Senator Ausley moved the following:

Senate Amendment (with title amendment)

Between lines 306 and 307 insert:

Section 8. Racial impact studies.—
(1) The Department of Health shall require the fetal and infant mortality review committees established under s. 383.21625, Florida Statutes, to conduct a racial impact study, including a comprehensive review of existing literature on fetal and infant mortality disparities, for the purpose of determining the factors associated with high fetal and infant mortality rates among minority populations and the best practices to address these disparities.

(2) The Department of Health shall conduct a racial impact study of maternal mortality, including a comprehensive review of existing literature on maternal mortality disparities, for the purpose of determining the factors associated with disproportionately high rates of maternal mortality among minority populations and the best practices to address these disparities.

And the title is amended as follows:

Delete line 40 and insert:

Public Health; providing an appropriation; requiring the department to require the fetal and infant mortality review committees to conduct a racial impact study on fetal and infant mortality disparities for specified purposes; requiring the department to conduct a racial impact study on maternal mortality disparities for specified purposes; providing
