SUBJECT OVERVIEW:

Municipal Boundaries

The boundaries of a municipality are provided in its municipal charter. A municipality's boundaries may be expanded by the annexation process or contracted by the deannexation process as provided in general law. There is no process in general law for the transfer of lands between municipalities, requiring such transfer to be done by special act.

¹ See ch. 2017-195, s. 3, Laws of Fla. (providing boundaries for the Village of Indiantown) and s. 166.031, F.S. (prohibiting municipal charter amendment process from being used to amend boundaries in the charter and authorizing a municipality to amend its charter by ordinance to include lands previously annexed).

² Ch. 171, Part I, F.S.

³ See e.g. chs. 2009-254 (adjusting boundaries between Town of Southwest Ranches and Town of Davie, Broward County) and 2015-190, Laws of Fla. (adjusting boundaries between City of Weston and Town of Davie, Broward County).

Municipalities expand their boundaries via the annexation process.⁴ A municipality may propose to annex any area of contiguous, compact, unincorporated territory by ordinance.⁵ Annexation can also be accomplished through a petition by the owner of contiguous and reasonably compact real property.⁶ All annexed lands must be in the same county as the annexing municipality.⁷ An area may not be annexed if it is within the boundaries of another municipality.⁸

The governing body of a municipality may only propose annexation of an area that is contiguous, reasonably compact, and:

- Is being developed for urban purposes;9
- Lies between the municipal boundary and an area developed for urban purposes; or
- Is adjacent, on at least 60 percent of its external boundary, to any combination of the municipal boundary and the boundary of the area or areas being developed for urban purposes.¹⁰

Additionally, annexations in Broward County are also governed by a special act that:

- Prohibits the annexing municipality from conducting a referendum of its current residents as part of the annexation process.
- Requires the annexation of unincorporated property to be considered at a public hearing of the Broward County Legislative Delegation.
- Provides that an annexation does not take effect until the first September 15 following the adjournment sine die of a regular Legislative session after all of the procedures required by general law have been completed.¹¹

Municipalities may also redraw their boundaries through the contraction process, also referred to as deannexation. An area may be considered for exclusion upon the passage of an ordinance by the municipality proposing exclusion or by filing a petition by 15 percent of the qualified voters of the area requesting exclusion. An area may not be deannexed from a municipality if it would meet the criteria for annexation to the municipality.

Local Bill Forms

The Florida Constitution prohibits the passage of any special act unless a notice of intention to seek enactment of the bill has been published as provided by general law or the act is conditioned to take effect only upon approval

- The area has a total resident population equal to at least two persons for each acre of land included within its boundaries:
- The area has a total resident population equal to at least one person for each acre of land included within its boundaries and is subdivided into lots and tracts so that at least 60 percent of the total number of lots and tracts are 1 acre or less in size; or
- The area is so developed that at least 60 percent of the total number of lots and tracts in the area at the time of annexation are used for urban purposes, and the area is subdivided into lots and tracts so that at least 60 percent of the total acreage, not counting the acreage used at the time of annexation for nonresidential urban purposes, consists of lots and tracts 5 acres or less in size.
