SUBJECT OVERVIEW:

History of Children's Initiatives

Founded in 1970, Harlem Children's Zone, Inc. (HCZ) is a nonprofit, community-based organization that aims to enhance the quality of life for children and families living in poverty-stricken neighborhoods of New York City.¹ In the 1990s, HCZ launched a pilot project to address the poor living conditions, drug problems, failing schools, violent crime, and chronic health problems that were affecting the children and families of an impoverished community.² The project began with a single block and has grown to over 100 blocks, serving tens of thousands of children and adults each year through collaboration between the local community, nonprofit organizations, and institutions.³

HCZ provides comprehensive and individualized support for children from birth through college to promote successful self-sustaining adults.⁴ This includes early childhood programs to make children school-ready, K-12 charter schools, academic support in and after school, afterschool programs, and college preparation programs with an emphasis on entrepreneurship, financial literacy, and career readiness.⁵ The initiative also helps families by providing assistance with housing and safety concerns, tax preparation, legal issues, and childrearing education.⁶

In 2024, HCZ served 22,052 youth and adults through collaboration among the local community, nonprofit organizations, and institutional partners.⁷

Authorization of Children’s Initiatives in Florida

In 2008, using the Harlem Children’s Zone as a model, the Legislature created s. 409.147, F.S., which established children’s zones, currently referred to as children’s initiatives. Florida children’s initiatives assist disadvantaged areas within the state in creating a community-based service network that develops, coordinates, and provides quality education, accessible health care, youth development programs, opportunities for employment, and safe and affordable housing for children and families living within their boundaries.⁸

Section 409.147, F.S., outlines the process for a county or municipality (or designated area) to apply to a nonprofit agency designated in statute, the Ounce of Prevention Fund of Florida, Inc. (Ounce), to designate an area as a children’s initiative. The governing body must first adopt a resolution finding the area has issues related to poverty, that changes are necessary for the area to improve, and that resources are necessary for revitalization of the area.⁹ The county or municipality must then establish a children’s initiative planning team and develop and adopt a strategic community plan.¹⁰ Once a county or municipality has completed these steps, they must create a not-for-profit corporation to facilitate fundraising and secure broad community ownership of the children’s initiative.¹¹

Florida’s Codified Children’s Initiatives

In authorizing the establishment of children’s zones in 2008, the Legislature also created the Magic City Children’s Zone, Inc., as a 10-year pilot project zone and provided it $3.6 million non-recurring general revenue funds.¹² The Legislature designated the Ounce of Prevention Fund of Florida, Inc. (Ounce) in proviso as the agent to oversee the pilot program and directed the funds to be used as a grant over a three-year period to carry out the activities in the zone.¹³ In 2009, the Legislature amended s. 409.147(8)(a), F.S., to change the 10-year pilot zone to a 10-year project and changed the name of the Magic City Children’s Zone to the Miami Children’s Initiative. Additionally, it instructed the Department of Children and Families (DCF) to work in collaboration with a contracted not-for-profit corporation to implement the initiative and made the not-for-profit corporation responsible for the development, evaluation, fiscal management, and oversight of the Miami Children’s Initiative.

¹³ In August 2008, DCF developed a three-year non-renewable contract with the Ounce (LJ829), paying $300,000 a month, which expired in 2011. DCF has not contracted with the Ounce or any other nonprofit to oversee the Miami Children’s initiative since 2011.

The 2013 Legislature codified in statute two additional existing Florida children’s initiatives, New Town Success Zone in Jacksonville and Parramore Kidz Zone in Orlando.

In 2018, the Legislature codified two more existing Florida children’s initiatives, Sulphur Springs Neighborhood of Promise in Tampa and Overtown Children and Youth Coalition in Miami.¹⁴

These initiatives are not subject to control, supervision, or direction by any department of the state.¹⁵ They are, however, subject to the requirements of chapter 119, F.S., relating to public records, chapter 286, F.S., relating to public meetings and records, and chapter 287, F.S., relating to procurement of commodities or contractual services.

New Town Success Zone in Jacksonville

New Town Success Zone (NTSZ) serves as a partnership of public and private organizations providing a continuum of services to support children and families living in the New Town neighborhood in achieving healthy development, academic success, and neighborhood well-being. The initiative includes leadership development and career exploration for students at the Young Men and Women’s Leadership Academy (formerly Butler Middle School) and Brighter Beginnings, a program for expectant mothers or parents of a child under the age of one, and their support partners, that provides education on prenatal care, nutrition, safe infant sleep, substance use during pregnancy, breastfeeding, parenting skills, infant CPR, and social and life skills.¹⁶

Miami Children’s Initiative

Miami Children’s Initiative (MCI) focuses on transforming the lives of children and families in the historically underserved and impoverished Liberty City community. MCI connects parents with quality early learning centers, refers residents to physical and mental health services, and provides social, emotional, and educational support from birth through college and career.

With over 12 years of service, MCI has worked with community partners to create a continuum of solutions for Liberty City’s children and families, including youth development programs such as Project Promise (K–5), Promising Futures for middle and high school students, and family, social service, and health supports, including resume assistance, training, and job placement.¹⁷

Parramore Kidz Zone - Orlando

Parramore Kidz Zone (PKZ) is a children’s initiative created as part of a comprehensive effort to revitalize Orlando’s highest crime and poverty-ridden neighborhood. The initiative includes early childhood and family support programs, including the Baby Institute and the Rosen Preschool.¹⁸

In 2020, the City of Orlando replicated the Parramore Kidz Zone model in the Holden Heights, Mercy Drive and Englewood neighborhoods and served more than 9,000 children, with measurable declines in juvenile arrests, which went down 81.2 percent, teen births, which went down 49.7 percent, and verified cases of child abuse and neglect, which went down 68 percent in the community¹⁹.

Tampa Sulphur Springs Neighborhood of Promise Success Zone

Currently, the Sulphur Springs YMCA Community Learning Center, one of the foundational services provided by the Tampa Sulphur Springs Neighborhood of Promise Success Zone, provides yearly academic enrichment and classroom support, and age-appropriate enrichment activities for children. This also includes the Champions for Children’s Layla’s House, a parent and child learning center offering early childhood development and family support services for children from birth to age five.²⁰

Overtown Children and Youth Coalition

The Overtown Children and Youth Coalition (OCYC) serves Miami’s Overtown neighborhood, one of the city’s oldest communities, which was once a thriving center of Black culture and commerce known as “the Harlem of the South” during the Harlem Renaissance,²¹ with performers such as Louis Armstrong and Billie Holiday, appearing in the area. Today, children and families face extreme levels of poverty, low academic achievement, and health disparities.²²

OCYC supports the community through maternal health and early childhood programs, parenting workshops and maternal and child health services²³, as well as academic success and school engagement through tutoring and mentoring programs,²⁴ and community literacy activities, including reading focused events that promote early literacy and family involvement in education.²⁵

The Ounce of Prevention Fund of Florida

The Ounce is a private, nonprofit corporation dedicated to shaping prevention policy and investing in innovative prevention programs that provide measurable benefits to Florida’s children, families, and communities.²⁶ The Ounce identifies, funds, supports, and tests innovative programs to improve the life outcomes of children, preserve and strengthen families, and promote healthy behavior and functioning in society.²⁷ Section 409.147(4), F.S., identifies the Ounce as the only organization able to designate areas as Florida’s children initiatives. DCF must contract with a not-for-profit corporation for implementation and oversight of children’s initiative.²⁸ While s. 409.147, F.S., does not specify the Ounce as that nonprofit corporation, proviso language in the initial appropriation did designate the Ounce to receive the initial three-year contract in 2008, which expired in 2011. DCF has continued to contract with the Ounce since.²⁹

Pompano RYZE Exit 36³⁰ serves Northwest Pompano Beach, including the Blanche Ely and Sanders Park neighborhoods, which experience high poverty rates, lower high school graduation rates, housing instability, and unemployment. Community Foundation of Broward’s strategic community plan recognizes that these neighborhoods also demonstrate resilience, cultural pride, and collective community will, and identifies the need for investment in housing, education, health, and community resources to improve outcomes for children and families.³¹ Managed by the Community Foundation of Broward, the initiative targets a defined geographic area and proposes to provide academic support and mentoring, parenting and family support, job readiness and career exploration, mentorship and leadership development, and community engagement through a coordinated, cradle-to-career model.³² On September 10, 2024, the City of Pompano Beach adopted a resolution recommending and supporting the application on behalf of the children’s families of Blanche Ely and Sanders Park neighborhoods to be considered for designation as a Florida Children’s Initiative. The Ounce designated the Pompano RYZE as a Florida children’s initiative in 2025.³³

The Pompano RYZE proposes a coordinated, cradle-to-career approach focused on whole-family engagement, early childhood education, academic support, youth development, health and wellness, and workforce readiness. The plan emphasizes community-led change, trauma-informed and culturally responsive programming, and collaboration among system partners to better align existing resources in support of children, youth, and families in the Blanche Ely and Sanders Park communities.³⁴

Bay County 32401 Children’s Initiative

The Bay County Zip Code 32401 Children’s Initiative³⁵ is a community effort serving the 32401 zip code area in Panama City, Bay County. The initiative is led by Goshen Community Resource and Recovery Center, Inc³⁶. The initiative was informed by community meetings, surveys, and census data identifying challenges facing children and families, including limited access to early learning, lower educational outcomes, health and wellness concerns, housing and transportation barriers, and economic instability.³⁷

Goshen Community Resource and Recovery Center, Inc.’s strategic community plan identified early childhood development as a priority, particularly for children from birth to age five. The plan highlights barriers to accessing formal early learning and childcare, as well as challenges related to literacy, academic performance, family and school communication, and gaps in tutoring, mentoring, and youth enrichment programs.³⁸ The plan also identified health and wellness concerns, including food insecurity, limited access to nutritious foods, and physical and behavioral health needs.³⁹ Additionally, the plan identified parent and guardian support as a necessity to improving child outcomes, with concerns related to childcare affordability, after-school care, housing, transportation, and access to resources, and proposes strengthening family engagement through parent leadership development, community and faith-based organizations, community hubs, and culturally relevant supports.⁴⁰
