SUMMARY ANALYSIS

Florida law currently contains several provisions prohibiting various forms of threats and harassment. Section 104.0615, F.S., provides that it is a third-degree felony for a person to: directly or indirectly use or threaten to use force, violence, or intimidation or any tactic of coercion or intimidation to induce or compel an individual to refrain from acting as a legally authorized election official or poll watcher; or knowingly use false information to induce or attempt to induce an individual to refrain from acting as a legally authorized election official or poll watcher.

Section 838.021, F.S., provides that it is a second-degree felony to harm, or a third-degree felony to threaten to harm, any public servant, his or her immediate family, or any other person with whose welfare the public servant is interested, with the intent to: influence the performance of any act or omission that the person believes to be, or that the public servant represents as being, within the official discretion of the public servant, in violation of a public duty, or in performance of a public duty; or cause or induce the public servant to use or exert any influence on another public servant regarding any act or omission that the person believes to be, or that the public servant represents as being, within the official discretion of the public servant, in violation of a public duty, or in performance of a public duty.

Section 784.048, F.S., provides that it is a first-degree misdemeanor to willfully, maliciously, and repeatedly follow, harass, or cyberstalk another person. The severity of the offense is increased to a third-degree felony if the offender also makes a credible threat to the person.

However, Florida law does not currently specifically prohibit a person from threatening or harassing an election worker with the intent to impede or interfere with the election worker's official duties or to retaliate against the election worker for the performance of his or her official duties.

CS/HB 721 creates s. 104.0614, F.S., to prohibit a person from intimidating, threatening, coercing, or harassing an election worker with the intent to impede or interfere with the performance of the election worker's official duties or with the intent to retaliate against the election worker for performing his or her official duties. A violation of the prohibition is a first-degree misdemeanor.

The bill defines "election worker" as a member of a county canvassing board or an individual who is an election official or poll worker in connection with an election conducted in this state.

The bill may have a positive indeterminate impact on jail beds by creating a new misdemeanor offense for harassment of election workers, which may result in more jail admissions.

The bill provides an effective date of July 1, 2024.
