SUMMARY ANALYSIS

HB 317 passed the House on February 15, 2024, and subsequently passed the Senate on February 22, 2024.

Under Florida law, on a road, street, or highway having two or more lanes allowing movement in the same direction, a driver may not continue to operate a motor vehicle in the furthestmost left-hand lane if the driver knows or reasonably should know that he or she is being overtaken in that lane from the rear by a motor vehicle traveling at a higher rate of speed. This does not apply to drivers operating a vehicle that is overtaking another vehicle proceeding in the same direction, or is preparing for a left turn at an intersection. A violation of this law is a noncriminal traffic infraction, punishable as a moving violation. The statutory base fine is $60, but with additional fees and surcharges, the total penalty may be up to $158.

The bill provides that on a road, street, or highway with two or more lanes allowing movement in the same direction and a posted speed limit of at least 65 miles per hour, a driver may not operate a motor vehicle in the furthestmost left-hand lane, except when overtaking and passing another vehicle; when preparing to exit the road, street, or highway; or when otherwise directed by an official traffic control device. This does not apply to authorized emergency vehicles and vehicles engaged in highway maintenance or construction operations. The bill also defines the phrase "furthestmost left-hand lane" so as to exclude from that phrase high-occupancy-vehicle lanes and designated left-hand turn lanes. A violation is a noncriminal traffic infraction, punishable as a moving violation. The statutory base fine is $60, but with additional fees and surcharges, the total penalty may be up to $158.

The bill will have an indeterminate fiscal impact on state and local governments and the private sector.

The effective date of this bill was January 1, 2025; however, this bill was vetoed by the Governor on June 21, 2024.

I. SUBSTANTIVE INFORMATION

A. EFFECT OF CHANGES:

Current Situation

Under Florida law, a vehicle must be driven upon the right half of the roadway, except:

- When overtaking and passing another vehicle proceeding in the same direction under the rules governing such movement;
- When an obstruction exists making it necessary to drive to the left of the center of the highway, provided any person so doing yields the right-of-way to all vehicles traveling in the proper direction upon the unobstructed portion of the highway within such distance as to constitute an immediate hazard;
- Upon a roadway divided into three marked lanes for traffic under the rules applicable thereon; or
- Upon a roadway designated and signposted for one-way traffic.¹

Upon all roadways, any vehicle proceeding at less than the normal speed of traffic must be driven in the right-hand lane then available for traffic or as close as practicable to the right-hand curb or edge of the roadway except when overtaking and passing another vehicle proceeding in the same direction or when preparing for a left turn.²

On a road, street, or highway having two or more lanes allowing movement in the same direction, a driver may not continue to operate a motor vehicle in the furthestmost left-hand lane if the driver knows or reasonably should know that he or she is being overtaken in that lane from the rear by a motor vehicle traveling at a higher rate of speed. This does not apply to drivers operating a vehicle that is overtaking another vehicle proceeding in the same direction, or is preparing for a left turn at an intersection.³

Upon any roadway having four or more lanes for moving traffic and providing for two-way movement of traffic, a vehicle may not be driven to the left of the centerline of the roadway, except when authorized by official traffic control devices designating certain lanes to the left side of the center of the roadway for use by traffic not otherwise permitted to use such lanes, or except as permitted to drive around an obstruction. However, this may not be construed as prohibiting the crossing of the centerline in making a left turn.⁴

A violation of the above laws is a noncriminal traffic infraction, punishable as a moving violation.⁵ The statutory base fine is $60,⁶ but with additional fees and surcharges, the total penalty may be up to $158.⁷

device. This does not apply to authorized emergency vehicles and vehicles engaged in highway maintenance or construction operations.

The term “furthestmost left-hand lane” means the farthest, most left-hand lane, except that, if such left-hand lane is a high-occupancy-vehicle lane,⁸ or is a designated left-hand turn lane, the furthestmost left-hand lane is the lane immediately to the right of that high-occupancy-vehicle lane or left-turn lane.

A violation is a noncriminal traffic infraction, punishable as a moving violation. The statutory base fine is $60, but with additional fees and surcharges, the total penalty may be up to $158.
