ANALYSIS

EFFECT OF THE BILL:

The bill prohibits state agencies¹ from using the term “West Bank” to refer to Judea and Samaria in official government materials or from expending moneys to create official government materials that refer to Judea and Samaria as the “West Bank.” The bill also requires public school and charter school instructional materials and library media center collections adopted or acquired on or after July 1, 2026, to refer to the land liberated by Israel from Jordan during the 1967 Six-Day War by its historical name of “Judea and Samaria” and not use the term “West Bank” to refer to Judea and Samaria. (Sections 2 and 3)

The bill states that it is the intent of the Legislature to no longer use the term “West Bank” in official government materials² and to refer to the land liberated by Israel from Jordan during the 1967 Six-Day War by its historical name of “Judea and Samaria,” with the land south of Jerusalem being considered “Judea” and the land north of Jerusalem being considered “Samaria.” (Section 2)

The bill provides that the act may be cited as the “Recognizing Judea and Samaria Act.” (Section 1)

The effective date of the bill is July 1, 2026. (Section 4)

¹ The bill defines “state agency” to mean every department, division, office, board, commission, and institution of this state.

FISCAL OR ECONOMIC IMPACT:

STATE GOVERNMENT:

The bill will likely have an indeterminate, negative fiscal impact on state government. The bill prohibits state agencies from using the term “West Bank” in official government materials, including a guidance, material, communication, or work product document prepared by a state agency, unless the agency head determines doing so is in the best interest of the state. Any fiscal impact would depend on the extent to which future materials contain the term and whether agencies determine revising such materials is in the state’s best interest. Any associated costs are expected to be absorbed within existing resources.

SUBJECT OVERVIEW:

Judea and Samaria

The region historically known as Judea and Samaria corresponds to the ancient Israelite kingdoms described in biblical sources. Around 1,000 years before the common era, the Kingdom of Israel split into two realms: a northern kingdom with its capital at Samaria and a southern kingdom with its capital at Judea.³ These ancient names have been used historically to describe the central highlands of the land west of the Jordan River, referred to in many parts of the world today as the “West Bank.”

1948 Arab-Israeli War

Following World War I, the League of Nations⁴ placed the land west of the Jordan River⁵ under British administration as part of the Mandate for Palestine.⁶ In 1947, the United Nations adopted the Partition Resolution⁷ proposing separate Jewish and Arab states, but the plan was never implemented.⁸ After Britain withdrew in May 1948, Israel’s declared independence and armed conflict immediately erupted resulting in the 1948 Arab-Israel War.⁹ At the conclusion of the war in mid-1949, the parties agreed to formal armistice lines¹⁰ with Israel controlling most of the territory of the former British Mandate for Palestine, Jordan controlling the West Bank, and Egypt controlling the Gaza Strip.¹¹ The city of Jerusalem was divided, with Israel holding the western portion and

⁵ The Mandate of Palestine included the southern Levant region; however, Great Britain authorized the Hashemite dynasty to administer the portion east of the Jordan River, referred to as Transjordan, and granted the region full independence in 1946. Jordan holding the Eastern portion.¹² In 1950, Jordan formally annexed the West Bank, a move that was recognized by only Great Britain and Pakistan.¹³

1967 Six-Day War

In June 1967, hostilities between Israel and neighboring states lead to the Six-Day War. Amid rising tensions, Israel launched preemptive strikes and fought against Egypt, Syria, and Jordan. Israel defeated the opposing forces and captured several territories, including the West Bank and Gaza Strip.¹⁴ Shortly after the war, Israel extended its law and administration to East Jerusalem, while the West Bank and Gaza Strip came under Israeli military occupation.¹⁵

Since 1967, the status and proper terminology for the territory have remained the subject of ongoing political and diplomatic dispute.

Instructional Materials

Each district school board has the constitutional duty and responsibility to select and provide adequate instructional materials for all students for core courses in mathematics, language arts, science, social studies, reading, and literature for kindergarten through grade 12.¹⁶ Instructional materials are items having intellectual content that by design serve as a major tool for assisting in the instruction of a subject or course.¹⁷ These items may be available in bound, unbound, kit, or package form and may consist of hardbacked or softbacked textbooks, electronic content, consumables, learning laboratories, manipulatives, electronic media, and computer courseware or software.¹⁸ A publisher may offer sections of state-adopted instructional materials in digital or electronic versions at reduced rates to districts, schools, and teachers.¹⁹ Publishers must make sample student editions of state-adopted instructional materials electronically available, at a discount below publisher cost, for use by teacher preparation programs and by educator preparation institutes for each adoption cycle, to enable educators to practice teaching with currently adopted instructional materials aligned to state academic standards.²⁰

Generally, the Commissioner of Education (commissioner) adopts instructional materials according to a five-year rotating schedule. The commissioner may approve a shorter schedule if the content area requires more frequent revision.²¹ The Department of Education (DOE) annually publishes an official schedule of subject areas calling for adoption for each of the succeeding two years and a tentative schedule for years three through five. Under extenuating circumstances, the commissioner may direct the DOE to add one or more subject areas to the official schedule.²²

Before adopting instructional materials in a certain subject area, the DOE publishes specifications for the materials. These specifications detail the courses for which materials are sought and the standards the materials must meet.²³ Beginning with the 2026–2027 adoption cycle, the DOE must publish an instructional materials adoption timeline that includes publishing bid specifications, advertising in the Florida Administrative Register, and specifying deadlines for submitting bids. The adoption cycle must include at least six months between the release of the bid specifications and the deadline for the submission of bids, and publication of an initial list of state-adopted

Funding for Instructional Materials

Funding for instructional materials is provided annually by the Legislature in the General Appropriations Act and is included in the base student allocation.²⁷ Each school district must certify to the commissioner the estimated allocation of state funds for instructional materials for the ensuing fiscal year, on or before July 1 each year.²⁸ Unless a school district has implemented its own instructional materials program,²⁹ any instructional materials purchased using state funds must be aligned with the state academic standards³⁰ and included on the state-adopted instructional materials list.³¹ Up to 50 percent of the amount the school district has budgeted for instructional materials may be used to:

- Purchase library and reference books and nonprint materials;
- Purchase other materials having intellectual content that assist in the instruction of a subject or course; or
- Repair or renovate textbooks and library books and replace items that were part of previously purchased instructional materials.³²
