I. Summary:

SJR 1114 proposes the repeal of Article VI, Section 7 of the State Constitution. This provision requires the Legislature to establish by law public financing for campaigns for statewide offices with spending limits on campaigns using public funds. As implemented by law, the campaigns that may receive funding are limited to campaigns for the Office of Governor and Cabinet offices.

A joint resolution must be approved by a three-fifths vote of the membership of each house of the Legislature. If enacted, the proposal will be presented to the electors of the state at the general election or at an earlier special election specifically authorized by law for that purpose. Voter approval requires a favorable vote from at least 60 percent of the electors voting on the matter. Repeal of the requirement for public financing of political campaigns would take effect upon approval by the voters.

II. Present Situation:

Public Campaign Financing in Florida

Currently, the State Constitution requires that public financing be available for campaigns for statewide offices. The four statewide offices are the Governor and three Cabinet offices but not the two U.S. Senate offices which are also elected statewide but governed by federal election law. The constitutional provision is implemented by general law. The State Constitution provides:

It is the policy of this state to provide for statewide elections in which all qualified candidates may compete effectively. A method of public financing for campaigns for state office shall be established by law. Spending limits shall be established for such campaigns for candidates who use public funds in their campaigns. The legislature shall provide funding for this provision. General law implementing this paragraph shall be at least as protective of effective competition by a candidate who uses public as the general law in effect on January 1, 1998.<sup>1</sup>

This constitutional provision has been in place since 1998 after being proposed by the Constitution Revision Commission and approved by the voters in the 1998 general election. The public financing program itself, however, has been in place in statute since 1986.<sup>2</sup>

The Matching Funds Program

The matching funds program is provided by general law in ss. 106.30-106.36, F.S., and administered by the Department of State's Division of Elections (division). The criteria under the program can be summarized as follows:

- Statewide candidates must have opposition;
- Only personal contributions from state residents are eligible for matching from the General Revenue Fund.<sup>3</sup> Corporate and political committee contributions are not matched;
- Contributions received after September 1 of the calendar year preceding the election are eligible for matching;
- Candidates choosing to participate in the public financing program must raise the following initial amounts of money in order to be eligible to receive public funds: $150,000 for gubernatorial candidates or $100,000 for candidates for Cabinet offices. This upfront money is matched with public funds on a two-to-one basis.
- After that, eligible contributions are matched on a dollar-for-dollar basis, up to $250 per individual contribution. For example, if a Florida individual makes a $250 contribution, it is matched with $250 from the state. If a person makes a $500 contribution, only $250 of that contribution will be matched with state money.
- In exchange for receiving public money, candidates agree to abide by certain limits on their overall campaign expenditures (see discussion, below).

Participating candidates must complete a form declaring their intention to apply for public campaign financing at the time of qualifying, and subsequently submit their contributions for audit by the division to determine eligibility for the match. The division audits the submission and makes payment to the candidate, beginning immediately on the 32nd day before the primary election and every seven days thereafter.

The program was originally funded from the Election Campaign Financing Trust Fund, which was established in 1986. The trust fund was funded with a portion of candidate qualifying fees and civil penalties collected by the Florida Elections Commission. The trust fund expired by operation of s. 19 (f), Article III, Fla. Constitution, on November 4, 1996. That section of the Constitution required state trust funds in existence prior to 1992 to terminate not more than four years from November 4, 1992. Since the trust fund terminated, the program has been funded from the General Revenue Fund.

Campaign Expenditure Limits

Statewide candidates participating in the public financing program must agree to abide by campaign expenditure limits.<sup>4</sup> In 2005, the Legislature increased these expenditure limits to the following amounts for the general election:<sup>5</sup>

- Governor and Lt. Governor – Increased from $7.1 million<sup>6</sup> to $2.00 per each Florida-registered voter;<sup>7</sup> and
- Cabinet Offices – Increased from $2.82 million<sup>8</sup> per race to $1.00 per each Florida-registered voter.<sup>9</sup>

A Florida-registered voter is defined as a voter who is registered to vote in Florida as of June 30 of each odd-numbered year. The division must certify the total number of Florida-registered voters no later than July 31 of each odd-numbered year. The total number must be calculated by adding the number of registered voters in each county as of June 30 in the year of the certification date.<sup>10</sup> The 2022 election cycle campaign expenditure limits for statewide candidates participating in the public financing program were approximately $30,286,714 for the Governor's and Lieutenant Governor's races and $15,143,357 for the remaining cabinet races.<sup>11</sup>

Previous Distributions

Total public financing distributions in the last four general election cycles for the Governor's race and the three cabinet races are as follows:

2022 election cycle – $13,015,149.81
 2018 election cycle – $9,852,605.76
 2014 election cycle – $4,336,040.04
 2010 election cycle – $6,065,556.11<sup>12</sup>

Although Florida law in 2005 explicitly provided for a cap of $5 million for gubernatorial candidates, the law also required that the limit be adjusted quadrennially for inflation; therefore, at the end of 2005, this $5 million expenditure limit, which was originally established in law in 1992, had risen to an inflation-adjusted figure of $7,135,606.

<sup>12</sup> See Florida Division of Elections, Candidates and Committees, Campaign Finance at <https://dos.fl.gov/elections/candidates-committees/campaign-finance/> (last viewed on January 23, 2024).

Current Florida law provides that, in addition to the matching funds specifically authorized for participating candidates for the general election and contested primaries, if a nonparticipating statewide candidate exceeds the expenditure limit, all opposing candidates participating in the public financing program receive a dollar-for-dollar match of public funds for the amount that a nonparticipating candidate exceeds the limit, up to a maximum of twice the applicable expenditure limit.<sup>13</sup> The constitutionality of this provision has been challenged, however, in a decision by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.<sup>14</sup> (See discussion under “Other Constitutional Issues”).

Past Efforts to Repeal the Public Campaign Financing Program

An identical resolution to repeal the public financing program for statewide elections was adopted in the 2009 legislative session.<sup>15</sup> The measure appeared on the ballot in November 2010, but only received 52.48 percent voter approval, not the necessary 60 percent affirmative votes required for adoption.<sup>16</sup>

Public Campaign Financing in Other States

According to the National Conference of State Legislatures, Florida is one of a small number of states that offer some form of full or partial public matching funds to political candidates:

Public financing of campaigns, in which the government provides financial support to candidates running for office, remains the least-used method of regulating money in elections, partly due to the result of the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in Buckley v. Valeo (1976). In that decision, the court struck down a provision of the Federal Election Act of 1971 mandating public financing for presidential elections.

Based on that decision, state public financing programs must be optional for candidates. The financial advantages of private fundraising frequently prompt candidates to opt out of public financing programs, which often include campaign spending limits. Candidates who opt not to use public funds can raise funds without having to abide by state limits.

For states that elect to provide a public financing option, money is available for either individual candidates or political parties . . . .

Thirteen states provide some form of statewide public financing option for candidates. Each of these plans require a candidate who accepts public money for their campaign to promise to limit both how much the candidate spends on the election and how much they receive in donations from any one group or individual.

<sup>13</sup> Section 106.355, F.S. The candidates participating in public financing are also released from the expenditure limit to the extent the nonparticipating candidate exceeds the limit.

These options are frequently limited, applying only to candidates running for specified offices<sup>17</sup> . . . .

The two main types of state programs for public financing are the clean elections programs and programs that provide a candidate with matching funds for each qualifying contribution they receive. The “clean election states” offer full funding for the campaign; the matching funds programs provide a candidate with a portion of the funds needed to run the campaign.<sup>18</sup>

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The joint resolution proposes the repeal of Article VI, Section 7 of the State Constitution, which requires the state to provide public financing for campaigns for statewide offices. The campaigns that may currently receive funding are limited to campaigns for the Office of Governor and Cabinet offices.

If approved by a three-fifths vote of the membership of each house of the Legislature, the proposal will be presented to the electors of Florida at the 2024 general election or at an earlier special election specifically authorized by law for that purpose. Approval requires a favorable vote from at least 60 percent of the electors voting on the matter.

E. Other Constitutional Issues:

In the landmark case of Buckley v. Valeo, the United States Supreme Court ruled that laws imposing limitations on overall campaign expenditures by candidates violated the free speech guarantees of the U.S. Constitution.<sup>19</sup> The Buckley Court, however, upheld the federal statute providing for public financing of presidential elections, finding that overall campaign expenditures may be limited if a candidate voluntarily waives his or her right to make unlimited expenditures in exchange for receiving public campaign funds.<sup>20</sup>

In 2010, gubernatorial candidate Rick Scott brought an action for injunctive relief to prevent the operation of the excess spending subsidy provision<sup>21</sup> of the Florida Election Campaign Financing Act in his primary campaign. He alleged that it violated his First and Fourteenth Amendment rights to spend unlimited sums of his personal funds and private donations to his campaign in support of his candidacy. On his appeal from an adverse district court decision, a panel of the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that he was entitled to the preliminary injunction and that there was a substantial likelihood that he would succeed on the merits of his constitutional claim. The court ruled that the subsidy provision was severable from the rest of the campaign financing act.<sup>22</sup>

V. Fiscal Impact Statement:*A. Tax/Fee Issues:

None.

B. Private Sector Impact:

If the public campaign financing program is abolished, statewide candidates will no longer be able to depend on public funds for their campaigns and will likely turn to private contributions to fill the gap. The precise fiscal impact is indeterminate.

C. Government Sector Impact:

The repeal of public campaign financing will eliminate an expenditure that routinely occurs every four years from the General Revenue Fund typically ranging from $4 million to $13 million per election cycle. The first year of the anticipated cost avoidance would occur in the 2028-2029 fiscal year.

VI. Technical Deficiencies:

None.
