to recover damages for the misappropriation of a trade secret.³⁰ Chapter 688, F.S., does not provide criminal prohibitions or penalties to preserve trade secrets. The trade secret protections in ch. 688, F.S., are for civil remedies by private persons seeking to preserve a trade secret.³¹

²⁹ Section 688.003, F.S.

³⁰ Section 688.004, F.S. Federal law provides comparable remedy for the preservation of trade secrets under 18 U.S.C. § 1831, et seq.

³¹ See s. 688.008, F.S.

Section 688.002(4), F.S., defines the term “trade secret” to mean:

...information, including a formula, pattern, compilation, program, device, method, technique, or process that:

- (a) Derives independent economic value, actual or potential, from not being generally known to, and not being readily ascertainable by proper means by, other persons who can obtain economic value from its disclosure or use; and
- (b) Is the subject of efforts that are reasonable under the circumstances to maintain its secrecy.

The definition in s. 812.081(1)(c), F.S., may be considered a broader definition than that provided in s. 688.002(4), F.S. For example, the definition of “trade secret” in s. 812.081(1)(c), F.S., expressly includes financial information and that the subject of the trade secret be of advantage to the business, or provide an opportunity to obtain an advantage, over those who do not know or use it. Section 688.002(4), F.S., does not explicitly reference financial information or reference the issue business advantage. The definition in s. 688.002(4), F.S., may also be interpreted as less clear. For example, s. 688.002(4), F.S., requires that the information has “independent economic value,” rather than just be “of value,” as required under s. 812.081(1)(c), F.S.

The following sections of the Florida Statutes make the specified records confidential and exempt from public disclosure. These provisions exempt “trade secrets” as defined in s. 688.002(4), F.S., or include “trade secrets” as defined in s. 688.002(4), F.S., within the meaning of the term “proprietary confidential information” or “proprietary business information” when exempting such records from disclosure:

- Section 73.0155, F.S., exempts business information containing a trade secret provided by the owner of a business to a governmental condemning authority as part of an offer of business damages under s. 73.015, F.S., specified business information provided by the owner of a business to a governmental condemning authority as part of an offer of business damages under s. 73.015, F.S., confidential and exempt.

- Section 288.075, F.S., exempts a trade secret held by an economic development agency.
- Section 288.9626, exempts proprietary confidential information held by the Florida Opportunity Fund, as defined in s. 288.9623, F.S.

Protection of a Trade Secret by its Owner

The trade secret owner must label a trade secret as such or specify in writing upon delivery to a state agency that the information provided to the agency is a trade secret in order for the information to be considered confidential and exempt under the public records law.³² In Sevro v. Department of Environmental Protection, the court held that information provided to the agency by the appellant was subject to disclosure because the appellant had failed to actively protect the information or label information as a trade secret.³³

Open Government Sunset Review Questionnaires

In September 2020, the Professional Staff of the Senate Regulated Industries Committee sent an Open Government Sunset Review Questionnaire (questionnaire) to the Department of Business and Professional Regulation, Division of Drugs, Devices, and Cosmetics (DDC), and to the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America (PhRMA) for consideration. Both parties responded to the questionnaires, and staff reviewed the responses to the questions to be considered by the Legislature in accordance with s. 119.15(6)(a), F.S.

³² Sevro v. Department of Environmental Protection, 839 So. 2d 781 (Fla. 1st DCA 2003).

According to the DDC, when an allegation of failing to meet current good manufacturing practices is investigated, the information collected typically includes a firm's formula and ingredients for the product, the design for the product, the development and manufacturing process, and other procedures related to the product.³⁴ When an inspection or investigation of a firm is conducted to determine if the firm is selling products to authorized recipients, the information collected may include financial documents and customer lists.³⁵ When prescription drugs are manufactured and there is a potential manufacturing issue, immediate access to a firm's records protects public health and safety; firms provide immediate access with the knowledge its records will be protected from public disclosure pursuant to the trade secret exemptions in Florida law.³⁶

According to a trade association for pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies and manufacturers, pharmaceutical manufacturers invest substantially each year investigating and developing new life-saving and life-enhancing drugs for patients, including vaccines.³⁷ Such investment relies on strong legal protections for intellectual property, including trade secrets, which allow manufacturers to compete based on quality, price, and market access. If trade secrets were subject to public inspection during or following an investigation, a manufacturer's ability to innovate or compete could be hindered.³⁸ The association further notes that an investigation may not uncover any violations, and that a manufacturer should not be penalized for cooperating with an investigation by risking exposure of valuable trade secrets.³⁹

The questionnaire asked if the exemption should be repealed or merged with other exemptions, and neither respondent favored such action, as the various exemptions in ch. 499, F.S., do not have overlapping subject matter. The DDC recommended reenactment of the exemption as a fair protection of business interest and the public's right to know.⁴⁰ PhRMA suggested it would be preferable for the Legislature to adopt a broad exemption covering all confidential and proprietary business information held by the state, with safeguards that will help ensure that manufacturers' sensitive information is not disseminated, including (but not limited to):

- Providing manufacturers with notice within 30 days of receipt of a public records request that information sought under section 119.07(1), Florida Statutes, or section 24(a) of Article I of the Florida Constitution may contain trade secrets;
- Providing manufacturers with an opportunity to file written objections to any such requests for information and to explain why the information sought should be protected;
- If the authority determines that information labeled a trade secret by the manufacturer is not subject to an exemption, providing manufacturers with at least a 30-day grace period to seek judicial relief before releasing the contested materials in response to the public records act request.⁴¹

If such comprehensive changes are not made, PhRMA recommended the exemption in s. 499.051, F.S., should be reenacted.⁴²

Trade Secrets

For purposes of the exemption in s. 499.051, F.S., the term “trade secrets,” as defined in s. 812.081(1)(c), F.S., means information for which an owner “takes measures to prevent the information from becoming available to persons other than those selected by the owner to have access for limited purposes.” Such information may include formulas, patterns, devices, compilations of information, or any portion thereof, which is used in a business and provides the business an advantage, or the opportunity to do so, over those who do not know or use such information.⁴³

Under Section 812.081(1)(c), F.S., the term “trade secret” includes:

- Any scientific, technical, or commercial information, including financial information; and
- Any design, process, procedure, list of suppliers, list of customers, business code, or improvement thereof.

In 2016, when the term “trade secret” was expanded to include the term “financial information,”⁴⁴ s. 499.051, F.S., was revised to incorporate that expanded meaning, and made subject to repeal on October 2, 2021 unless saved through reenactment by the Legislature.⁴⁵

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The bill saves from repeal the exemption for qualified trade secrets from public disclosure in s. 499.051, F.S., for a trade secret:

- Submitted as part of the permitting or renewal process related to the manufacture, repackaging, or distribution of a drug or for a permit or product registration; or
- Contained in a complaint investigated by the DBPR or a trade secret obtained by the DBPR pursuant to any investigation of a licensee conducted to enforce public health and safety rules or the requirements of ch. 499, F.S., (Florida Drug and Cosmetic Act), ch. 465, F.S., (Pharmacy), ch. 501, F.S., (Consumer Protection), and ch. 893, F.S., (Drug Abuse Prevention and Control).

Affected licensees include prescription and over-the-counter drug manufacturers, drug distributors, repackagers, and wholesalers; manufacturers of drugs, devices, or cosmetics; and certain health care clinics, veterinary drug retail establishments, freight forwarders, and logistics providers.
