RELEVANT INFORMATION

SUBJECT OVERVIEW:

Traffic Law and Substance Abuse Education (TLSAE) Course

Current law requires each applicant for a driver license who is not already licensed in another jurisdiction to complete a four-hour¹ TLSAE course, unless the applicant has satisfactorily completed a Department of Education (DOE) driver education course.² The Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles (DHSMV) approves TLSAE courses, and course materials must be designed to promote safety, education, and driver awareness.³ Approved TLSAE courses must be updated at the DHSMV's request, and a course provider's failure to do so within 90 days after such request results in the suspension of the course until such time that the updates are approved by the DHSMV.⁴

¹ S. 322.095\(9\), F.S., provides that the course must be a minimum of four hours devoted to course content with 30 minutes allotted for breaks.

Department of Education Driver Education Course

Current law provides that each school district board must make a course of study and instruction in the safe and lawful operation of a motor vehicle available to students in the secondary schools in the state.⁵ The school district can make this course available by:

- Using instructional personnel employed by the district school board;
- Contracting with a licensed commercial driving school; or
- Contracting with a certified instructor.⁶

These driver education courses assist the DHSMV in providing Class E driver license exam services to minors enrolled in such classes. Only DOE-approved driver education courses meeting certain requirements are permitted to participate. Such requirements include that the instructional personnel must be DOE-certified teachers with a driver education endorsement; each school participating must be included in a public or private secondary education program; and courses must follow the DOE curriculum framework and student performance standards approved by the local school board's pupil progression plan. There are two approved driver education curriculum frameworks:

- Driver Education/Traffic Safety—Classroom 1900300
- Driver Education/Traffic Safety—Classroom and Laboratory 1900310

Students who complete their driver license exams through such approved courses in public or private schools will have their results entered into the DHSMV's records systematically or by their driver education teacher. Exam results will be used for the issuance of a learner's or Class E driver license. However, the DHSMV or tax collector licensing agent may test any student on a random basis before issuing a driver license.⁷

Driver Education/Traffic Safety-Classroom 1900300

The Driver Education/Traffic Safety-Classroom 1900300 course is a half-credit elective course aimed at introducing students to Florida driving law and rules of the road and safe driving behavior.⁸ It also provides an in-depth study of the contributing factors to vehicle crashes and their solutions. The content includes the following topics:

- Meaning and responsibilities of a driver license.
- Laws that govern the operation of a motor vehicle.
- Knowledge of Florida's Graduated Driver Licensing laws.
- Vehicle control and traffic procedures.
- Knowledge of sharing the road with other types of vehicles and vulnerable road users.
- Defensive driving strategies.
- Physical and mental factors that affect driving ability.
- Effects of alcohol and other drugs on driving performance.⁹

Driver License and Learners License Requirements

The DHSMV may not issue a driver license to a person who is at least 16 years of age, but is under 18 years of age, unless the person holds a valid learner's driver license for at least 12 months, before applying for a license.¹⁰

The DHSMV may issue a learner's driver license to a person who is at least 15 years of age so as long as they meet the following criteria:

- Has passed a written examination for a learner's driver license.
- Has passed the vision and hearing examination.
- Has completed the TLSAE course.
- Meets all other requirements set forth by law and by rule of the DHSMV.¹¹
