SUMMARY ANALYSIS

The Division of Historical Resources (Division) within the Department of State (DOS) is responsible for preserving and promoting Florida's historical, archaeological, and folk culture resources. The Division is also charged with the protection, preservation, and collection of information about Florida's historic sites, properties, or objects related to Florida's history and culture.

The Florida African American Heritage Preservation Network (FAAHPN) is a professional association organized in 2001 by the John Gilmore Riley Center Museum. FAAHPN serves as an informational and technical assistance resource in response to a growing interest in preserving Florida's African American culture, that of the African Diaspora, and that of other related ethnically diverse historic resources globally.

The bill requires DOS to contract with FAAHPN, as authorized by and consistent with funding appropriated in the General Appropriations Act, to preserve Florida Black and African American history and culture. The bill provides that the functions to be provided by FAAHPN under such contract include, but are not limited to:

- Distributing funds to support member museums and their affiliates and institutions served, and the galleries and archives of such museums, affiliates, and institutions.
- Supporting member museums and their affiliates in the areas of technology, equipment acquisition, content and exhibit development fabrication and installation, and preservation of documents and artifacts.
- Providing professional and resource development services to member museums and their affiliates to enhance visitation to and viewership of Florida Black History and African American museums, places, and spaces.

The bill provides that certain other expenses are eligible for funding under the contract, including expenses for interns, field training and virtual communication, traveling exhibits, and living history presentations.

Other than such funds as may be appropriated by the Legislature, the bill has no fiscal impact on the state or local governments.

FULL ANALYSIS

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Background

Department of State

The Department of State (DOS)¹ is comprised of six divisions: Elections, Historical Resources, Corporations, Library and Information Services, Arts and Culture, and Administration.² The Secretary of State (Secretary) is the agency head of DOS, appointed by and serving at the pleasure of the Governor, confirmed by the Senate, and acts as the custodian of state records.³ As the chief administrator of the Division of Historical Resources, Division of Arts and Culture, and Division of Library and Information Services, the Secretary also serves as Florida's Chief Arts and Culture Officer.⁴

Division of Historical Resources

The Division of Historical Resources (Division) is responsible for preserving and promoting Florida's historical, archaeological, and folk culture resources. The Division is also charged with encouraging identification, evaluation, protection, preservation, collection, conservation, and interpretation of information about Florida's historic sites and properties or objects related to Florida's history and culture.⁵ Some of the Division's responsibilities include:

- Developing a comprehensive statewide historic preservation plan.
- Directing and conducting a comprehensive statewide survey, and maintaining an inventory, of historic resources.
- Cooperating with governmental agencies, private organizations, and individuals to ensure that historic resources are taken into consideration at all levels of planning and development.
- Providing public information, education, and technical assistance relating to historic preservation programs.
- Taking necessary or appropriate action to locate, acquire, protect, preserve, operate, interpret, and promote historic resources to foster an appreciation of Florida history and culture.⁶

The Division also is responsible for encouraging, promoting, maintaining, and operating Florida history museums, providing support and working to promote the use of resources for educational and cultural purposes.⁷ The Division directly oversees the following museums:

- The Museum of Florida History, which is the state's official history museum and showcases Florida's diverse history from prehistoric times to the present day.⁸
- Mission San Luis, a living history museum showcasing the life of the Apalachee Indians and Spanish settlers and hosting workshops such as pottery and blacksmithing.⁹
- The Knott House Museum, showcasing the history of Tallahassee and its role in the Civil War, including the reading of the Emancipation Proclamation on the steps of the Knott House in 1865.¹⁰

- The Grove Museum, the mission of which is to preserve and interpret the Call-Collins House, and its surrounding area and historical collections, and to further public dialogue about civil rights and American history.¹¹

Other museums recognized by the state include certain state railroad museums,¹² the Florida Museum of Transportation and History,¹³ the John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art,¹⁴ the Ringling Museum of the Circus,¹⁵ the Florida Historic Capitol Museum,¹⁶ the Florida Agricultural Museum,¹⁷ and the Florida Museum of Natural History.¹⁸

Currently, the Division also provides support for the Florida Museum of Black History Task Force (Task Force), including staffing and necessary expenditures. The purpose of the Task Force is to provide recommendations to the Division for the planning, location, construction, operation, and administration of a Florida Museum of Black History to showcase the role of African American participation in defending and preserving Florida and the nation; the history of slavery in Florida; the history of segregation in the state; notable Florida African Americans, including Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune; the history of black colleges and universities in Florida; and the inherent worth and dignity of human life with a focus on preventing genocide.¹⁹

Florida African American Heritage Preservation Network

The Florida African American Heritage Preservation Network (FAAHPN) is a professional association organized in 2001 by the John Gilmore Riley Center Museum.²⁰ FAAHPN serves as an informational and technical assistance resource in response to a growing interest in preserving Florida's African American culture, that of the African Diaspora, and that of other related ethnically diverse historic resources globally.²¹ Working with the Division and Visit Florida,²² FAAHPN produced new editions of *The Florida Black Heritage Trail Guide*²³ in 2005 and 2007 that detailed a microcosm of African American landmarks and legacies existing in various locations throughout the state of Florida.²⁴ FAAHPN also provides technical assistance and training to museum and historic preservation professionals to enhance content with the creation of living history exhibits and other educational products.²⁵

Effect of the Bill

The bill requires DOS to contract with FAAHPN, as authorized by and consistent with funding appropriated in the General Appropriations Act, and in accordance with the duties of the Division to preserve Florida Black and African American history and culture. The bill provides that the functions to be provided by FAAHPN under the contract include, but are not limited to:

- Distribution of funding to support member museums and their affiliates and institutions served, and the galleries and archives of such museums, affiliates, and institutions.
- Support to member museums and their affiliates in the areas of technology, equipment acquisition, content and exhibit development fabrication and installation, and preservation of documents and artifacts.
- Provision of professional and resource development services to member museums and their affiliates to enhance visitation to and viewership of Florida Black History and African American museums, places, and spaces. Such professional and resource development services include conferences, workshops, and training and tourism and marketing expenditures.

The bill also provides that other expenses as determined by FAAHNP and related to its mission are eligible for funding under the contract, including:

- Intern expenses.
- Expenses related to field training sessions and virtual communication methods to maintain connectivity among the museums.
